By January of 1961, all the talk had convinced the city government that the principal business thoroughfare — Clinton Avenue — needed help. In a move to aid worried retailers and protect the city's tax base in the business district, the then Mayor Raymond Kentfield named a 23-member mayor's downtown development committee. Along with a representative group of retailers and business property owners, the committee included an architect, 2 members of the city commission, a realtor and the newspaper editor.

The group met semi-monthly, divided itself into subcommittees for study and homework, and discussed such matters as downtown lighting, downtown parking and traffic patterns, building rejuvenation, alley improvement and project financing.

By May of 1961, the committee had agreed that some "dramatic" change was needed. They determined in their meetings that the downtown problem would not be solved by purely local "experts." They needed an outside consultant—a sound, hard-headed planner who had about him an aura of success from previous undertakings.

They found such a person in George Villan, senior consultant with the Southfield (Mich.) firm of Villan, Leman and Associates. He insisted that no really proper plan for the central business district could be developed and sold to the town without a detailed trade area and market survey and a study of present land uses.

He estimated the cost of such studies, necessary preliminary engineering and planning at $12,000. Of this amount the federal government would pay two-thirds or $8,000, with an urban renewal grant. The city government agreed to subscribe $2,000 and the remaining $2,000 was picked up in $25 contributions from 80 individual business establishments in the downtown area.

Villan's surveys and preliminary engineering required a couple of months; and then began a series of discussion meetings which involved both the mayor's downtown development committee of 23 members and the 9-member city planning commission.

These meetings produced the give and take that characterize any grass roots approach to community problems. Some of the sessions were pretty stormy but eventually extremes on both sides of the various questions came around to more moderate views and compromises were reached which permitted the planning to proceed.

During this 20-month study period the people of the city and surrounding area were kept informed of progress by regular newspaper accounts. There were a couple of public hearings at which attendance reached 100 or more interested citizens. Scale models of the proposed downtown development were built.

By mid-November of 1963 the mayor's committee had reached a substantial agreement on a plan for downtown renovation that will cost an estimated $404,000. The plan provides for 250 additional parking spaces in the business district. These will be made available by razing of numerous buildings and the construction of paved parking areas in the rear and adjacent to the main street business establishments.

The plan also contemplates joining the fronts of the 3 blocks of Clinton Avenue stores with a wide permanent emphyse. There is to be new lighting on the street, a change in traffic pattern, proper planting of shrubs and flowers and "relaxation areas" for pedestrian shoppers.

Proponents and opponents of the plan will thrash out their differences once more. Financing is a sticky problem.

Proponents of the plan suggest that 80 percent of the $404,000 be raised through a special assessment district in the 12-block downtown area—with benefits assessed on the proximity to the main street and adjacent parking lots.

Assessments would be against land—not against personal property represented by store inventories and fixtures. This involves in many cases tacit agreement by tenants to accept a part of the assessment through rental increases.

The special assessment would conceivably pay the cost of acquiring property, razing buildings and paying parking lots. The remaining 20 percent of the cost would come from the city's general fund and would pay for improvements such as sidewalks, curbing, alley paving, lighting and planting which are usually regarded as a city-wide responsibility.

What will the average store owner's cost amount to under this plan? It's impossible to estimate accurately until a special assessment district has been drawn up, costs of land acquisition have been definitely determined and parking lots have been let for building demolition and contracts let construction.

Purely on the basis of well-informed guesswork, it is probable that the owner of a 25 by 150 foot property on the main street and immediately adjacent to an improved parking area would pay in the neighborhood of $5,000. City ordinance permits the spreading of this total assessment over a 10-year period.

Urge Him to Run

Local GOP Lauds Romney

Charlevoix County Republicans last week unanimously endorsed Gov. George Romney and urged him to run for re-election.

A formal resolution supporting the governor was adopted at the party's annual spring convention in the County Building.

THE RESOLUTION LAUDS Gov. Romney for his leadership in ironing out Michigan's legislative snarl and re-uniting citizens in a common effort.

Romney was cited for restoring Michigan's image as a dynamic state, and rebuilding confidence in Michigan, at home and elsewhere. The governor was also credited with the state's new-found economic health and the vitality of the Republican party in Michigan.

County Republicans at the convention pledged to actively campaign for Romney if he will seek re-election. They were reported confident the Gov. can win another term.

Mrs. Grover Genett, Charlevoix County Republican Committee secretary reports no position was taken in presidential candidates. The convention did not endorse Nelson Rockefeller, Barry Goldwater, or any other candidate. This, she said, may be discussed later.

A SPECIAL COUNTY Republican meeting will probably be called later this spring, or early in the summer to discuss campaign strategy and candidates for county and state races.

Charlevoix County delegates to the May 9 State Republican Convention in Grand Rapids were selected.

Arthur Speltz, county chairman, will lead the Charlevoix delegates at the spring convention. Other delegates are Harvey Varnum, prosecutor; Marshall Soyles, editor of the East Jordan News-Herald; and Robert Lieberman, Charlevoix Businessman.

Alternates to the state convention are Mrs. George Lusk of Charlevoix, Ben Ellis of Boyne City, Mrs. Marshall Soyles of East Jordan and Edward Shanahan of Charlevoix.

REPUBLICANS AT LAST week's county convention moved to direct delegates to the state convention to endorse Mrs. Arthur Rouse of Boyne City as one of Michigan's representatives at the national convention this summer.

Delegates to the national GOP convention—where the party's presidential candidate will be selected—are named at the spring state spring convention. Michigan sends 48 delegates to the national convention.

The resignation of Mrs. Jay Hite of East Jordan as county

GOP committee vice chairman was accepted. Mrs. George Lusk of Charlevoix was elected to fill Mrs. Hite's term.

Telegrams to the county committee from Gov. Romney and Republican State Central Committee chairman Art Ehlert were read.

On Each Family

$1,000 Tax Bite

BOYNE CITY — The average Charlevoix County family will pay $1,000 income tax to Uncle Sam by April 15, according to figures released by the Treasury Dept.

The federal government's tax collectors expect Charlevoix County residents to pay a total of $3,391,000 income tax for 1963. The tax deadline is April 15.

THIS IS BASED ON A population of 13,427 (1960 census) and an average family size of four, means each family will pay approximately $1,000, or $247 per person.

The City of Charlevoix's estimated 600 families will pay more than $600,000 income tax.

In 1962 Charlevoix County put $3,001,000 in the U. S. income tax kitty. Better working conditions and higher pay checks are the reasons given for the county paying $290,000 more in 1963.

Michigan taxpayers will pay some $2.5 billion in the federal coffers by income tax deadline day. Of this Charlevoix County's $3,201,000 will be 0.12 percent.

The total income tax take around the nation will exceed $47 billion.

Navy Firing in Lake Michigan

Air and surface firing will be practiced by U. S. Navy reserve ships and planes during April, May and June in an area of Lake Michigan west of Beaver Island.

The firing area will extend from near Manistique in the Upper Peninsula to just above N. Manitowish Island. Mariners are being asked to use extreme caution if they cannot avoid entering the area. Detailed maps of the firing range are available from the U. S. Army Engineer District 150 Michigan Ave., Detroit.

THE FIRING TESTS will be conducted on April 1, 2, 13, 16, 29 and 30; May 5, 6, 13, 14, 27 and 28; June 3, 4, 10 and 11.

NASCAR 500 milers!

ATLANTA, April 5: In a blazing exhibition of total performance, ace driver Fred Lorenzen piloted his specially modified '61 Ford to a stunning victory in the Atlanta "500" before a cheering crowd of 75,000 spectators.

This victory marks the 11th time that Ford has captured a NASCAR stock car event of 500 miles or more starting in May, 1962.

In the past two years, tough, dependable Ford-built cars have carved out an incredible history of victories in virtually every kind of automotive event possible—from stock car races to economy runs, from rallies to endurance tests.

This is the dramatic way to show that Fords have changed... and the sure way to be certain they keep on changing.

Ford enters special cars in open competition, in addition to its extensive laboratory and test track programs, because competition provides an intensity of testing that no proving ground alone can provide.

The lessons Ford has learned in racing have already led directly to such refinements as a stronger rear axle, streamlined "fastback" styling, better brakes and an improved ignition system.

Because Ford enters open competition, the cars at your Ford Dealer's are stronger, better handling, safer and thrifter in the long run. They're built for total performance.

TO HELP THE BLIND HELP THEMSELVES Bell System scientists have introduced a new kind of telephone switchboard which can be operated by a blind attendant. This opens up new job opportunities for the blind. The new device converts the light signals of the conventional switchboard to sound signals. Other recent Bell System devices to aid the handicapped include a volume-control handset for the hard of hearing, and an electronic larynx for those who have lost the power of speech.

into your life! A Princess telephone, of course... the littlest and loveliest of them all. Any room is the room for your Princess phone. Where it's dark, the diol lights up. Where space is scarce, its compact size fits beautifully. And there's a color to catch or complement any decor. To welcome a Princess phone into your life, just call our Business Office - or ask your Telephone Man.

ASLEEP ON THE JOB!

Ordinarily there's no more tireless friend or servant than your family telephone. It works around the clock, year in and year out. One of the few exceptions is when you make it "go to sleep on the job" - by failing to hang up the receiver properly. When that happens, friends can't reach you on the phone. So whenever you hear a buzzing sound coming from your phone, check it at once. Someone must have forgotten to put the receiver back on the "cradle," where it belongs.

Teachers Outline Views On Results of Tenure

The Charlevoix County district of the Michigan Education Assn. (MEA) has issued a bulletin largely devoted to a discussion of tenure.

The text of the news-letter's two page report on tenure prepared by county teachers is reprinted here:

"PHASE ONE OR - the petition campaign for tenure was completed in record time, on November 26.

"Phase two, legislative enactment, was completed on March 12, with a 20-11 vote in the Senate and a 61-11 vote in the House.

"Phase three, implementation, is next. It will require careful study and close attention to detail. A communication from the MEA dated March 26, says: 'Pursued in every school district should begin NOW to make a thorough study of their personnel policies. These should be reviewed, studied, revised and supplemented to meet the needs of operation under tenure. In conjunction with policy revision a careful study of the Tenure Act, its provisions and its processes is a must.'

"Tenure will take effect ninety days after the final adjournment of the Legislature, which will bring it in the last part of August, 1964.

COUNTY AND Intermediate School Administrators have been advised to instruct all school superintendents to issue their usual contracts for next year.

"When tenure goes into effect, each teacher who has rendered two or more years of service in the same school district, will immediately be under tenure, unless the local controlling board by unanimous vote refuses to appoint the teacher to tenure. Being refused tenure still would not affect the teacher's contract for the ensuing year.

"Tenure, as administered now, does not apply to annual assignments for extra duty, nor to a specific assignment on the staff.

"Of course there is in force at present a set of tenure regulations in the state, under which the sixty school systems which already have tenure have been operating. These may be amended and improved from time to time.

"LET US NOT forget that much of the credit for passing tenure through the Legislature goes to the Senate Education Committee, of which our Senator, Thomas Schweigert is a member. Senator Schweigert voted in the affirmative. Our representative, Don Gordon, voted no, but he said he did not vote against tenure, but rather, for the matter to be voted upon by the people. Various other members of the Legislature felt the same way.

"Glen Shepard, editor of the Charlevoix Courier, wrote in his March 19, issue, '... some 325,000 people (600 in Charlevoix county) signed petitions asking that tenure be brought to a vote of the people. This request was refused. The Legislature chose to ignore the clear desire of the public to vote on the issue.' May we differ with Mr. Shepard? The petitions read 'We, the undersigned, residents of Michigan, hereby respectfully petition for said initiation of legislation to be set forth in full on the opposite side of this petition.' The reverse side of the petition was headed 'Initiative measure to be presented to the Legislature for initiation of legislation.' Legislation was initiated and legislation was accomplished. Referendum was not asked for but would have been the next step had the legislators not voted for tenure when they signed the petitions so willingly.

"Mr. Shepard also said 'In this column's experience in school districts employing hundreds of teachers and in those having less than a handful, it has never seen a teacher railroaded.' If 'this column' has never known a teacher to be refused a contract at the end of the year without due warning and explanation, then 'this column' just isn't very aware of what goes on around schools."

Trackmen Nab Win In First Outing

The Charlevoix Rayders host Traverse City St. Francis in a track meet at 4 p.m. next Tuesday in Kipke Field.

This will be the local track meet of the season.

COACH DEL TERRILL said early this week, after seeing his contenders on the track and in action in field events for the first time, that he was pleased with performance adding that "several of the boys looked very good, especially after having been outside only three nights before going against Boyne City."

He went on to say the team definitely lacks great speed but that the sprinters make up for this lack with desire and oomph.

Sixty-two upper as well as lower classmen have been reporting regularly and three more boys, who show promise, came out last week he reported.

Next week's meet with the Traverse City Gladiators will be followed by another at Petoskey at 3:30 p.m. Thursday before the Rayders travel to Oscoda to participate in the big Eastern Michigan-Oscoda Relays on Saturday, April 25.

Sundew Report

Busy Spring for Cutter

Notes from the log of the Coast Guard Cutter Sundew:

Since our last report, the Sundew has made up for a somewhat idle winter. We have finally engaged in some ice breaking work; in fact, we undertook more ice breaking missions in the first few days of April than during the entire preceding winter period.

Monday, 29 March, started with a w-b-w assisting the fishing trawler Jackle II and Jennie II through heavy ice of the merchandise to open water. We then proceeded to Grays Reef Passage where we reset a small buoy which had been forced off station by drifting ice. The buoy, reset, we took departure for Little Traverse Bay to break out the Penn Dixie Co. buoy C-1, dock in anticipation of the SS John L. A. Galster's arrival on Wednesday.

Having returned to Charlevoix the previous night, the next morning found us loading more buoys for temporary storage at Mackinaw City. Arriving there at 8 p.m. that evening we off-loaded our buoys and set out again for Little Traverse Bay, leaving to in the ice at 11 p.m. to await daylight.

THE NEXT MORNING, April 1st, we broke our way into Harbor Springs harbor and began to break a track for the Galster from her berth to the Penn Dixie dock. At noon we escorted the Galster out of Harbor Springs, finally getting her "boided down" at Penn Dixie at 3 p.m. that afternoon. Returning to Charlevoix that evening, we were again underway to assist the Galster the next morning. By 11 a.m. she was well on her way and we proceeded to Beaver Island to break out St. James harbor.

The next evening, 3 April, we were underway for Mackinaw City as a part of "Operation Spring Ice," but the following morning we were diverted to assist the fishing tug Eagle which had lost its propeller in heavy ice off Grays Reef Light. Taking her in tow, we proceeded to Charlevoix, departing again the next morning, the 4th for ice operations in the St. Mary's river.

We entered the river at 2:30 p.m. Sunday and found very severe ice conditions. After widening the channel we anchored for the night near the mouth of the river. At daylight on Monday we voyaged three tankers, the Imperial, the Sisco, Imperial London, and the Imperial Windsor, through heavy ice to Saint Ste. Marie. Leaving our charges at the Soo, we returned to the mouth of the river to break out the Detroit coal dock. The next morning we were underway for Lansing Shoals Light to escort the USS Worland (PCE-84-5) and the USS Lumar (PCE-89-1) through the Straits. After completing the escort, we set for Beaver Island in order to break out the harbor once again at daylight the next day.

AT 7:30 P.M. ON 8 April we finished our ice breaking at Beaver Island.

On the first of March, Da Heinicke was promoted to Chief Engineer third class, left us the 3rd of March, bound for Alaska. Larry Chelcraft, Fireman reported aboard on the 28th, he had previously been a member of the USCGT Chatham (T-30) Honolulu. On the first of April, Ferryman, Radioman second class, reported to us from the 7 Station at Traverse City. Mi. Miller, Electronics Technician third class, checked in on April 4. He was previously stationed at the Loran Station on Adak Island.

New Tars and Stows: On the 16th of March, Way and Glenda LaFrogan, began the proud parents of a boy, Lay, 4, who weighed in at 19 pounds.

OUTDOOR RAMBLING

With GLEN SHEPPARD

For rather impractical purposes the fishing season is open. The weather and waves have always been there, there are plenty of impaled fishermen.

UPWARDS OF 100 men and women have been found at times in the last few weeks of East Jordan trying to catch onto the "spoon-bait" walleyes running in the Jordan River from the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix. Some of the fish were a few pounds.

The special early season on trout in the mouth of the Bear River in Petoskey attracted crowds of 50 or 60.

If there are going to be perch runs—which seems more likely than in recent years—they will start in a couple of weeks, observers predict.

Police Chief Joe Smith said he looks for the perch runs to start when the mushrooms are ready.

Meete Scott of Ironston says the perch are there now. Ice fishermen were angling off Scott's Landing as late as last week and getting big catches of heavy perch. When the ice is out, maybe this weekend, Scott expects boat fishermen to do as well as ice fishermen.

THOUGH DON PETERSON, district fisheries biologist says it's a little early for small, some trickles that indicate runs are about to begin have been seen in area creeks. Peterson figures this could be a reasonably good spring for small. Warm rains could start the runs any day.

Among the creeks (thought you called that creek until I was 20 years old) where Peterson reports very light small runs have already been spotted and good runs may develop any day are Advance, Leeb, Marion, Dyer and the creek on the east side of Oyster Bay. The Boyne river may also get some action.

So far this spring walleye fishing at East Jordan has received by far the most attention. You might almost call it a debauchery. If they don't know who they're talking to, many fishermen at East Jordan are openly making a joke of it. And they've been violating even more openly.

BECAUSE SPAWNING walleyes are not inclined to feed, many of the fishermen have resorted to smuggling. There's no way to determine how many of the big walleyes that have been brought about landing were deliberately foul hooked in this summer.

Peterson points out the special season on walleyes at East Jordan carried restrictions against fishing with anything but a single pointed hook and any closer than 200 yards from the M 32 bridge.

In spite of this fishermen are commonly seen dragging large treble hooks across the bottom and fishing right under the bridge. Attempts to net walleyes under the bridge were noted last Saturday evening.

Clare Staley recalls the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club was a prime mover in getting the Conservation Dept. to plant walleyes in the South Arm, on the grounds that after a few years they would reproduce themselves and maintain a permanent population.

BOTH STALEY and Peterson point out the illegal fishing could mean an end to dreams of permanent wealth fishing in Lake Charlevoix.

Due to manpower cutbacks, and other laws that have more nuisance than conservation value, Conservation Dept. officers reportedly have not been able to develop enough time to enforce regulations at East Jordan.

Peterson says the walleye fishing should get better for those SPORTSMEN who believe in saving something for other generations—when the fish come back down the river after spawning.

Only an occasional trout has been taken from the mouth of the Bear River. At least one was in the eight pound class. Successful anglers have been using salmon egg clusters and sticks.

ONE INTERESTING comment overheard near the Lake St. Ignace on the Bear River came from a veteran angler who said "These better do all the fishing they can for 20 years."

Thwart Effort To Decide on Ironton Ferry

Supervisors Asked to Settle On Plan for Ferry's Future

An effort to force the County Board of Supervisors to decide on the fate of the Ironton Ferry was thwarted last week.

Supervisors chose to put off the question of the ferry's future until a day of reckoning arrives. The ferry carries passengers and vehicles across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

TWO VETERANS of county government attempted to bring the issue to a head. They are William Sanderson, Eveline Township (Ironton) Supervisor, and Sam Rogers, 85 year old county road commissioner.

Both men told the board a decision will eventually have to be made. Either the ferry will have to be closed, a new ferry purchased, or a bridge built.

Rogers, who has served on the Road Commission since 1925, said construction of a new ferry and ramps will probably cost approximately $200,000.

Ralph Hamilton, Road Commission secretary, estimated that "in very rough figures" a satisfactory bridge could cost $2 million.

WM. SANDERSON
Wants Decision Now

"HOW LONG can we postpone the inevitable?" Sanderson asked the Board of Supervisors in urging them to make a decision last week.

"It won't be long before we are confronted with either closing, or rebuilding, the ferry," Rogers said.

The ferry issue is an annual problem for the supervisors. It is operated by the Road Commission for the board, at a loss.

Several supervisors objected to continuing the ferry operation at a deficit. Last year the deficit was $8,553. The Board of Supervisors and Road Commission each pay half.

PAYING CUSTOMERS at the ferry (25-cents a trip) contributed $8,039 toward its operation. A total of 39,893 vehicles crossed the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix on the ferry.

Deficits on the ferry since the 25-cent toll was started in 1955 range from $3,316 to $11,063.

"We cannot continue to operate the ferry at a loss every year, that's for sure," John Kujawski, Boyne City supervisor, said.

However, the deficit issue was settled by continuing as in the past. Suggestions that the toll be hiked to 50

City Employees Petition to Get Pension Plan

Petitions requesting a retirement program for Charlevoix city employees were presented to city councilmen Monday evening.

City Supt. James Taylor said the petitions were signed by more than 90 percent of the city's 40 employees.

COUNCILMEN, admitting they were guessing, estimated the cost of a retirement program for all employees at between $4,000 and $28,000 a year. They declared they do not have enough information to make a qualified estimate.

Other highlights of Monday's four hour session included:

- Reappointing all city officials.
- Naming City Council Committees.
- A request from city employees that they receive a cash bonus or extra vacation if they do not use sick leave days.

On the retirement program question councilmen decided to ask a representative from the State employees retirement program office to attend a meeting with them and outline costs and benefits.

MAYOR E. D. HAWLEY said he does not think councilmen would approve any program as costly as retirement without asking the people to vote extra millage to pay for it.

Thirty five of the city's employees would qualify for the program. The state plan calls for the city and employees to pay a portion.

City workmen are now on Social Security.

On the request to let employees take vacation, or a cash bonus in lieu of unused sick leave, councilmen moved to consider purchasing a health and accident insurance policy instead. This would pay employees for days actually out of work under a doctor's care.

HAWLEY SAID sick leave was not "intended as a bonus, but to help employees if they are really ill."

All six councilmen unanimously approved Mayor Hawley's recommended appointments. They are: City Supt. — James Taylor, City Attorney — John Michael, Street Commissioner — Leo Alford.

Police Chief and Harbor Master — Joseph Smith, Fire Chief — John Curtis, assistant, Pat Martin, City Assessor — Larry Feindt, Airport Manager — Joe McPhillips.

CITY SURVEYOR—Mary Feindt, Health Officer—Dr. Robert Martin.

Committees appointed — with the name of the councilman who will act as chairman listed first—are: Finance, Budget and Licenses—William Feichtman, Robert Neil and Robert Gill.

Utilities, Streets and Airport—Gill, Dor Parsel and Feichtman.

Police, Fire and Ordinance—Neil, Jerry Whitley, Dr. Walter

Boy Scouts Celebrate Birthday at Petoskey

Nearly 200 Charlevoix County Boy Scouts strut their stuff Saturday, April 25, to show Scouts who came before them what today's youth is capable of.

Scenic Trails Council, Boy Scouts are putting their all into a 25th birthday celebration at Petoskey High School Saturday according to Guy Molby, area scout executive. They're calling it a Scout O-Rama. The Silver Anniversary of local Scouting is open to the public from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m.

THE BOYS ARE preparing more than 25 booths displaying American youth in action through the Scouting program. Molby declares, Tickets (50c) can be bought from any Boy Scout, Explorer or Cub Scout.

Charlevoix County Units participating are:

Charlevoix — 17 Sea Scouts under leader Bob Somerville will present a booth on navigation; Charlevoix Cub Pack 11, with 37 boys, under Doug Wilks, a booth on games; Boy Scout Troop 11, 41 boys, under Louis Edwards, cooking.

Walton Lake — Cub Pack 59, 21 boys, under Don Goodwin, gardening; Boy Scout Troop 59, 18 boys, under Arthur Laurie, seamanship.

BOYNE CITY — Boy Scout Troop 19, 42 boys, under Karl Mueller, with a booth on the compass.

Boyne Falls — Cub Pack 53, with 14 boys, under Joe Bauman, a booth on pigs.

Walleye Births?

The Conservation Department will like the assistance of Charlevoix sportsmen to determine if walleyes planted in Lake Charlevoix are reproducing.

The walleye planting program started nine years ago. In that time officer Julius O'Brien reports the department has not had any evidence they are reproducing.

IF ANYONE CATCHES a walleye under 15 inches long the department would like to examine the fish, or its scales.

County Computer

Charlevoix County supervisors last week joined the swing to automation.

The Board of Supervisors voted 2-3 to buy an $11,560 computer to prepare tax bills.

THE ELECTRONIC machine will do the computing and typing of all county tax bills.

Pat Curtis, equalization director points out this not only will insure accuracy and speed. It will also save township treasurers hundreds of hours of scratching away with adding machines and pens.

It is expected an arrangement will be made for each township to pay a small fee for having its tax roll prepared on the computer.

Alaska Relief

A contribution to the Alaska VFW Auxiliary's earthquake relief project was made by the Charlevoix VFW Auxiliary last week.

The local group also started making plans for its white elephant sale.

Band Returns With State's Top Honor

For the 10th time since 1950, the Charlevoix High School band, under the direction of Clarence A. Odmark, won a coveted blue ribbon, or I rating, in the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Festival at Lansing Saturday.

It was the 17th time since 1947 that the local band competed on the state level.

THE 87-PIECE musical group was given a I rating by two concert judges and the sight-reading judges denoting the "best conceivable performance in its class of competition." The third concert judge awarded a II rating; however, the final rating averaged out to a I rating.

As might be expected when a band receives a top rating, the judges' comments were high in praise of the group. While mostly technical in nature, some of the judges' comments include "A very fine band."

"Certainly one of the several good ones we've heard today," Arthur C. Hills, Grand Valley State College; "The strong points of this band are style, spirit and overall sound," Robert Fink, Western Michigan University and the only judge to award the group a II rating; "The band played with good style and taste...Well done," Ernest Caneva, Superintendent of Music at Lockport (Ill.) high school; "Generally, this band did a good musical job," Douglas Campbell, Michigan State University who served as sight-reading judge.

Here's what Collins has to say to yachtsmen throughout the English-speaking world:

"To those who sail to the Channel from southern Lake Michigan, Charlevoix has become a place where one checks over gear and supplies, because within reason one can get about anything necessary. City Sets Early Spring Clean-Up

An early spring and lack of rain spurred City Council Monday night to launch Charlevoix's Clean-Up Week a week earlier than usual.

Councilmen unanimously decided to call Clean-Up Week May 4-9.

THE CITY USUALLY holds its spring clean-up drive in the second or third week in May. However, councilmen pointed out, the early spring and lack of rain have created conditions favorable to getting yards and houses dressed up early.

City trucks will make their traditional irregular pickups of trash, branches, etc., from the front of all city homes and businesses throughout the week.

Mayor E. D. Hawley urged people to take advantage of this collection service by cleaning up all natural and other unwanted and unsightly items from their yard and homes.

Only if everyone does their best to participate in clean-up week can the city live up to its name "Charlevoix the Beautiful," he reminded residents.

WEATHER PERMITTING, the mayor suggested homeowners consider painting and other house beautification during clean-up week. Local hardware stores, lumber yards and other merchants can be counted on to cooperate with homeowners in every way possible, the mayor pointed out.

Visitors will soon be coming to Charlevoix, he said. By going all out for clean-up week the city will present its best face when they arrive, without a last minute effort after the busy summer season.

COMMENT — Our weather has been wonderfully unpredictable. Dreary, rainy mornings often turning into warm, clear evenings. The Lake Shore Rd. is open all the way to Fisherman's Island, drawing many people for evening rides and views of the sunset. There's no denying it. Spring's here.

CHARLEVOIX'S number one citizen last week unquestionably was Mrs. Agnes Engstrom, 112 W. Upright, who celebrated her 100th birthday April 15.

Not only did family friends crowd into the Lillian Hull home to congratulate her. Messages came from Gov. George Romney, President L. B. Johnson, Mayor E. D. Hawley and Third Ward Councilman Jerry Whitley.

The president sent a pre-printed form card, Gov. Romney sent a personal letter, special delivery.

The governor's letter showed he had taken a personal interest in the occasion, and added a touch of humor and honor. He wrote:

"With some people looking upon April 15 as a day of remorse, I'm sure the atmosphere is much more jovial, and rightly so, at 112 West Upright."

"I'm gratified to send my most sincere expression of arthlay greetings to Mrs. Charlevoix County, an honorary title—most befitting you upon this memorable occasion. . . ."

Mayor Hawley wrote: ". . . I'm sorry I was out of town and not able to help you celebrate such a momentous occasion."

"You are to be congratulated and I hope you continue in good health for years to come."

"It might interest you to know that my father celebrated his 95th birthday on February 19th. His name is an ents did not come to a vote of the board.

THIS DID NOT satisfy Sanderson, who is somewhat notoriously referred to by other supervisors as the ferry's champion. He wanted a decision made, and program, started to make sure the county is ready to replace the present ferry when it is no longer serviceable.

"I want to know if the board can't put some money aside every year for a new ferry?" Sanderson asked in trying to bring his pet issue to a head.

Rogers said the board could set aside $20,000 to $25,000 a year until it has enough to build a new ferry. The board, however, refused to commit itself to any action.

SEVERAL SUPERVISORS said they will insist the question of paying $200,000 for a new ferry be put to a vote of the people when it can no longer be avoided.

Supervisors can expect Sanderson to keep at them. But all indications are they will continue to wait and see until the ferry is literally halted.

As yet there is no proper head or shower at city dock, however. Mackinac and Frankfort have one, so will Charlevoix. Public transportation to pick up crew or guests is not too good. Train service was halted a couple of years back and there are only two buses north or south at this writing. There is a car rental, of course.

MRS. ROBERT (EDNA) Miller was the first person to arrive at the Courier office with a mushroom last week. In all justice it was he reported it was a pretty sorry specimen. There is some suspicion it came from the deep freeze. At least Edna has failed to prove otherwise.

MRS. OLIVE MCKENZIE is looking for some information from a sneaky friend.

Someone left a box of three plants and bag of ginger cookies on her doorstep at 110 Belvedere Ave. They did not leave so much as a note to say who they are. And now Mrs. McKenzie would like to have the cookie recipe, they were so good.

THOUGH THERE are at least two lengthy stories in this week's Courier concerning the Ironton Ferry, they fail to bring out some of the best laughs at last week's Board of Supervisors meeting.

After sitting through just about every hour of the supervisors proceedings, there is no doubt the ferry caused more fun than anything.

For instance. At one point William (Sandy) Sanderson, Eveline Township supervisor, complained that the "Road Ends Here" signs should be located so they can be seen before travelers see the ferry. His point being they often turn back before realizing the ferry is ahead.

Lee Sneath, Jr., Hayes Township and board chairman told Sandy, "I think the road does end there."

Clyde Cunningham, Marion Township, at another point when Sandy was abhorring the County's lack of interest in the ferry, good naturedly suggested Eveline Township would be welcome to take it over and call it its own.

Being a good sport Sandy seems to appreciate all the puns tossed at "his" ferry. He quotes tourists as telling others "There's a little ferry down there."

Cool on Beach

Second Ward City Councilman Robert Gill Monday evening requested the city do what it can to clean up coal that is strewn along the Lake Michigan beach from the Pine River to North Point.

Gill said a freighter jettisoned the coal last fall when it tried to enter the harbor with too heavy a load.

NEW SEE HOW GIBREL[®] PLANT GROWTH SUBSTANCE SPRAY PROGRAM FIGHTS THE EFFECTS OF CHERRY YELLOWS

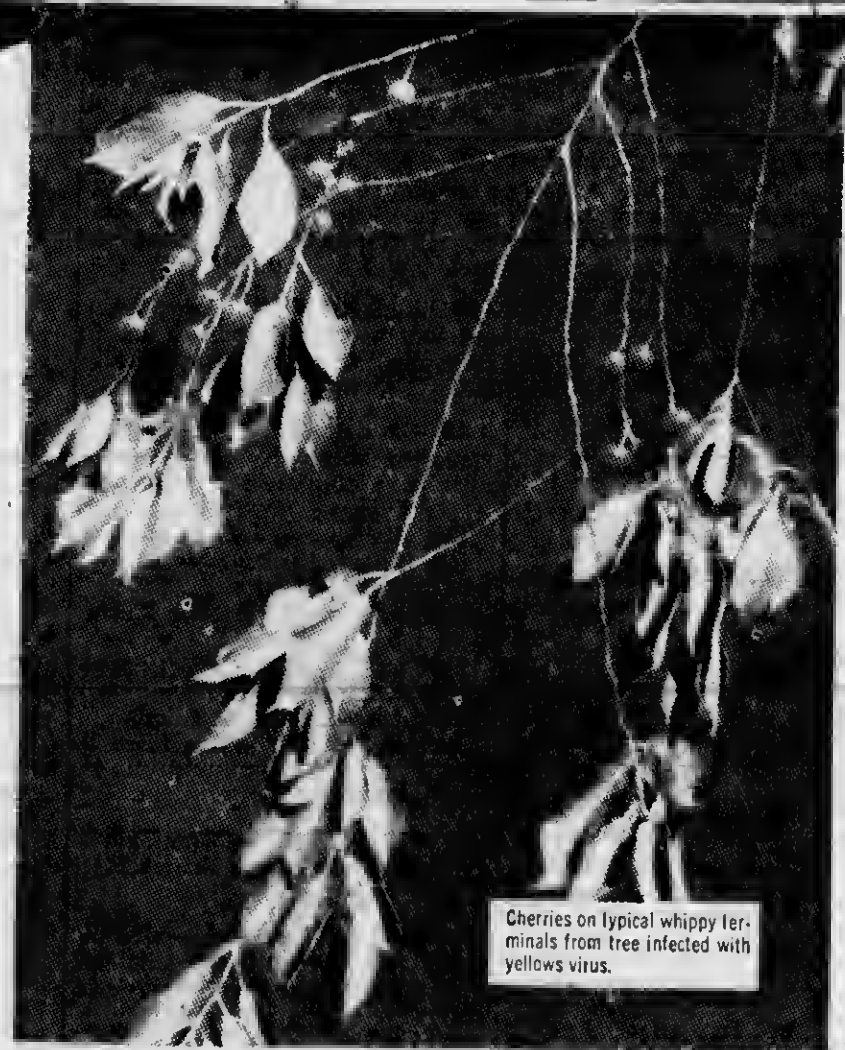

When cherry yellows virus attacks mature Montmorency orchards, wood growth becomes weak, whippy and unproductive. Terminals develop only flower buds without enough lateral leaf buds to provide normal development of fruit spurs and branches.

GIBREL counteracts the effect of cherry yellows virus. One post-bloom, shuck-split spray is all that is needed to provide satisfactory spur development. Just treat the current new growth so it will produce both leaves and fruit buds for growth the following spring. Thereafter, yearly treatment maintains the proper development of leaves, spurs, stiffer twigs and sturdier branches.

Plan now to spray part of your acreage 7-14 days after blossoming, with GIBREL Wettable Powder, or GIBREL Liquid with suitable adjuvants, according to label instructions. For detailed information, see your local dealer or write us for Folder C2.

Trackmen Continue To Show Power as Ready for Relays

The Charlevoix Rayder trackmen have a busy week ahead as they travel to Petoskey to take on the Northernmen at 3:30 today (Thursday), cross the state to participate in the Oscoda Relays at 10 a.m. Saturday and host Kalkaska here at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Last week the local lads racked up a lopsided win over East Jordan in a meet postponed until Thursday after high winds earlier in the week canceled out a triangular meet that was to have included Harbor Springs. Charlevoix dumped the visitors 92½ to 22½.

THE RAYDERS WERE scheduled to host Traverse City St. Francis on Tuesday.

In commenting on his team to date, Coach Del Terrill said that he has had a number of surprises... all of them good... with several boys who were never out for track before coming through with good times or distances, thus giving the team much needed depth. He went on to say the team sorely needs speed so must pick up points by its depth in other events.

A great deal of time has been devoted in recent days to various relay events in preparations for the big Oscoda Relays, which Charlevoix teams have never entered in the past. With a number of more than fair runners, Coach Terrill is working hard this week on what he hopes will be point-getting combinations.

Meanwhile, the 65 candidates continue conditioning exercises and try for better time or distance in all events.

IN LAST WEEK'S meet with East Jordan, the Rayders captured eleven of 13 events to walk away with honors in all but the 100 yard dash and the 440 yard run.

The results follow:
880 yd. relay: Charlevoix (Larry McBride, Gary Stutzman, Bruce Kroken and Jim Uhrick). Time: 1:41.9.

180 yd. low hurdles: Stutzman, Steve Wilson and Poole (EJ), tied for second place. Time: 26.2.

Shot put: Larry Edwards, Rick Grunch, Tom Maxwell. Distance: 43' 9 1/4".

High jump: Kroll, Nick DeYoung and Dave Smith tied for first at 5' 6".

Pole vault: McBride, Harold Fisher (EJ), Dave Smith and Steve Smith of Charlevoix and Butch Breaky and Ivan Sulak of East Jordan tied for third place. Height: 11' 6".

Broad jump: Kroken, Ron Crandall, Ted Weidman. Distance: 19' 5".

County Board Honors Uhrich
A resolution was passed last week honoring the late John A. Uhrich for his three years service on the County Board of Supervisors.

Unanimously passed by the board, the resolution commends Uhrich for his dedication and ability as a public servant.

UHRICH DIED last winter. In addition to representing Charlevoix's second ward on the board, he owned and managed the Cadillac Pontiac-Rambler auto sales here.

Harold Totten has replaced Uhrich on the board.

Leading Educator to Speak Here Saturday

Mrs. Daniel H. Trevitt, one of 19 persons in Michigan to receive the 1963 patriotic award given by the Freedoms Foundation in Valley Forge, Pa., has accepted an invitation to speak to educators and other interested persons at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Charlevoix high school cafeteria.

Charles A. Robinson, Superintendent of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District has announced Mr. Robinson made arrangements for Mrs. Trevitt's visit to Charlevoix while on a trip to the Midwest.

Mrs. Trevitt, whose interest in the youth of America is widely known, will speak on the subject "Education in the Space Age". Her talk is expected to parallel a high school course she evolved and taught and through which aimless and rebellious youth found purpose and direction. The course offered answers such critical problems as school dropouts, knife gangs and broken homes.

SHE IS PRESENTLY updating a guide for teachers in a course entitled "The American Heritage: Design for National Character," now being used experimentally in secondary studies classes on a second-year school level. It is the revision of a course she taught at Colton, Calif., high school which helped win the Freedom Foundation award for that school.

Mrs. Trevitt has been spending the past two years writing and speaking across the nation on behalf of the country's youth. She contends there are many evidences that this country has the greatest potential crop of youth of any nation in the history of man and that they long for a chance to spend their lives for things that count.

In extending an invitation to educators, social workers and others interested in youth, to hear her, Robinson said "We are indeed fortunate in having a person of Mrs. Trevitt's caliber speak to us... hope everyone will avail themselves of this opportunity to hear her at this time."

Mrs. Trevitt is speaking in southern Michigan Friday and after appearing here will depart on Sunday via plane for Atlanta, Ga., where she is scheduled to appear while touring the nation.

County Ok's Tentative $28,000 Budget Hike

Total Spending of $339,959 Seen

Supervisors Anticipate Cuts When Adopt Budget in October

A tentative 1965 Charlevoix County operating budget of $339,959 — $28,000 higher than this year — was adopted last week by the Board of Supervisors.

The tentative budget is tentatively balanced. IT CALLS FOR A county tax levy of $5.52 mills on the equalized valuation $53,239,400. This will raise $293,540.

The rest of the money comes from a balance carried over and other fees collected by county departments. Major reasons for the increase of $28,000 is an $11,000 tax roll computer purchased by the county, a $4,000 increase in Sheriff's Dept. and $3,500 increase in the welfare budget. The tentative budget adopted last week is not official. Supervisors will re-examine it at their October meeting to come up with the final 1965 budget. Traditionally the tentative budget is trimmed at the October meeting.

Dear Dick Affair

RICHARD DONALDSON

"ADJUST THE BILL"

Dear Dick: A painter who re-decorated my house, got the paint mixed to light on one wall and it doesn't quite match the rest. I got mad when he wanted me to pay full price, and he's threatening to sue. What shall I do?—PAINTER HATER.

DEAR PAINTER HATER: He should re-do, or adjust the bill. He'll find it tough collecting full price, just as you will, getting him to do it right. You don't get into mix-ups when you trade with PUFF'S APPLIANCE CENTER. Their famous Whirlpool appliances carry a WRITTEN warranty, plus PUFF'S service policy for years, and top service.—DICK.

If Someone Knocks On Your Door And Asks You To Change Your Heating System Ask Him These Questions

1. Will your heating fuel cost more than my present fuel oil heat?
2. Will they guarantee in writing that it won't cost more?
3. Will I have to install storm windows and insulation to meet your cost estimate?
4. Will my heating supply be cut off, if due to loss of job or sickness, I am unable to pay my heating bill when due; or, will it continue during the emergency period as is the present situation with my fuel oil supply.
5. Will you guarantee in writing the BTU content of the natural gas delivered?
6. By using modern oil heat, I am free to buy both fuel and service where I choose. If I am displeased with your heating fuel or service, can I change to another supplier?
7. My oil fuel gives me plenty of hot water fast? Can your system match this?
8. Will you give me a written guarantee that heating costs under your system will not exceed your estimate.

Permission Granted to Hold Deer Lake Level

BOYNE FALLS — Water level problems will soon be a thing of the past on Deer Lake.

The Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors last week put the issue in motion to stabilize Deer Lake's year-round water level.

THREE DEER LAKE residents appeared before the board with petitions signed by 37 of the lake's 50 property owners. They requested the board to ask the Conservation Dept. to determine a "normal" water level for the lake.

Addressing the board with the request were W. J. Peltis, Clarence Archer and Edward Hunt. They put up $100 to cover the preliminary costs of the project.

After the normal lake level has been determined, the Conservation Dept. will construct a dam to maintain it. Though the water may go somewhat higher than normal, it will not go lower.

Properly owners will pay for the dam on a special assessment district levy.

BEFORE THE DAM is built, a public hearing must be held and authorization given by Circuit Judge Charles Brown.

Peltis said signatures would have been obtained from all property owners, but several were away when the petitions were circulated.

Low water levels, Peltis told the board, cut all but paralyzing fishing on Deer Lake. It is one of the area's outstanding bass, pike and panfish lakes. The Conservation Dept. has a public fishing site on Deer Lake.

Deer Lake property owners have been trying to get the water level stabilized for five years, he added.

Nearly Sell Youth Camp for Back Tax

WALLOON LAKE — Camp Doggett has narrowly escaped being sold for delinquent taxes. Circuit Judge Charles L. Brown ordered the county not to sell the 35-acre and buildings at Camp Doggett. The camp was due to be sold at the May 5 delinquent tax sale.

CAMP DOGGETT'S real and personal property on the 35-acre Walloon Lake parcel is assessed at $35,500.

Judge Brown ordered the tax lien against the camp dismissed. He also decreed that the camp will not be taxed in the future.

THE CAMP WAS put on the state tax sale list because it had not paid property taxes in 1961, 1962 and 1963.

Camp president G. W. Blanchard early this month filed papers in Charlevoix County Circuit Court asking Judge Brown to dismiss the property tax lien. Blanchard, and camp attorney Nathaniel W. Stroup of Petoskey, contended the camp was exempt from taxation because it is a non-profit organization.

They pointed out that until 1961 the camp had never been assessed for taxes. Letters from the Dept. of Internal Revenue and Michigan Attorney General supported their position.

Boy Township Supervisor Chas. Leistik did not file an answer to Camp Doggett's suit. The township contends the camp should have presented its evidence that it shouldn't be taxed earlier.

Most Uniform in Michigan

Assessing State's Best

Charlevoix County residents have the most uniform tax assessments in Michigan, Russell (Pat) Curtis, county equalization director, announced at last week's Board of Supervisors meeting.

Curtis released county-wide taxable property valuation figures at the meeting. They were unanimously approved by the board.

THE FIGURES SHOW Charlevoix County property is 98.16 percent of being completely up to the state's equalization rate of 50 percent of true cash value. The closest county to Charlevoix is Grand Traverse at 89 percent, Curtis said.

Charlevoix County will have a total equalized valuation of $53,239,000 for the 1964 tax roll. This means property taxes will be levied on property assessed at this much value.

Of the total, $46,249,410 is real property, and $6,989,590 is personal property.

Only two townships in the county—Peaine and Wilson—are not up to the rest of the county on equalized valuation, Curtis said. He added Peaine Township Supervisor John Connaghan and Wilson Township Supervisor William Vrandan Jr. are bringing their property valuations up to the county and state level.

ACCORDING TO THE equalization figures approved by the supervisors, Charlevoix County's taxable property values increased $1,539,166 since last year.

The biggest township increase was Hayes, with an equalized valuation of $9,304,897, an increase of $178,175 over last year.

Boyne City had the biggest increase for a city with $199,756 more in property on the tax rolls this year than last, for a total equalized valuation of $5,919,095.

A breakdown of other cities and townships follows: CHARLEVOIX—Total equalized valuation, $8,301,888, increase $149,110, percent of county tax 15.5 percent of county total.

EAST JORDAN—Total equalized valuation, $4,373,745, an increase of $6,913.82 percent of county total.

BAY TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $1,966,204, an increase of $101,763, 3.6 percent of county total.

BOYNE VALLEY TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $2,231,700, an increase of $109,400, 4.1 percent of county total. CHANDLER TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $239,310, a decrease of $563, .44 percent of the county total.

CHARLEVOIX TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $2,031,953, an increase of $85,564, 3.8 percent of county total.

EVANGELINE TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $1,456,650, an increase of $157,223, 2.7 percent of county total.

EVELINE TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $5,719,510, an increase of $112,421, 10 percent of county total.

HUDSON TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $1,040,075, an increase of $37,671, 1.9 percent of county total.

MARION TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $1,329,992, an increase of $86,590, 2.4 percent of county total.

MELROSE TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $3,545,740, an increase of $101,240, 6.6 percent of county total.

NORWOOD TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $841,682, an increase of $9,463, 1.5 percent of county total.

PEAINE TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $591,160, an increase of $7,019, 1.1 percent of county total.

ST. JAMES TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $598,600, an increase of $18,664, 1.1 percent of county total.

SOUTH ARM TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation, $2,578,400, an increase of $58,057, 4.8 percent of county total.

WILSON TOWNSHIP—Total equalized valuation of $1,168,779, an increase of $120,900, 2.1 percent of county total.

These figures reveal Chandler Township is half as big as the next smallest township—Peaine and is the only township to lose valuation in 1963.

The equalized valuation figures, according to local assessors (township supervisors) and Curtis, indicate as nearly as possible one-half of a municipality's true cash value. This, however, does not include churches, schools and other non-taxable property.

At Daytona, a team of four specially equipped '64 Comets each traveled day and night 100,000 miles at over 105 miles per hour—an unequalled feat of stamina and durability.

In Africa, Comet showed its stamina again in "the wildest ride on earth"—the monsoon-swept East African Safari Rally. 94 cars started. Only 21 finished the run—two of them were Comets.

Is it any surprise that Comet sales are up to almost double last year's? Comet proves what it can do. After 100,000 miles at Daytona, one of these special Comets has traveled another 31,000 and is still going strong. Then rally-equipped Comets slogged through 3,188 miles of African mud, rocks and jungle—the first to carry America's colors in the world's toughest car event. Want more reasons? Our School Taxes Are Worth Support

LAST WEEK'S DECISION by the Charlevoix Board of Education to ask voters for a three-quarter mill increase in the overall school tax levy was, in our opinion, a judicious one.

Unfortunately the millage proposal is a difficult one to explain. This, in turn, makes it easy for opponents to cause confusion and whip up a snake screen. We hope this does not happen.

PERHAPS THE most important point for voters to keep in mind is that the average homeowner will not experience more than a $3.75 tax increase if the millage request goes through. Some will pay less, and others considerably more. However, it seems reasonable to assume that those who will pay less cannot afford any more or they would have more money invested in a home and property. Likewise, those with homes having more than the approximately $5,000 average valuation can afford to pay more.

If the school levy tax is not authorized by voters June 8, it will mean the average homeowner will pay $7.50 less in school taxes this year. This is because part of the millage being sought was levied last year, but cannot be this December, because voters only approved it for one year.

If all of this sounds contradictory, it isn't. The basic, most important, fact is that approval of the millage request will only mean an increase of 75 cents for every $1,000 of state equalized valuation.

IT IS ALSO WELL to keep in mind that Charlevoix's total school levy this year—if the request is approved by voters—will only be $14.65 per $1,000 of valuation.

If this sounds steep compare it to other items in your budget. Then ask yourself which is more important? Education of future Charlevoixians? We think so!

Many Michigan school districts levy up to 30 mills. In some districts where school taxes approach, or surpass this figure, seldom reject increased tax proposals. And, don't forget, all Michigan school taxes are levied on state equalized valuation.

Charlevoix is already deeply proud of its school system. Our young people continually excel in state and regional events. Outside observers heap spirited praise on the system.

WE NOT ONLY SHOULD be thankful for this, but should realize that we are getting it at cut-rate prices. Our 13.90 mill tax levy of last year looks pretty scant compared to others where the levy is 30 mills.

Which isn't to say we should make an effort to see how much we can pay for school taxes, or make a status symbol of high taxes. Rather it is evidence that we are not over-taxed and are getting a good return for our investment in education.

Whippersnappers retired couples should not be burdened with heavy school tax obligations warrant consideration. However, this is not a matter that can be controlled by local school districts. To penalize our children because of it is indeed an injustice.

Need 2 Justices

THE COURIER FOUND last week it was in error on a technical point. City Councilmen, we learned, do not have authority, under the Fourth Class City law, to appoint a Justice of the Peace to fill the term Justice Connolly sought election to, but refused to accept.

We are, indeed, sorry to have passed incorrect information on to our readers. We do not, however, feel that the City Council's lack of authority to correct the injustice of Charlevoix's only having one justice—when it is supposed to have two—changes our editorial position of last week.

The same laws that limit the Council's authority say that Charlevoix is supposed to have two justices. Justice Connolly has deliberately defied that law.

Would Return City-Surplus

TO THE EDITOR:

See where Charlevoix has a surplus of funds, and right quick, the City Fathers are confused where to spend this money, suggestions to build a place where seamen can congregate and take a shower, etc., may I say I believe we have motels, hotels, and rooming houses which have baths, if he says over, if not he can get a bath where he stays. Such a lounge would induce all the tramps, bums and rogues to make it a perfect house for gangs to meet.

The topic of increasing teachers' salary, the salary which the teachers get is as good as any other persons figuring the time they devote in teaching. The shortage of teachers would not occur if the teachers were not expected to have such high degrees to get a position to teach even the lower grades—why should a teacher be compelled to have a college degree to teach the first to eighth grades, when an eighth grade is sufficient?

CONSIDERING THE amount of time a teacher actually works in comparison with other positions, they receive too much as is. If the City Fathers want to know what to do with ALL THAT MONEY, let me suggest you return it to the people you received it from in the first place, namely the taxpayer, reduce his taxes.

Or since it where it will draw interest and take it out on that rainy day, when it can be spent for something useful, and neces-

If the 70 degree temperature and bright sunshine aren't proof that spring is officially here, I'd like to present even more... in the form of a lovely little bouquet of wild Mayflowers... the first of the season... brought to me by the same guy who's brought this criterion of another season to me for years and years... Bob Bergmann.

No one ever knows exactly where he finds them but I always get the first... this year it was a sizeable bouquet of the most fragrant and colorful blossoms we've seen in many a day... but then, these are always the most beautiful of the year, because they're the first...

A COUPLE OTHER signs of spring have been brought to my attention... one sighted at the first hole of the Belvedere golf course on Sunday where a lone golfer, garbed in Bermuda shorts and the janitorial of caps was knocking those little white balls all over the 18 hole course which he had to himself... In the event you missed this early bird he was Dr. Larry Grate... enjoying the balmy breezes and the great out of doors.

A couple of my friends called to tell me about the first pleasure craft to enter the harbor this season... The first was Dr. Walter Hoffmann, who's being very serious about his new duties as second ward alderman, who called me when the 46 ft. Roma cruiser, Automobile 15, blew for the bridge at 1:33 p.m. Thursday, enroute from Milwaukee to Detroit... the craft docked at the Fairport for gasoline and other supplies before continuing on its way, according to Phil Lawrence... who reported its arrival and called again Friday morning to tell me of its return when it ran into heavy ice in Greys Reef Passage... The skipper, Capt. Fred Hankwitz, and his brother Paul, who made up the crew were taking the cruiser and its cargo, tools for special purposes and the machinery to make them, to Detroit where they were to be displayed... Incidentally, the craft was owned by the Russell T. Gilman Corp. of Milwaukee...

Remember a couple years ago when the shores of Lake Michigan—especially along the eastern shore—were littered with those small fish of the shad family known as alewives... I never happened to see any of them but it seems they are a beautiful little fish with no earthly reason for being except to clutter up things... I've been told they made their way into fresh water via the St. Lawrence Seaway, liked the new environment and proceeded to multiply like mad... Last week it was reported that something was cutting off the water supply in one section of the city of Chicago by leaking in whatever it is that water drains through into the water works... And what was it? None other than these miserable little alewives—millions of 'em... And, as a result, everyone in the area had to boil the water for 10 minutes and all that type of thing... First came the lamprey eels and now the alewives as a by-product of the seaway...

This country said goodbye to one of its greatest soldiers recently... Perhaps one of the most controversial of them all, he was a great showman, a great soldier, a dedicated man... Probably no one in this country will ever again be so dedicated that he will be willing to give as much as this man—General MacArthur... He was not one of my favorite people but one cannot help but appreciate what he did... His death marks the end of an era... that started ever so long ago at West Point and never once wavered... Those of us who lived through World War II will always remember his promise to the people of the Philippines... "I shall return"... and return he did...

It will be years before his impact on history will be evaluated... but you can bet your bottom dollar that he's going to be ranked about the great...

"Old soldiers never die... they just fade away" was a statement made by him when he came back to this country after being relieved of his duties in the early 1950's... And fade away he did... with a final service as simple as his career had been flamboyant...

Charlevoix always had a special interest in General MacArthur for his wife... a gracious lady if ever there was one... had visited here many times as a young girl and woman... She was a friend of Beth and Ruth Hammett who once lived in the house the Bob Miles now occupy. She would visit them during the summer for all they attended the same school, as it was told to me... No doubt there are people around the community who met her on one of her many visits here...

IT'S YOUR OPINION THAT COUNTS

Supervisors' Candid Views on Ferry

THE MEN WHO must eventually decide if Charlevoix County will have its Ironton Ferry spent considerable time discussing the prospects for the future last week.

Members of the County Board of Supervisors appear to be fully aware that someday they are going to be faced with this question: Will the county appropriate up to a quarter-million dollars to buy a new ferry and ramps? Or when the present ferry has seen the end of its days—which some estimate is coming in the next few years—will the ferry service across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix be discontinued?

THE COURIER POLLED 11 supervisors to get their views for this week's "It's Your Opinion That Counts" survey.

If it could be said the 11 supervisors (there are 25 on the entire board) are generally agreed on one thing concerning the ferry, it is that they will put off making a decision as long as possible. As long as the present ferry will continue to operate supervisors interviewed by the Courier seem to be determined to wait and see what the future brings.

HUGH GRAHAM, South Arm Township Supervisor, said "My people are sick of it (the annual ferry operating deficit). Graham said he doesn't think it would be a hardship for more than a few people if the ferry were out of operation. The ferry, he contends, should pay its own way. Maybe, Graham said, the toll on the ferry should be doubled — to 50 cents — to see if that would reduce the deficit. When the time comes to build a new ferry Graham said he "can't see how we can justify $200,000 to rebuild it."

The ferry provides a necessary service, ART SPELTZ, Boyne City supervisor, feels. According to Speltz the ferry shouldn't be considered a deficit operation any more than any other part of the county road system. Nor does Speltz feel it will cost a prohibitive amount to rebuild the present ferry when it is no longer serviceable, or to buy a new one. He points out large luxury yachts can be purchased for less than $100,000, so it doesn't seem reasonable that a plain work-horse type ferry should cost nearly as much.

HARRY GEBEAU, Charlevoix supervisor, said it would be difficult to get voters to approve a bond issue to build a new ferry and ramps. But Gebau adds, he doesn't think the ferry is necessary. There is no doubt the ferry is a tourist attraction, Gebau adds. He said it is probably one of the nicest things for tourists in the county. Gebau, too, will wait until the time arrives to make a decision on what must be done.

"If we do away with that ferry, there will be the biggest holler you ever heard," WILLIAM SANDERSON, Eveline Township supervisor, said. Sander-son is the supervisor most effected by the ferry's future. Ironton is in his township. Allowing the ferry to go out of business "would be a disgrace to our county," he contends. Sander-son feels the supervisors should begin preparing now by accumulating a reserve fund to pay for a new ferry. As far as transportation for local people Sander-son said the ferry could be eliminated. But it must be kept operating for tourists.

LEE SNEATHEN, JR., Hayes Township supervisor and chairman of the county board, feels the county should "just keep going the way we are" until forced to make a decision on the ferry. When the county put the 25-cent fare on the ferry Sneathen feels it should have made it 50 cents. People would have needed the 50 cent fare better than they will now, he points out. He also feels the ferry must be in fairly good condition as it was approved by the Coast Guard last year.

The ferry has a certain, perhaps intangible, value to the whole county as a tourist attraction, CLYDE CUNNINGHAM, Marlon Township supervisor, feels. "I would hate to see it go out," Cunningham said. If the county must ultimately decide whether or not to rebuild the ferry Cunningham feels it should go to a vote of the people. He won't try to predict how the vote would come out.

BILL TAYLOR, East Jordan supervisor, feels the ferry is a "wonderful attraction for tourists of Charlevoix County. It's a question of whether we can afford to continue to support it. Now that's all there is to it," Taylor said.

The 25-cent fare is too small, CLARENCE RABACH, Charlevoix Township supervisor, said. "I don't think people would object to a 50-cent fare," he adds. "What road in the county is making us any money?" Rabach asked. The ferry, he said, should be considered like any other road, and not as a money-making project. Rabach said he feels the county must operate the ferry as long as it can, but would hate to spend an awful lot of money to replace it. However if more tourists demanded it the investment might be worthwhile, Rabach said.

S. G. ARBUCKLE, Boyne City supervisor, said "It's a headache." The ferry, he feels, will always operate at a deficit. He foresees the time when the county won't have the money to rebuild the ferry. No one, he adds, would take it over as a private enterprise. Completion several years ago of improvements on the Boyne City road, north of the lake, make it possible for the county to get along without the ferry. Arbuckle said. Not having the ferry he added, would create a hardship for a few people.

There would be an "awful lot of repercussions" if the ferry were discontinued, BARNEY MILSTEIN, East Jordan supervisor said. "The proper thing to do is put a bridge across there. A bridge is the most economical thing," Milstein said. It is necessary to provide a transportation link across the South Arm at Ironton, Milstein feels. "I think it's worth the cost... we should give the taxpayer something for his money."

YORK OSTER, Hudson Township supervisor, thinks the Board of Supervisors ought to keep running the ferry at the deficit but take a "good hard look at it before we decide on rebuilding it when we have to." The ferry's greatest value, Oster said, is as a tourist attraction. He added it is a convenience for local people, but not to great numbers of them.

From Charlevoix's Past...

The Ironton Ferry is one of Charlevoix County's oldest traditions. Also one of its most famous.

In this postcard picture, supplied by Mearle Scott, it is seen the first motorized ferry. It was launched about 1900. Riding across the South Arm in their horse and buggy are a couple, and in the fore ground a dog.

Earlier ferries were operated by hand or horses.

The ferry started operating last week after modifications were made to the ramp. There were fears it would not be able to run due to low water levels making the ramp useless.

There is frequent comment that it would be more economical and practical to bridge the South Arm. However, it is likely a swinging bridge would be required as the South Arm is a navigable waterway.

Recipe for Kindergarten

BY KATHERINE SMITH Kindergarten Teacher

Take 25 to 30 boys and girls varying in age from 4½ to almost 6, most of whom are strangers to each other, all of whom are filled with curiosity and fear, excitement and dread. Pour into one room 20 by 30 feet. Mix thoroughly. Simmer for nine months at varying temperatures.

The result—Riot? Bedlam? Confusion?

AT FIRST, PERHAPS. Or so it would seem to the outsider looking in. But long before the finished product is pulled from the "oven" of Kindergarten an amazing change has taken place.

Strangers have been replaced by friends. Curiosity has been satisfied about some things, whetted about many more. Excitement has been directed toward knowledge and the thrill of discovery. Fear and dread of the unknown school room soon put to rest in an atmosphere of kindness, understanding, and friendship.

To most adults the memories of the first adventure into organized society are so dim and faded that we fail to appreciate the tremendous step a child takes when he first starts school.

He leaves the comfort and security of home and family for the uncertainty and confusion of the public school building where he is surrounded by greater numbers of other children than he has perhaps ever seen before. And he is expected to learn how to work, play and think with all these strangers!

IT IS A TRIBUTE to childhood's natural resilience and adaptability that the individual not only survives but grows and develops into that wonderful personality—"ME".

Adjustment of the individual to society is a real task which must be learned and practiced as any other subject, and responsibility for a wholesome beginning rests with the kindergarten.

The child learns to live and accept affection, to share in responsibilities, to understand the social niceties, to adjust to different social groups, to become an accepted citizen of the school society.

The teacher guides each child in acquiring the skills he needs in order to make the greatest gains possible within his maturity level. Thinking skills, vocabulary skills, attitudes and interest are included.

A CHILD EMERGES from the year in kindergarten more mature, more skilled, in facing and solving problems in his daily existence. He has completed a year of orientation into the school system and is happily looking forward to many adventuresome years ahead.

Since the skills are to be obtained by the child, and not the teacher, he should not be pushed or rushed in order to force their learning. When, then, is the right time for a child to venture into the new world of school?

Research by the Gossell Institute of Child Development states that: "More than half of the children who were referred to us (the Institute) because they were having trouble in school turned out to be too young for their grade."

"We would say that school readiness and grade placement should be determined neither by age nor I.Q. score, but rather by behavior age alone. Recognizing, as most educators do, that boys in the first decade of life develop more slowly than girls, we would like boys to be July 5½ before they start kindergarten, 6½ before first grade."

BECAUSE CHILDREN develop on an individual basis and at the rate that their own inner "time clock" determines, a check-list of behavior characteristics may be of help in determining school readiness. The following sample questions are based on authoritative research.

- Can your child: (1) pay attention to a short story when it is read and answer simple questions about it?

(2) Be away from you for two or three hours without being upset?

(3) Remember instructions, and carry out two or three simple errands after being told once?

(4) Count 4 objects?

(5) Tell you how many feet he has?

(6) Tell you what his eyes are used for?

(7) Tell you the name of 3 or 4 colors as you point to them?

DO YOU HAVE BOOKS, magazines and newspapers in your home that your child can look at? Does he pretend to read?

Can strangers easily understand your child's speech? Many factors contribute to the combination of skills that add up to school readiness, and all should be carefully considered. If you have any questions concerning the readiness of your child you are invited to discuss this with us at the time of registration.

Registration for children eligible for kindergarten next year will be announced soon. Children must have their fifth birthday before December 1 to be eligible under Michigan law. We wish it were Sept. 1.

The Healthy Soul—One that Recovers

By REV. H. E. KOHN

Now in April we watch with wonder the earth's miraculous recovery from its winter afflictions. The earth "snaps back" with surprising elasticity, as we say of a patient who recovers from an illness. Earth has been hurt by winter, by its frost, sleet, snow and winds, but its convalescence is certain. The pulse of spring is firm and regular, and earth's breathing is normal — with gusts of damp breezes carrying the heavy perfume of awakening buds, sprouts and blades and the sweet sounds of running water.

The lawn outside my study window is getting green now. Countless blades of grass dead last fall from ice formation within the cells, causing irreversible damage to grass protoplasm. But fresh blades are rising to take the place of the old. Sap mounts in the trees, young leaves struggle to break out of their encasements, reaching for their brilliant, blue spring skies. Birds return to nesting sites from their winter quarters in Central and South America.

DAYS, GROW longer, gentler, sweeter until we suspect if the sun and the sky and the waters could speak, when we give the friendly greeting, "How are you?" we would be answered "Fine, thank you, in fact better than ever."

A healthy person, like the healthy earth, knows many springtimes of renewal. Your body stays healthy not by avoiding germs and injury, but by constantly overcoming them, and recovering from them. Every body is bombarded by countless germs every day, but usually the body rallies its defenses and fights off infection. While blood corpuscles rush to the point that is threatened, kill the invading germs and transform them into substances harmless to the person. Even when the disease was a skirmish the body usually wins the battle and health is restored. Doctors inform us that there are few people whose lungs do not have scar tissue on them, reminding of some past battle with the germs of tuberculosis. Most of these scars were taken place in our bodies occur without our being aware of the wounds sustained and healed.

Small cuts and bruises are incurred and readily healed. When a wound festers long after it is incurred we know that there is something seriously wrong with the entire body. Its powers of recovery are impaired. Physical health is the capacity to recover from hurts wrought by germs, viruses and accidents.

A HEALTHY MIND and spirit are not those that can avoid life's troubles. No one can escape affliction. Rather, healthy mindedness and spiritual heartiness are marked by the ability to be hurt and to recover.

Many are the signs of poor spiritual health that make us feverish and fretful with ourselves and annoy to our fellowmen. Readiness to belittle, disparage, humiliate — to hold grudges, cynicism, narrow prejudice. Chronic suspicion of the motives of others; extreme sensitivity and readiness to take offense — such symptoms of sick souls distress us and those around us. They mean that some old out has not been cured, some long ago bribe has not been healed. One woman confesses that she cannot derive any good from the worship services of her church. Upon questioning her one learns she holds a long standing resentment against her minister for something he once said from the pulpit with which she disagreed. Others who know her minister and who attend the church he serves tell me he is a capable and dedicated servant of God, and they are spiritually strengthened by his leadership. So evidently the good is there in that church but she is too sick at heart to respond to it. She is dying spiritually, because she won't let an old wound heal.

One almost incredible case of unhealthy attitudes came to light a few years ago at Canisteo, New York. An elderly man attended the funeral of his brother, and there revealed that he had not spoken to his brother, nor heard his brother speak to him for more than six decades, although they had lived under the same roof all of that time. Sixty-two years before that funeral the brothers had quarreled. They then divided their one room cabin in half with a chalk-line, and neither brother crossed that line or spoke a word to the other the rest of their lives. They were unhealthy souls; without the power to recover from a spiritual wound.

IN PSALM 147 the writer says of God, "He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds." We need such a God. All of us are hurt by life, not only by its griefs but more frequently broken by the thoughtlessness and callousness of others. The life of faith heals, because it reveals us as spiritual members of the community of the forgiven and the forgiving. We can treat our neighbors with grace when we are aware that we have been mercifully treated by God's grace. Then we "snap back" from slights and offenses like the coming of springtime following the assault of winter.

Spiritual health is the capacity to recover from life's wounds.

Calf Loss Caused by New Disease

Charlevoix County's growing dairy and feeder calf business this winter, faced a mild, and promptly suppressed, threat from "lepto" — a disease that causes loss of calves before natural birth.

Ed Rehman, county cooperative extension director, told the Board of Supervisors about the threat, and steps taken to control it, at its meeting last week.

REHMAN SAID "lepto" (the common name) does not effect the quality of milk or meat. Only the pregnant cows are subject to it. Lepto causes them to abort, he said.

One Charlevoix County farmer lost eight calves due to the disease. However, Rehman said, vaccination was promptly started and no others in the county were threatened.

He urged all farmers with dairy herds to have their cattle blood tested regularly for Lepto, as well as more common disorders. Once he disease is found it can easily be stamped out, he said.

Julius O'Brien Back on Beat

EAST JORDAN — Julius O'Brien, veteran Conservation Officer, has returned to his primary duties in Charlevoix County.

O'Brien was re-assigned to his old beat last week. Since December 1963 he has been working in Antrim County. For approximately 15 years before that he was assigned to the southern third of Charlevoix County, and the northern third of Antrim County. He has returned to this area.

OFFICER JAMES Skinner has been transferred from Wolverine to Antrim County.

O'Brien shares game law enforcement duties in Charlevoix County with Harley Burris of Boyne City.

Scout Camp to Open 25th Year

Camp Greilick will swing open its gates June 28, for the 25th season under the operation of the Scenic Council, Boy Scouts of America, announced Otto Ikonen of Traverse City, chairman of the camping and activities committee.

Scouts and Explorers attending Camp Greilick from the 18 counties of the council will be the beneficiaries of a five-year development program at the camp which saw the construction of seven major structures, including Besser Hall, the ranger's residence, the central showers and toilet facility, the trading post, barbecue pit, and all-faiths chapel and the summer program-winter storage building.

WITH FUNDS made available through gifts of individuals and organizations and the surplus of funds from ticket sales of the annual Scout-O-Rama or Scout Circus, not only have the new buildings been completed but, in addition, such improvements as new boats, canoes, swimming dock, 100 tents, and numerous smaller program articles have been obtained.

Camp Greilick will open its regular season for Boy Scouts and Explorers, after having completed two weeks of Cub Day Picnics for the younger members of the Scenic Trails Council. Camp Greilick is operated on a self-sustaining basis.

Sub Veterans Plan Convention

Benjamin S. Gill, regional vice commander of the Michigan Chapter of Submarine Veterans of World War II, was in Battle Creek for an executive meeting of the organization at which plans were made for the annual convention.

The convention will be held at the Post Tavern Motor Inn in Battle Creek the last weekend in June. All men who qualified for duty aboard a submarine, served as a member of a relief crew or served on a submarine during World War II are invited to attend.

Capt. Slide Cutler of the U. S. Naval Training Center at Great Lakes, Ill., has been invited to address the convention.

Mr. Gill is regional vice commander for the Upper Peninsula and the northern tip of the Lower Peninsula.

OUTDOOR RAMBLING

with GLEN SHEPPARD

SATURDAY COULD be the most memorable trout fishing season opening day of a lifetime.

While nature's contrary attitude is causing hardships for just about everyone else, it may be doing trout fishermen the favor of a lifetime.

LOW WATER AND warm temperatures could bring on a rare opening day insect hatch Saturday. A fly fisherman can't ask for more.

Lock of spring rains and snow runoff has not caused as much food (worms, etc.) to be washed into streams. So fish that would normally be ignoring food should be looking for anything that appears edible.

Where are the best fishing spots? Charles Welch, regional Conservation Dept. info director, and local officer Julius O'Brien figure the best opening day catches will be on lakes.

A new directory of lakes with trout has been prepared by the Conservation Dept. Stop in at their Bayview City office for the complete laydown.

OF COURSE, it isn't really necessary to be looking for a good lake trout. Walloon Lake is one of the state's best.

For stream fishermen, the Jordan River offers plenty of potential for opening day. O'Brien, who lives in East Jordan, says the outlook is good on the lower stretches of the Jordan. If the weather holds warm, O'Brien said last week, there could be hatches on the Jordan. And there will certainly be lots of nymph activity.

Leaving Charlevoix County, trout fishermen top northern trout streams appeared last week as though they would be ripe for opening day.

Welch, whose duties take him around the entire northern Lower Peninsula, said most streams are low, clear and if the weather holds warm there should be hatches. He rates the upper Munster, Pigeon and Black as good bets for April 25 anglers.

IF YOU WANT more specific information, Welch reminds fishermen to stop at Conservation Dept. field offices and ask for details. Conservation and fire officials can't guarantee to put you face to fish, but they generally know where the trout are.

Best opening day nymphing will be the conventional fare. Worms! Let 'em bump along the bottom with the current into holes, undercut banks, deadheads, etc. Some fine brook trout fishing with worms is available in Charlevoix County's small creeks.

Fishermen who take their scruples and pride with them to the stream will, of course, leave their worms at home.

For these fly fishermen nymphs are almost sure to be the best food der. A dork nymph fly, light of dressing and on a number 8-10 hook should be tops.

EARLY SEASON nymph fishing is the easiest of the year. Fish aren't yet as wary as they will be, and you seldom need to use anything lighter than a 3X leader tipset.

Fish your nymph up and across letting it float down through a hole. Get your reflexes ready to straighten out below you at the foot of the hole. Getting trout to strike a nymph is about the easiest thing in fly fishing. Setting the hook on them is, probably, darn near the hardest. But, don't forget, every time you fail to connect, there's plenty of excitement in wondering how big a fish you missed.

Most opening day fly fishermen will depend on streamer flies. You'll be wise to consider buying a sinking line if you're serious about sinking streamers. A level line is plenty adequate for most sinking-line fishing.

NO MATTER WHAT the manufacturer says, sinking lines are darn hard to lift out of the water, or set if there's any snick at all. So, don't try to use one in fast, deep water with a small rod. Probably the smallest rod that will handle a sinking line well in big water is a stout eight-footer.

THOUGH THE trout season opening day may be the most glamorous event of the weekend, there are smelt, walleyes, and suckers to think about.

Sucker spearing is allowed until the end of April on the Bear River down from M-75 to the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge, on Loeb Creek down from M-66, McGeath Creek (first creek past Bells Bay town), Porter Creek and all other streams that empty directly into Lake Michigan.

Smelt fishing continues legal until the end of May on all streams tributary to Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan for a distance of 1,500 feet from the mouth. Smelt may also be dipped in the Jordan River down from the Rogers Bridge to a point 300 feet from County Road 626.

Lakes With Trout

The Conservation Department reports 11 lakes in Antrim and Charlevoix County have been planted with trout.

The lakes were all planted last year. This, department specialists say, means they will reach their best fishing this year. The trout planted were legal size, brooks, browns, rainbows or lake trout. The lakes are:

Antrim County — Bellaire Pond, Elk Lake, Green Lake, Lake Bellaire, Stover Pond and Torch Lake.
Charlevoix County — Barnard Pond, Bynne Falls Pond, Fox Lake, Lake Louise (Thumb Lake) and Walloon Lake.

Here's the Answer

...deep rooted in God's Word... The Book. When Sir Walter Scott lay dying — he called for The Book. The servant who best knew his library hesitated and asked, "Which Book?" Being the writer and reader of many books, Sir Walter said, "There is only one book for a dying man." Is it not equally true for a living man? What book compares in value to aid us in better living? Do you try to find out what is your highest duty? Do you want guidance? Do you cherish peace of mind? Do you seek inspiration? Do you really want to know what life is for? This man holds The Source... The Answer... The Divine Way. Day by day let us enrich our minds, let us seek from the Bible, wisdom, and try to understand God's purpose for us in His World. See you in church or Synagogue this week.

Urge Action on City Slums

Charlevoix will no longer be able to ignore its "slum" area.

Top county health, welfare, court and juvenile authorities are openly committed to act as the city's conscience until substandard living conditions in the southwest section of town are cleaned up.

PROBATE JUDGE John Makel last week put his political future in jeopardy by calling for public exposure and action on what he considers a disgrace to "Charlevoix the Beautiful."

Judge Makel was joined by Dr. A. F. Litzenburger, district health director; Doris Reynolds, district social welfare director; John Reynolds, sanitarian; Jeanne Miles, district health nurse; George Hutchinson, social aid; Nancy Wood, juvenile officer, and, Glenn Pennington, Charlevoix policeman.

"We are not trying to pressure the City Council or be malicious," Judge Makel said. "The only way we can solve this thing is with cooperation."

"People — not only in Charlevoix — have been hiding behind it too long. There will never be anything done unless it is brought out in the open . . . and I guess we're the ones who have to do it."

JUDGE MAKEL ASKED the Charlevoix

the problem and agree it needs correcting. However, he said, they do not have an answer.

Councilmen, the mayor said, cannot decide to spend water and sewer money to put

Gov. George Romney has been invited to crown Charlevoix's Venetian Festival queen.

REV. ROBT. HARRISON

This sketch of Rev. Harrison, who died last week, was drawn for the Courier by Rev. Harold E. Kohn, his associate at the Congregational Church. The drawing was requested by the Courier because Rev. Harrison's family could not find a picture the newspaper could use.

Area Jolted By Death of Rev. Harrison

The Rev. A. Robert Harrison, 59, minister of the parish at the First Congregational Church since June, 1952, died unexpectedly at his home here Friday.

The Rev. Harrison came to Charlevoix from Saginaw where he served as associate minister of the First Congregational Church.

A NATIVE OF Indianapolis, Ind., where he was born Feb. 5, 1905, he was educated at Earlham College and at Theological Seminary, Wheaton, (Ill.) College, Boston University and Yale University. He served at churches in Bronx, N. Y., Taunton, Mass., Montreal, Que., where he was affiliated with the U. S. O., Ludlow, Vt., Oxford and Saginaw. At Pawtucket, R. I., he was director of Religious Education.

In 1929 he married Alice Rand Gillet who died in 1938. In 1940 he was married to the former Mary Gillet Blair of Germantown, Pa.

Oral Polio Vaccine Clinic Set May 17

The dread and fear parents lived with during the polio season up to 10 years ago is a thing of the past.

Dr. A. F. Litzenburger, district health director and local doctors intend that it should remain under control.

BUT THEY ARE emphatic that the only way to do this is stay ahead of the threat with vaccine and public understanding.

Their plan that the public not let down its guard will be dramatically acted out Sunday, May 17, when oral polio vaccine is given to all children at the County Building.

The vaccine will be given through the mouth, on sugar cubes or by spoon. No needles will be used, Dr. Litzenburger said.

Litzenburger said all Charlevoix people should get the vaccine, including children from three months up, and all adults.

NINETY-EIGHT percent of all children have taken the Salk vaccine, but only 50 percent of adults have had it, he said. Building at 12:30, May 17. It will continue until everyone has

The oral vaccine—called "Sabin"—is much more potent and gives better protection than Salk vaccine, Litzenburger said. Even persons who have been vaccinated with Salk should get the Sabin vaccine.

Taxpayers Have Say on Budget

City of Charlevoix taxpayers who have any questions or complaints about the proposed 1964-65 city budget will have their day in court May 4.

City Council holds its annual public hearing on the budget at 8 p.m. May 4 in City Hall. Though not literally a "day in court," the public hearing is the taxpayer's opportunity to speak on how his money is spent and offer suggestions, if he has any.

THE HEARING IS required by state law. Councilmen have adopted a tentative budget of $248,800; $32,000 less than the $280,769 budget for 1963-64.

The $248,800 budget is "balanced," meaning the city anticipates taking in as much money as it will spend.

The major source of income is the eight mill tax levy, which reaps $65,260. Other large income items include $40,000 from the electric utility to the general fund in lieu of taxes on the utility, $29,700 from motor vehicle taxes, $21,000 from sales tax rebates, and $12,000 from the golf course.

THE EIGHT MILL tax levy has not been changed since 1962. In 1961 the city levied 14.68 mills. The city's assessed valuation this year is $8,157,500, a $150,000 increase over last year. In 1961 the valuation was $5,260,000.

Major expenditures in the budget to be reviewed at the public hearing include: Street Department — $65,670. A decrease from last year's $67,670.

Ask Librarian Remain on Job

The Board of Education Monday evening received a letter from Charlevoix's two library clubs requesting Miss Florance Milner not be allowed to retire next year as librarian.

Representatives from the Dickens and Shakespeare Study Clubs asked that Miss Milner be encouraged to remain next year as the lifetime school and public librarian.

THE CLUB WOMEN stated they have received considerable support for their move. They cited their 125 members and pointed out their clubs have been active in keeping the public library open.

Miss Milner has reached retirement age. However, the board can keep her on the staff, if it wishes.

In other action the board set administrative salaries for Harry Bingham, high school principal, $7,500; Glenn Snider, elementary school principal, $7,200; Dr. William Raitt, counselor and special education, $6,600.

SOMETHING PEOPLE WILL REMEMBER

Propose Unique County Road Signs

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission is striving to get road signs that will be unique and different.

Walter Thorsen, commission chairman, last week urged county agencies to work together in creating and erecting signs for Charlevoix County that will stand out.

A MEETING HAS been called

Seek Re-election

The Charlevoix Board of Education's two top officers are up for re-election at the annual school vote June 8.

The four year terms of board President Darrell Dawidow and Secretary Burr Blanchard expire. They have both said they intend to seek re-election.

PERSONS WISHING to oppose them can get nominating petitions from the Board of Education office in the high school. The petitions must be filed by 4 p.m. May 9.

Ochs National Winner

John Ochs, Charlevoix High School senior, is the first student in the school's history to win a four-year Merit National Merit Scholarship.

Ochs is one of 1,625 outstanding students throughout the country to win the National Merit Scholarship Corp. announced last week.

OCHS, THE ONLY winner in Charlevoix County, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ochs of Dixon, Ill. Charlevoix — He was chosen from approximately 13,000 school-astically superior students.

After graduating from Ferris State College, Big Rapids, with a degree in pharmacy Ochs plans a career in medical research. He will enter Ferris next fall, after graduation from Charlevoix High School.

The scholarship awarded Ochs is sponsored by the Upjohn Co. of Kalamazoo.

In addition to the results of two tests, Ochs was judged on his grade average and work outside the classroom.

Ironton Youth Captures Man In Spite of Wounds

IRONTON — Douglas Burgis, a 1959 Charlevoix High School graduate, is being honored by the Los Angeles Police Dept. for bravery.

A policeman in Los Angeles, Burgis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Kimolt of Ironton.

Scott whipped out the knife and began slashing the officer, who was unable to immediately get to his gun because of holding to Scott's knife arm.

The young man finally overpowered Scott despite the severe wounds and dragged him to a nearby home where the resident telephoned for help.

School Budget Hearing May 4

Charlevoix Public School District's 1964-65 budget will be put before the public at 8 p.m. May 4 in the high school.

The public hearing on the budget was set by the Board of Education Monday. A new state law requires the hearing.

SUPT. REX MILLIGAN said the board will outline the district's proposed three-quarters of a mill tax hike at the meeting. Voters will decide on the millage increase at the annual June 8 election.

THOUGH STABBED and slashed about the face, arms and shoulders, the 22-year-old rookie officer grimly hung on to a burglar and captured him April 20 before collapsing from the wounds.

Burgis, on the police force only eight months, was taken to surgery at Central Receiving Hospital after the bizarre street fight with a prison escapee wielding an East India kris—a wicked 8 inch knife with a saw-tooth blade.

Admits Burglaries Illine Scott, 21, the captured man, admitted to as many as six burglaries a night since his escape from prison Feb. 13.

Burgis, alone in a car and in plain clothes, was working on the burglary wave when he spotted Scott walking. When he got out of the car to question Scott, the suspect fled.

Burgis chased Scott for a half mile through alleys, back yards and trees, finally tackling him

Urge Action on City Slums

If the people of the city voted to go in debt to extend full water and sewer service into the area, Hawley indicated he doubts the condition would even then be solved because they would not be connected to the homes that are now without septic tanks and water.

DR. LITZENBURGER said his office can supply the city with a health and building code ordinance that would give the authority to condemn homes that do not meet minimum standards.

"It's not that easy, individuals still have rights you cannot infringe," Hawley said. "Supposing we do go up there and put them all out in the street, what happens then?" the mayor asked.

"It is dynamite, of course," Dr. Litzenburger agreed. Makel and Litzenburger pointed out there are many nice homes mixed in with the "sheds" in the area directly north of the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

"THEY WANT TO DO something about it," Litzenburger said. "This property has potential."

"We cannot solve the problem today," Makel said. "But we want to know what the score is now; what can be done about it and set up a plan of action as soon as possible."

Litzenburger and Makel pointed out the problem isn't unique to Charlevoix. "Every town has the problem," Litzenburger said. "But in Charlevoix the beautiful you shouldn't have such a condition as that," Makel said.

Just what is the "condition?" Mrs. Reynolds asked. Pemberton pointed out specific examples:

- As many as 11 people in a 10 foot by 16 foot shed.
- The only toilet facilities in some cases being a drainpipe in the floor of the one room shack running into the ground below.

GEORGE HUTCHINSON

- No running water. Complete lack of baths in whole families in some cases.
- Odors are worse than in an out-house.
- Unwanted children are "dumped" off to make out as well as they can until they become charges of the county.
- Children living in this environment become immune to prevailing diseases, so they go to school and spread them among children who are not daily exposed to them.
- Children sometimes come to school so dirty Mrs. Miles must take them home and completely bathe them.
- Rather than spend their time in such "nasty places," the children often roam the streets, inviting delinquency problems.

"CHILDREN," Judge Makel said, "are the image of their environment. We feel so badly to know we have to turn them back into the same environment."

The judge, who has authority over all juvenile and child care problems, said his office could easily spend up to $100,000 a year on child care alone. This includes foster homes, clothing, food, medical expenses, etc.

"I'm primarily interested in the welfare of these children," the ex-educator turned probate judge, declared.

Makel said rent on the sub-standard dwellings is far too high... even at $10 and $15 a month. A $10 a month rental unit should be worth $1,000, but most of them in question couldn't be sold for $400, he explained.

"The older the shack, the higher the profit on it," he said.

Bandsmen At Concert

Forty members of the Charlevoix Senior and Reserve Bands attended a Brass Clinic and Wind Ensemble Concert at Traverse City last Friday.

Sponsored by District II of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association, the Clinic-Concert was similar to the Woodwind Quintet appearance in Charlevoix last spring.

NORMAN DIETZ, director of Bands at Central Michigan University, conducted the Clinic, assisted by Dr. William Rhyard, of the CMU music staff, and the University Brass Choir, who gave a short program in the afternoon for brass players from all over northern Michigan.

The evening performance was given by the University Wind Ensemble, a select group of 55 players, who presented a formal concert. This group was concluding its Spring Tour, and pleased the crowd with a fine performance.

The appearance of the University groups was arranged by Mr. Russell Little, of Frankfort, Chairman of District II, and by Mr. Rod Cumberworth, Band Director of Traverse City High School. Odmark accompanied the local group to Traverse City, traveling by school bus.

Track Victory

The Charlevoix Rayders rolled up 85 points in a dual track meet with Kalkaska at Kijke field Tuesday. The visiting Blazers won only one first place, the 800 yd. run, for a total of 24 points. The track was wet and the weather rainy so times were slow and distances unimpressive, Coach Del Terrill said.

Water Woes

ELLSWORTH — Low water levels are causing area cities considerable headache this spring.

At last week's regional Michigan Municipal League meeting in the Ellsworth Community School, all major waterfront cities represented—with the notable exception of Charlevoix—complained of low water troubles.

Representatives from Harbor Springs, Petoskey and Boyne City frankly admitted their boat decking facilities are in many cases useless due to low water.

Dave Irish Harbor Springs Councilman, said constant dredging in the Detroit river is "largely at fault."

Charlevoix's unique inland harbor facilities make it immune to this problem.

The regional city leaders elected Ken Northis, Gaylord City Manager, as their new president. Dino Lobb, East Jordan mayor, was elected vice president.

A comparison of area city and village taxes showed Charlevoix and Petoskey are the lowest with eight mills and East Jordan highest with 16½ mills.

RICHARD DONALDSON

"Swing Your Partner"

Dear Dick: My husband forgot my birthday, then to make matters worse he took me to dinner and dancing, but we met some nice friends, and he danced most of the evening with her. Does he really love me? —HEARTBROKEN.

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Yes, probably so, but you may not be going out enough with him, or dropping enough hints, or keeping yourself as attractive as you can. Your home will ALWAYS be attractive and beautiful, if you depend on PUFF'S APPLIANCE CENTER, which appliances have modern styling and work-saving conveniences.—DICK.

Young Drivers Can be Safe if Concentrate

How good or how bad are young drivers in Charlevoix county and all of Michigan?

The answer is given in a new State Police study of their accident record which shows that as a group they suffer badly by comparison with older drivers, according to Commissioner Joseph A. Childs.

LAST YEAR 59,634, or 13.6 per cent of all drivers involved in accidents in Michigan were under 20 years of age, while another 65,273, or 13.8 per cent, were in the 20-24 year age group. This means that 124,907, or 29.6 per cent of all drivers involved in accidents were under 25 years of age.

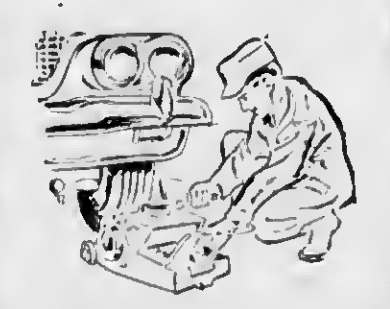

According to an estimate by the National Safety Council, drivers under 20 years of age are involved in accidents more frequently than older drivers. The most common violation is that of driving "too fast for conditions" or in excess of established speed limits. The most common type of accident is running off the roadway.

WHY DO YOUNG drivers have worse accident records? Childs gives several reasons.

"More mistakes can be expected during the driving learning process," he said. "Then, it takes some reasoning to acquire the ability to make sound judgment and adjust to changing roadway, traffic and weather conditions."

"This also is the age when there is a tendency to rebel against restraints. Young people are more prone to drive too fast. And finally, naive to and from social affairs they frequently become so involved in each other that the driver diverts his attention from the job of making certain they reach their destination safely."

Regardless of the record, however, Childs said it is quite generally agreed that teenage drivers who have completed approved driver education courses have a much better accident and violation record than those without this training.

County Needs Ferry To Attract Tourists

TO SOME OLDTIMERS it is impossible to ever imagine Charlevoix County not having the Ironston Ferry. And there are others, primarily in the far western and northern sections of the county, who resent contributing to the ferry's annual operating deficit.

The facts seem inevitably to indicate Charlevoix County will in the next decade have to face this decision. It may be a decision that is weighed primarily in dollars . . . up to $200,000.

WE ARE PRONE to side with Eveline Township's remarkable and interesting supervisor, William Sanderson. Silent Bill, as he is affectionately known to those who are fond of him, may seem to be demanding too much attention for the ferry. People not so fond of his constant prodding and side remarks insist he is just shy or being a fanatic about the ferry.

It is our observation that if Sanderson is fanatic about anything it is the beauty of Charlevoix County, and especially the region around Ironston. Nothing could be more commendable.

Sanderson is also honest enough to admit the ferry isn't an absolute necessity for Charlevoix County residents. This, in spite of the fact he finds it a personal convenience.

The ferry must be assured of a future because of its value in bringing tourists here to enjoy the beauty he dates on. Sanderson contends.

On this point we certainly agree.

A RIDE ACROSS THE ferry is certainly a charming, novel experience. One ride is almost sure to lead to another.

The minute a metropolitan area visitor drives aboard the Ironston Ferry and starts his slow, clink-clink trip across the South Arm he is almost sure to be transported into a world of leisure. The hurly-burly of the city and office or production line pressures are behind him. He has time to stop. Look around and want to stay to see more of beautiful Charlevoix County.

The absolute finality of the fact there is no hurrying the ferry must change a person's attitude. It is a tangible reminder that our fast-paced modern life isn't a necessity. This in itself, is tonic enough to make a two week, or month long stay in Charlevoix County worthwhile.

Supervisors who disagree with Sanderson on the ferry's worth as a tourist drawing—and holding—card demand to know why, if it's so important—enough people do not use it to pay for its annual operating cost?

THERE ARE A COUPLE of good answers to this. Number 1: Does any road in the county or the state pay its way in tolls? No. So why should the ferry? It shouldn't.

And, number 2: The ferry, like our roads, probably does pay its way in the added, but impossible to measure, dollars it brings into the county.

If there is a weakness in either of these arguments it can't be blamed on the ferry. The fault, if there is any, must be carried by those who have failed to give the ferry its due promotion.

How many people do you suppose learn about the ferry each year, due to the City of Charlevoix or Charlevoix County brochures and advertising? Maybe 10,000 or possibly, 20,000 who have never heard of it before?

AND YET MORE imaginative promotion would deliver the message to millions at but a slight increase in cost. This can be done through carefully selected newspapers, magazines and billboards.

If you question the economics of this make note of the fact that the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce last year placed an ad that reached a million people in a Detroit paper for less than $100. How much would be spent for brochures to reach this many people? Thousands of dollars?

While promoting the ferry in this manner you would, of course, be plugging Charlevoix's other major attractions.

It would appear that such a program would not only make the ferry much more valuable, but pay big dividends for everyone. Our overall sales pitch would, however, be considerably weakened without the ferry.

Need Retirement

CHARLEVOIX CITY employees last week petitioned City Council to establish a retirement program for them. Councilmen, understandably, had immediate qualms about the proposal.

A retirement program costs money. With the exception of the lake air, sunsets, etc., what doesn't? And even then, you can't enjoy the beauty that is Charlevoix if you are too poor to be healthy or maintain your dignity.

PERHAPS RETIREMENT for city employees is a question that should be brought before the voters. But it is certainly an issue that should be given every consideration.

Thank You!

OUR CONGRATULATIONS and gratitude once again, to band director Clarence A. Odmark and all of his remarkable young musicians.

Their repeat performance in Lansing as one of Michigan's, and maybe the nation's — finest high school bands is something we should all be mighty proud of. Not only does it show the state we have some fine bandsmen, it boldly tells them Charlevoix is a fine place to live, with responsible parents and a crop of top-rate citizens preparing to accept their role in the future.

The Charlevoix Courier is proud to be a part of a community that can boast of such outstanding young people.

Clarifies Camp Debate

To the Editor:

In as much as we were directly involved with the recent campsite proposal in Marion Township, we thought we should have an opportunity to state our views point-to-point to clarify some of the rumors that were started both before and after the zoning board hearing.

We as readers do have to take into the consideration the welfare of the community as a whole. This is our civic obligation and when proposing this particular property as a site for a campsite as an ideal place for a campsite we did believe this location and the way it was situated would not hurt anyone, especially not from the standpoint of property devaluation. We will grant there would be some nuisance factor to those adjacent to the area, but anyone acquainted with the location would very readily see that this would be minimized by the terrain.

WE DID MAKE it our business to talk to several of those who objected and listened to their objections with an open mind and we can frankly say that those who objected the most strenuously were those with only selfish interests.

The editor of our local paper was no doubt correct in assuming that all those present at the hearing were 100 percent hostile to having Mr. Rogala establish his campsite. If a poll could have been taken we know that over 75 percent of those attending the hearing would have voted in favor of this campsite. The question was asked, "Why didn't Mr. Rogala get up and defend his proposal?" In the first place, he had nothing to defend or be ashamed of. His contention was that he was bringing something into the area that was needed, and we might add, given every reason to believe prior to this hearing that they wanted this camp to come into Charlevoix. Mr. Rogala fully understood our person viewpoint on not being in a position to act in his behalf. (We had a monetary interest in this, therefore should not voice our opinion at a public hearing.)

The township officials must have flattered when all these (outside) interest were so concerned with the welfare of the people in the township. This was rather an unusual gesture judging from the past interest toward us. We see no other reason why the board should have denied their final decision, unless there were personal factors not disclosed, which we doubt there were.

We also have a few unanswered questions—What kind of influence or pressure was brought about to change peoples minds only 2 or 3 days prior to this hearing? Isn't the Chamber of Commerce an organization to promote and improve upon Charlevoix's tourist facilities, and to attract and hold the tourist? Why object to the very thing they are working for? Was Luke Charlevoix put there for only the chosen few? A large percentage of our tourist dollar comes from transit vacationers, why not keep them around instead of sending them elsewhere?

INDUSTRIAL AND BUSINESS men have been invited and encouraged in recent years to establish their plants and make investments in the Charlevoix area, also they were given the opportunity of selecting their sites which would best suit their particular needs. This was further encouraged by the people to show their good intent, by acquiring the property for them on which to build. Name by "The Charlevoix Development Corp." All this is very good and this effort should continue. However by the same token, why should these very people who were welcomed to come here so wholeheartedly now deprive others from coming to Charlevoix and establish a business which would also help the economy of Charlevoix.

In regards to the type of people who patronize campgrounds and trailer parks, such names as—riff-raff, seamy, rowdy, undesirable, etc., were loosely flung about by those opposing the campsite, this of course is not true, anyone so thin amongst, the moral character of a person to the better. Anyone who has done any camping in recent years will find people from all walks of life enjoying the out of doors in this manner. This campsite and its patrons would not have cheapened the area.

We realize this is all water over the dam as the matter is officially closed, but in our opinion it was an opportunity that should have been given more careful consideration before being forfeited.

Mr. and Mrs. William Potter Charlevoix Residents of Marion township.

Fair, Unbiased Coverage

TO THE EDITOR:

As spokesman for the Charlevoix County Democratic Committee, I would like to thank you for the fair reporting in the interview you covered with Congressman-at-large, Neil Staebler. You stated the facts as he saw them and did not twist or misinterpret his statements. Perhaps you did not agree with Mr. Staebler's views, but you conveyed them in the report as he expressed them to you.

I would like to say that the report in last week's Courier is a far cry from the way it would have been handled in the past. Usually we were lucky to get a mention in the back page of the Courier about any of the activities of the Democratic Party or any of our Party Candidates.

Since you and Mr. McDaniels have taken over the administration of the Courier, I believe that you have given a fair and impartial coverage of all the news and your first concern has been the best interest of the City of Charlevoix and all of the people in it.

Sincerely,
George A. LaBlanc,
Chairman
Charlevoix County Democratic Committee

IT'S YOUR OPINION THAT COUNTS

Shy on Michigan Week Spirit

By WALLY LODER
Michigan Week County Chairman
"MICHIGAN WEEK" is slightly less than one month away, May 17-23. Not much time left for plans and the execution of necessary preliminaries. LET'S GO!

The old boy George, remember "Let George do it!" It is high time George is retired and our lads get straightened out so a good big job can get well done. Good old Michigan has so much and so many fine people, combined with genuine good neighborly spirit, good fellowship, and a better daily effort at large, then communities and state become better and more attractive places to live.

THERE SEEMS TO BE a scarcity in the County, of Michigan Week posters and other promotional material. Contact your local Chamber of Commerce or Wally Loder, Charlevoix County Chairman for Michigan Week to secure this material at a reasonable cost. You can also order direct from Michigan Week State Committee care Wellman Press Co., 230 N. Cedar St., Lansing, Mich.

It is good to know that Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and its committees and other interested citizens are advanced with a well planned and interesting program for each of the designated days of Michigan Week. It is expected most of the details will be available by next press time. For each daily program of Michigan Week in Charlevoix are the following Chairmen and co-chairmen:

Sunday, May 17, Spiritual Foundations Day — Charlevoix Ministerial Assn., Rev. Alexander Wood, chairman. The Coast Guard Cutter Sundew will hold Open House.

Monday, May 18, Our Government Day — Frank Och, Lions Club and Robert Richards, Kiwanis Club. Also Mayor's Exchange Day.

Tuesday, May 19, Hospitality Day —

Mrs. Harley Ochs, Charlevoix Garden Club and Mrs. Paul Olsen, Charlevoix Hospital Guild.

Wednesday, May 20, Our Livelihood Day — Don Kowbel and Dan Genett of the retailers committee.

Thursday, May 21, Education Day — Rex Millman, Supt. of Schools and Frank Boss, PTA president.

Friday, May 22, Our Heritage Day — Mrs. T. R. Weidman of the Shakespeare Club and Mrs. L. R. Hooper of the Dickens Club.

Saturday, May 23, Our Youth Day — Clarence Odmark, band director and Don Carey, head coach.

It is understood some activity having to do with Michigan Week has gotten underway in some of our neighboring communities in Charlevoix County. Our neighbors are most welcome to contact the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce or Wally Loder to compare notes, ideas and assistance otherwise. It is hoped by next week there will be something of interest to report from our county neighbors.

THE GREATER MICHIGAN Foundation sponsored Statewide Community Action on School Dropout Conference at Flint April 2 and 3 was quite interesting and successful.

It is regretful to report that in Charlevoix County there was but one entry in the Michigan Week Product of the Year Contest, Courier Products Div., at Boyne City. They entered a recently developed and extremely outstanding Gyro, made for air-to-surface missiles. It has been indicated this item will help local economy and also has export potential.

There is talent of quality and variety in Michigan. There are resources of all kinds in Michigan. Promote our community, sell Michigan to Michiganers. Look toward the putting Michigan on national and world maps as a State "Great in Resources and Opportunities." Michigan is on the march, let's keep it marching. Take advantage of the opportunities and privileges and the many gifts from God, as there is tremendous competition over our resources.

Be reminded, Michigan Week is seeking "Volunteer Leaderships" for which there will be rewards. This would be a worthwhile effort for some club or group as in each community there are those persons who have been outstanding by their own efforts and example, made significant contributions in community volunteer leadership. Nominations with detail must be at the Regional Chairman by June 1. Let's go for the man or woman of the year, so called.

MICHIGAN WEEK kickoff will be at Sturgis, Mich., officially Saturday, May 15. Tickets to the luncheon, to be addressed by Gov. Romney, are $2.50. Your reservations can be made with the Chamber of Commerce at Sturgis. As usual, a real big day is expected, from the morning events through the Sturgis annual spectacular parade and into the evening.

MICHIGAN DAY AT THE WORLD'S FAIR "The Showcase for Gipsie Michigan Week, Monday, May 18. Guest of honor, Gov. George Romney who will also be speaker. There will be performances by University of Michigan Marching Band and Michigan State University Marching Band. For a big day, leave May 16 or 17 and return May 18. Detroit-New York. Detroit air fare per person $89, includes certain side costs at New York but not all. Further information is available. Call Wally Loder.

Michigan Week has many more treasures than many of us realize. We urge your interest and cooperation. It is a big, huge program and has a broad scope. I feel sure it will be gratifying and a new feeling just to know each of us has a small part in this huge and worthwhile project, Michigan Week.

Have you had the measles? If not, watch out . . . and we mean you adults as well as youngsters.

As you may or may not know, the blotchy little characters have been making the rounds of the school since mid-winter. At the hospital . . . I'm kidding about them but measles can be very serious so do beware . . .

Did you notice that all our show-birds are slowly returning to the north country, hopeful that winter is gone . . . But after that white frost Friday morning, I wouldn't be surprised if they felt they should have stayed a while longer . . .

However, there are those who are still enjoying the south country and we mean the far south . . . like Mexico and as far into Central America as Guatemala . . . a note from Polly and Greg Shadko brings the news that "We're seeing ruins here built by the Mayan Indians in the 10th Century . . . Met some people here who had been in Charlevoix . . . going to Guatemala . . . these home-town folks do get around . . .

SPEAKING OF travelers, had a brief chat with the Marshall Ackers at the concert in Petoskey the other night . . . They're just home from a holiday . . . which certainly agreed with both of them . . .

Been in the hospital recently? If it was over a holiday you no doubt saw the clever tray favors that decorate the patients' tray on everything that even resembles a holiday . . . like May Day, Michigan Week, Arbor Day . . . plus all the big ones . . . There's a twosome that was a threesome until not too long ago who took over this chore (and it's a whole of a one) for the Hospital Guild and Mrs. L. H. Bruce who live at 204 Belvedere . . . The third member of the group was Mrs. Sylvia Gilson, who's been ill so hasn't been able to do too much for the project . . . Believe me, you could take a smidgeon of that, a swatch of that and a speck of something else and come up with such clever ideas . . . Since I'm not a person blessed with imagination, I sort of envy these gals who certainly deserve the kudos of the week . . .

A RELATED BUT certainly a sincere "well done" to Charlevoix's band . . . Another first division rating in state competition where the going is rugged . . . Helping John See Through

By DR. WM. RATIGAN
Counseling & Guidance
Charlevoix Public Schools

There is one definition of school guidance that seems to get the point across without wasting many words. The definition originated by the following way:

A father, who had heard that this particular school was noted for its guidance program, asked the principal what guidance meant. The principal, who knew that the father had a son named John, replied:

"GUIDANCE is seeing through John, and then seeing John through."

Another story, illustrating the purpose of guidance, is told about the father who became irritated because his boy was "rumping around the living room and causing such a commotion that the father couldn't concentrate on his magazine. Finally he found a sorry . . . for they're an outstanding outfit . . . C. A. "Odie" Odmark, their director, calls them his "best ever" but he says that about "most of his hands every year at this time so just accept the fact that they're good, real good, and you'll be right."

Lots of luck, too, to the track team that's been doing OK under the tutelage of Del Terrill . . . In all kinds of weather those characters spend hours outside, working, working, working . . . And anything you accomplish, except in relays, is strictly an individual accomplishment . . . There's a lot of big events coming up within the month so may I wish this grand outfit lots of luck . . . from all of us.

page showing a map of the world. He ripped this map from the magazine, tore it into jigsaw-puzzle pieces, handed them to his son, and said:

"Here, see if you can put the map together."

Then the father settled back to enjoy his magazine, confident that the boy would be occupied a long time with the difficult task he had been assigned. But he was startled a few minutes later to hear his son cry out:

"Hey, Dad, look, it's all done!"

THE FATHER COULD scarcely believe his eyes but, sure enough, there on the rug at his feet was the completed map of the world. He shook his head in bewilderment and asked:

"How could you do it so quick?"

"Oh, that was a cinch, Dad," the boy replied. "You see, there was a picture of a man on the opposite side. So, all I had to do was put the man together—and the world came out okay!"

All members of the community—parents, teachers, civic leaders—are responsible for guiding young people toward "putting the man together," toward growing up as democratic citizens and contributing their part to the making of a better world.

IN SCHOOL, THE classroom teacher is the heart of the guidance program. Educational and vocational counseling is one of the services offered by this school program that follows, the child from kindergarten through high school graduation, and beyond.

The school counselor supplies the leadership for the program of guidance services and, if properly trained, for the more intensive program of pupil personal services, including special education. He should be trained beyond the Master's degree and belong to the professional organization that keep him in touch with the latest developments in the field so that he can pass these along to the faculty, the administration, the Board of Education, and the community.

Preferably, the school counselor should have a business, as well as, an educational background, in order to understand the problem of the six out of ten pupils who will go to work after high school and the eight out of ten who will not finish college.

GUIDANCE in general is essentially an attitude, a way of looking at the vital importance of children. This attitude is illustrated by the story of the little boy who helped his grandfather around the house one weekend because his grandmother was ill. The grandfather, pleased at the way the boy worked, offered to let him stay home from school a few days to keep on helping. He was surprised at the boy's reaction:

"Oh, no, Grandpa, I can't stay home from school."

"You can't? Why not, sonny?"

"Well, you see, Grandpa, in our school they've got substitutes for teachers, but they haven't got any substitutes for kids."

That would be the definite statement of any school guidance program worthy of the name. There are no substitutes for kids!

From Charlevoix's Past . . .

This picture of "The Inn" during its day of great grandeur is remembered by most Charlevoixians. The Inn came down in 1910. Perhaps it signaled the end of an era.

However, today's Charlevoix resorters live, in no less luxury . . . though, perhaps, at a faster pace. Elaborate motels and single unit "villas" designed for gracious summer living have replaced mammoth hotels like "The Inn."

"THE INN" was especially intended for use by people coming to Charlevoix by train. The passing of the passenger train as a major means of travel may have brought about "The Inn's" downfall.

Whatever the reason, it remains as a grand memory for Charlevoix and the many summer people who love Charlevoix the Beautiful.

The Real Test of Love is Life's Adversity

By REV. H. E. KOHN

With the arrival of springtime, the weakness and the hardness of perennial plants are plainly shown. Some have endured the hardships of winter admirably, an achievement that merits the horticulturalist's accolade, "hardy." Others have withered and died under the assaults of winter winds, ice and snow. The hardness of a plant is the ability to endure such adversity.

Low temperatures, or quick changes in temperature, are especially hard on plants. Portions of twigs and branches may kill back because of freezing. Evergreen trees frequently suffer from winter burn caused by low supplies of moisture in the soil combined with strong winds and the bright winter sun shining through the cold, crisp, clear atmosphere. Alternate freezing and thawing, which takes place in early winter and in early springtime, sometimes heaves young plants, hurting their root systems. Plants that are weak because of poor soil and nutritional deficiencies, or because of disease or insect damage are not likely to endure a hard winter or a drought. But the well established, healthy plant finds ways of conserving its energies and maintaining some check of life throughout the ordeal.

THE HARDHOOD of a plant can hardly be proven under ideal greenhouse conditions. Only adversity tests a plant's vigor and toughness.

As winter tests the hardness of plants, so sustained, extended adversity is a revealer of virtue and character. In last week's essay we considered the power of recovery as being a sign of emotional and spiritual health. By this was meant the capacity to endure a sudden failure, disappointment, slight, snub or grief and to "bounce back." Now we are saying that another sign of spiritual well-being is the ability to endure prolonged hardship, rather than sudden shock, and to come through the protracted affliction in good spiritual health. A person who achieves this is a hardy soul.

Many a man has had the courage necessary to plunge into a river and rescue a drowning man, and has still lacked the durable courage that is required to be durably unconcerned in the long haul of everyday living by high principles. Durable courage is more rare than quick, crisis courage.

MANY A WOMAN has passion-

ately fallen in love on a springtime moonlit night, but could not stay in love through marriage's tensions, disappointments, frustrations and quiet despondencies. Instant attraction may be more common than abiding affection and lasting love.

The real test of love comes when we attempt to love unlikeable people and to continue to love them—people who irritate, haffle, thwart, bore or hate us. Especially is this so if the unlikeable person is nearly inseparable, such as an employer whom we are dependent for livelihood, a neighbor from whom we cannot move away, an in-law who lives near us or with us, or a mate whose disposition has changed over the years toward friftiness or grouchiness. Is our love hardy enough to endure such a spell of inclement weather?

Of course, we can answer that question only after we determine what love is. Human love takes many forms. In the Greek New Testament essentially three words were used for love. "Eros" was the word used to express sensual love, passionate love between the sexes. Another word, "philia," designated spontaneous affection for a friend or relative. (In this sense one might say, "John is such a wonderful fellow. You would love him the first time you met him. Everybody does.") in the New Testament is "agape," which denotes a persistent, patient, merciful and generous goodwill toward men. Such love is different from merely liking a person, which may be an involuntary emotion, quite beyond human control. Liking waxes and wanes, flourishes and dies. But "agape" is a benevolence toward one's fellows that aims at actively securing their well-being regardless of how they respond to us and regardless of their worthiness. It is more of a principle of action than a passionate emotion. It is there when we like people because they are pleasant, and it is present when they are distasteful and repugnant to us. In short, this highest kind of love is hardy.

In the cherished love chapter of the Bible, the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians, the New Testament affirms, "Love bears all things, believes all things, endures all things." It claims that the life of faith is one where the long-suffering of God is reflected in the patience of his children. As the King James Version of this chapter says, love "suffereth long and is kind." To love, then, in this Christian sense, is not necessarily to like another, to enjoy his company or to share his views, no more than God always finds us delightful companions or in agreement with his viewpoints. God's love is "unconditional" and operates when we are least deserving and most disagreeable. It is open-hearted and generous, and it is bestowed upon those who least deserve it. It is a hardy love.

TO LOVE THE unlikeable means to recognize that we have been loved by God when God has found us unlikeable and unlike Him. In gratitude for such grace we pass it on to others.

This discouraging era calls for undiscouraging goodwill, put to action. How is yours? Hardy?

Warn Kids of Dangers Police Urge Parents

Because child molesting increases sharply in warm weather months, Charlevoix parents are strongly urged by Sgt. Jack Brown, commander of the Port Huron State Police post, Sheriff Glenn Rose and Police Chief Joseph Smith, to warn their youngsters of the possible dangers in contacts with strangers who offer gifts of candy or money and want them to go for rides or walks.

This has been an annual warning by the police.

Sergeant Brown advised parents to report all molesting incidents to police with as many details as possible. This helps officers take action necessary to apprehend offenders and to prevent recidivism.

HE POINTED OUT names of tumors involved and their parents are not used by the press, radio and TV except in emergencies of abduction and murder. Beliefs in reporting threats police warning and also hides the true total of these incidents.

Last year the State Police investigated 570 sex offense complaints, which include child molestation.

As in other years, complaints were most numerous in summer. August was high with 64, July next with 52 and June third with 52. May and October had 59 each while April and September each had 47. The other five months had totals under 40.

Sergeant Brown and local police suggested parents instruct their children to follow these rules:

1. DON'T GO FOR rides or walks with strangers and avoid being tempted to do so by candy or money gifts from them.
2. Have companions with you when you play outdoors and if possible when going to and from school, on shopping errands, or to the movies, fairs and carnivals. Avoid playing in isolated areas and vacant buildings.
3. Don't litter in or near public rest rooms as these can be danger spots.
4. Report to your parents, police or teacher anyone who tries to get you to break these rules or when you have any question concerning your safety.

SERGEANT BROWN added that children can help curb molesting incidents by remembering features about suspected or actual molesters, such as approximate height, weight, age, color of eyes, skin and hair and unusual things such as a mustache, tattoos, jewelry, scars and physical defects. If there is a car involved, describe it and it also should be memorized or marked down somehow.

He pointed out that anyone investigated because his presence near children arouses suspicions should not be offended if he has proper explanation for his activity.

County Joins Battle to Keep Railroad in Boyne

The committee fighting the loss of railroad service to portions of northern Michigan has made support—and $100—from the Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors.

The board last week resolved to join others in battling requests of Penn. (and New York Central) Railroads to abandon their lines in northern Michigan.

SUPERVISORS from Boyne City pointed out that the eastern half of Charlevoix will be completely cut off from vital rail services if the federal government authorizes the abandonment.

The Planning Commission and several supervisors asked the board to contribute $500 to the battle. They pointed out Charlevoix's overall loss will be considerable if the railroads get their way. However, when the final resolution reached the floor it called for an appropriation of $100.

It was pointed out C & O Railroad—which serves Charlevoix and Petoskey—has no intention of pulling out of northern Michigan.

WALTER THORSEN, Planning Commission chairman, said "Just one thing is going to keep the railroads in business. And that is when business uses it. When business that can use the railroad."

Mrs. Dick Martin and her son Ricky went to Ada, Mich., to visit her family for a week.

Father Louis is on the mainland for a week.

The Very Reverend Father Jerome McCann visited Mrs. Lloyd McDougall for a couple of days last week.

Arlene Malloy was a patient at Charlevoix Hospital last week. Her mother Lay Malloy accompanied her over.

Five maintenance men for C.M.E. came this week to prepare for the college for the opening season.

Doc Collins and Carl Carmany are at Doc's home here for a couple of weeks.

Frank Near of Detroit has arrived here to spend the season at his home.

Word has been received here of the death of William Parker in Pontiac. He is the brother-in-law of William Schmidt and Mrs. James O'Donnell.

Mrs. Karl Baber joined her husband here Wednesday. The Babers will manage the Beaver Lodge

Don't, they can't continue to operate here.

Regardless of whether industry or business intends to use the railroad they always want to know about rail service before moving to a new area. Some of them, even if they don't use the railroad, won't locate where it isn't.

The Planning Commission will represent the Board of Supervisors in meetings of the statewide group fighting the railroad proposal.

IT HAPPENED ON ... Beaver Island

By MARION MARTIN

The regular Parent-Teachers Association meeting was held Sunday afternoon, April 19 at the Beaver Island Community school.

After the business at hand was discussed, the subject of raising funds for an Activity Program for the pupils was discussed.

The program will start in the fall. Father Louis has agreed to donate the use of the Parish Hall for use in the program. Equipment must be purchased to provide several activities for the children.

The Civil Association sponsored a cake and coffee get acquainted for the Babers at the Circle M, Thursday evening, April 23.

Who Owns Street? City Asks

The Coast Guard has asked the city to have a street, it doesn't know who owns.

Councilmen received a request last week to have surface the short street that runs from the foot of Dixon Ave. to the Coast Guard Life Boat Station near the railroad bridge.

CITY ATTORNEY John Michael told councilmen the street is not publicly owned. He added he is not sure who owns it.

Councilmen suggested it may be owned by the C&O Railroad and, leased to the Chicago Club, or owned outright by the club. Michael was asked to find the answer.

It was estimated blacktopping the short street would cost $2,200 and triple seal $1,000.

Mayor E. D. Hawley pointed out many tourists and Charlevoix residents use the street, as well as Coast Guardsmen.

CONSIDERING THAT the Coast Guard is spending $300,000 on the new Life Boat Station, and paved parking facilities and landscaping will be completed this summer, Councilmen indicated it may be in the public interest for the city to pave the street.

Would Tap Hudson Bay To Raise Great Lakes

Sen. Philip A. Hart has proposed Canadian water be diverted into the Great Lakes to stabilize lake levels and give added insurance against pollution.

With Lakes Michigan and Huron at all time lows, Hart said shipping, boating, water supplies, sewage treatment, waste and recreation are seriously affected.

LAKE MICHIGAN has come up slightly since its March low. However, most harbors directly on the lake are still dry, or nearly-dry. Unlike other Michigan ports Charlevoix, with its protected inland harbor is not seriously handicapped.

Hart said deepening of navigational channels is serving to keep the average levels down. He said "cycles" are the major reason for the low levels.

The Senator asked that the International Joint Commission undertake a careful study of diverting Canadian waters.

CANADA, HART SAID has great quantities of surplus water flowing unused into Hudson Bay. (The Hudson Bay watershed begins some 50 to 100 miles above the

Cherry Virus

Can she bake a cherry pie? If not, she won't be able to blame a shortage of cherries, according to Merck & Co. chemists.

In recent years, production of tart pie cherries, particularly in the Great Lakes region, has been recently reduced by cherry yellows virus, the company reports. The virus causes a reduction in the number of vegetative buds produced by the diseased tree, resulting in lessened shoot growth and fruit spur production.

Now a research group has reportedly found that gibberellin compounds, such as "Gibrel" Wettable Power produced by Merck, although they don't cure the disease, do overcome the effects of the virus.

Ironton Scene

Ironton residents are very proud of young Doug Boggs, former Ironton boy after his brave arrest when escaped prisoner in California. Story appears elsewhere.

Harvey Perry is back working on his home in Ironton with hope of finishing the inside this year.

Bill Crowe and his Mrs. finally move into their new home.

Construction coming along fast with the new weather on Bad Miller's new home.

The chili supper to be held by Ironton's Congregational church's young people. Fellowship has been cancelled until further notice.

Louis and Pete Knoll shaken up by son Douglas' escape from death were further shaken when word was received that Louis' father was taken with a heart attack and was in Ford Hospital in a very serious condition. Louis is in Detroit now, and at the latest report her father is just holding his own.

C. R. Stokes has returned from Detroit after returning his son Craig there after a 4 week stay in Ironton.

Steve, Allen and Kay Knoll spent last weekend in Traverse City to attend a band concert.

Jack and Evelyn and Lambton (daughter and son-in-law of Glen and Ida Williams) spent last weekend in Ironton and returned to their home in Detroit Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Foster have returned to their summer home in Ironton.

Rev. William Harmon and his wife spent last Saturday in Detroit on business. Rev. Harmon spends a lot of time on the road and we wonder how many of the church members realize that he has missed only a few Sundays in the last six years, arriving from one end of the state to the other, or still able to be in Charlevoix on Sunday? How far do you have to go to get to church?

Mrs. Lena Wanda has returned to Ironton for the spring and summer.

Roman Elmhurst and his wife have returned to Ironton after spending the winter in the south.

You are reminded that for your news to be in the paper you must let Mr. Stokes know about it, and even then circumstances arise at times that are uncontrolled so it may not appear in print, but please try to remember it doesn't happen very often. Send your news to me or call 547-2144.

Halt Trespassing on Land State Refused

A court battle over private property rights appears shaping up between Boyne Mountain Lodge and the Michigan Conservation Dept.

The department has challenged Boyne Mountain's right to bar the public from the former Consumers Power Co. pond the Lodge purchased last year on the Boyne River. Boyne City Conservation Officer Harley Burris reports.

EVERET, KIRCHER. Boyne Mountain president, maintains the property owners have to protect their land. The Conservation Dept., he told the Courier, cannot prove the river is navigable.

Burris said during logging days logs were floated down the stream for commerce and it has been navigated by sportsmen. He said he has statements dating back to 1889 proving the stream is navigable.

When Consumers Power Co. owned the land it allowed the public to use it for outdoor recreation, Burris said.

Kircher argues the state relinquished its interest in the property for public use when it refused

In buy it from Consumers.

CONSUMERS, KIRCHER said, went to great lengths to sell the pond at a low price to the state, county, city or township. All government agencies had flatly refused to buy the land before Consumers consented to sell it to Boyne Mountain Lodge, Kircher said.

Now that he has purchased the property the state refused to buy, Kircher contends the state is trying to make use of it.

Kircher plans to build an elaborate private resort on the pond. He said the issue "boils down to a question of trespassing." Kircher said he has no objection to settling the issue in court, but that negotiations are continuing out of court.

BURRIS REPORTS the Attorney General's office has given an informal opinion that the stream is navigable.

"We feel we are proud to protect the public's rights," Burris said.

As the little birds trust the mother bird, so let men trust God. If a sparrow cannot fall without God's attention, if He counts the hairs of our head... why do we fear (Mat. 10:29-31)? Worry about future security? God is the security for those who trust Him. Your Heavenly Father feeds the birds, and you are of far more value than they (Mat. 6:26). "Blessed are they who hunger for God's good things; they shall be filled." In childhood we needed mother and welcomed her... as adults we need God and ignore Him. In prosperity we forget God, the Bible, the church; but when disaster comes we want them all.

As your days so shall your strength be (Deut. 33:25). He will cover you with His feathers, and under His wings shall you trust (Psalms 91:4). Then why not trust God where you cannot see; the plan is His, the promise yours. "Blessed are they."

Spring Building Boom Nears $200,000

New Fronts Planned on Three Stores

Council Issues Ultimatum To Mich. Consolidated Gas

Spring 1964 will be remembered for a long time in Charlevoix.

City Supt. James Taylor's office reports permits for $181,000 in new construction have been issued this spring.

WHEN COMPLETED, the building will add five new homes, a restaurant, super market, new front or three stores and a motel.

The most expensive, and probably the most impressive, structure started this spring is the new Oleson Super Market on the corner of Bridge and Antrim Streets. The estimated cost is $80,000.

The store will have 10,000 square feet and a large parking lot. Workmen have been on the job night and day as owners Jerry Oleson attempts to get his new store open for the summer trade. Frank Boss is the contractor.

Oleson owns an entire block on the south side of Antrim from Bridge to State. Portions of the old buildings on the west end of the property are being converted to warehouse space. The embankment on the south hill has been cut away and is being reinforced with a concrete wall.

Students Preside at Debate on Electricity

Charlevoix High School government students Monday evening got a first hand introduction to the city's most controversial problem—electricity.

Monday was student government day in City Hall. It was also the evening set for the public hearing on the $248,800 1964 city budget.

WITH STUDENTS sitting in beside the officials they were acting as for a day, the electrical budget caused the only debate during the budget hearing.

Former Councilman Kenneth Staley sparked discussion on the electric utility budget.

Staley declared the city is spending enough to improve electric service. His strongest change was that the $65,000 estimated profit from the utility is "fiction."

The former second ward councilman said he feels the city has lagged in spending money to repair and replace electric lines and should spend at least $27,000 this year. The budget calls for spending $18,000.

"WE ARE KNOWN to have problems with service to some factories. The quality of power is a consideration in whether they expand here, or elsewhere," Staley said.

SOME OF THE city's power lines are dangerous, Staley said. He urged that this be corrected.

Councilman Robert Gill announced that work has already been started that will eliminate complications in industrial service. Contractors are working on $17,000 worth of line improvements.

This $17,000 may be in addition to the $18,000 originally planned this year, the council agreed before adopting the budget.

Work on the lines is costing $100 an hour.

Staley pointed out industrial use of electricity was up 20 percent last year, and rural residential use up 18 percent. In contrast to rural use, the sale of electricity to homes in the city only increased three percent.

DURING THE debate students sat beside their real counterparts.

These facts, seem to exist now simply as tragic history which can never happen to us, and we are thus lulled into complacency. The bulk of the matter is that only the constant vigilance of health authorities, from the relatively small local groups such as our own District Health Department headed by Dr. L. L. Lenzburg, to international organizations, keep these dangers from happening here.

The dangers now are even greater because of the great concentration of population, and the rapidity of modern travel.

WITH THESE thoughts in mind, the doctors of Charlevoix urge the whole-hearted cooperation of everyone in the community-wide Sabin polio vaccine program. It is emphasized that people who have been immunized with the Salk vaccine should still have the Sabin vaccine for two reasons: 1. The Sabin vaccine has a higher percentage of effectiveness, and 2. The Sabin vaccine eliminates the "residual" state. Important to many is the fact that the Sabin vaccine is given by mouth and does not involve "shots."

Councilmen occasionally huddled with their student sit-in to explain what was going on.

The students held an election to decide who would act as "advisory" officials during government day. Those elected, and sitting in their respective positions at the council meeting were:

John Ochs CHS's Top Graduate

John E. Ochs, only 17 of a year from having a perfect 4.0 scholastic record during his four years at Charlevoix High School, this has earned him the school's top honor, Valedictorian of the 1964 class.

Richard Getz is the 1964 class second highest graduate, the Salutatorian. He is only 17 of a year from having a perfect scholastic record.

Ochs is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Franklin Ochs of 244 Arch St. He will attend Michigan State University to study for a degree in medical research.

Getz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Getz, Central Lake. He will attend the University of Michigan and then, possibly, transfer to the U. S. Naval Academy.

The early spring has made plans for the summer and concerned about their taxes than they would have been if the weather were colder. This, he admitted, has put the company on the spot.

In southern Michigan, where workmen and materials are more readily available, the company would have been able to meet the weather conditions, Montross said.

The Grand Club property on Arch St. will be sold this summer by the city.

Councilmen decided Monday evening to put the club property—buildings and all—up for sale this July. July 27 was tentatively selected for the day to accept bids.

A MINIMUM BID of $100,000 may be required. The setting of a minimum bid was discussed to avoid the possibility of having to sell the property for less than its true value.

The city obtained the club property last year from the Michigan Conservation Dept.

CITY AND COUNCIL officials are stymied because they don't know how to clean up the "slum" action in the southwest corner of Charlevoix. But there are those who know the answers. On page 10 the Courier editorially urges that these people be consulted.

Will Not Allow New Gas Lines

Company Plans June 1 Finish

City Council Monday issued the sternest ultimatum it can to Michigan Consolidated Gas Co.

Councilmen agreed to refuse Michigan Consolidated Gas permission to put in any new natural gas lines until all clean-up work is completed.

TUESDAY MORNING, Detroit, Mich.—Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. is planning to install new gas lines in Charlevoix, Mich., this summer. The company is planning to install new gas lines in Charlevoix, Mich., this summer. The company is planning to install new gas lines in Charlevoix, Mich., this summer.

"When we call them (Michigan Consolidated) all we get is promises," Mayor E. D. Hawley said.

Councilmen said they have received literally hundreds of complaints from residents.

Hawley suggested people call the company. "The more people who complain the more attention they will pay to it," he said.

"WE WOULD HAVE done things differently if we knew what we know now," Hawley said.

A suggestion was dismissed that other cities where Michigan Consolidated plans work this summer be advised of Charlevoix's trouble.

City officials have been complaining for several months about lack of action on Michigan Consolidated's part. However, Monday evening was the first time any sort of action has been agreed on.

Refusing to allow further expansion of natural gas service is the strongest action the city could possibly take.

Montross said he recognizes the problem exists.

MICHIGAN CONSOLIDATED contractors, he explained, did not expect the early spring. Experience with northern Michigan weather led the company to believe mid-May would be the earliest practical date to start reseeded lawns and other work, he added.

The contractors will be in Charlevoix working full time this week. They will go through the city systematically, eliminating all complaints by June 1, Montross said.

Mother's Day A Reminder of Her Sacrifice

Rev. R. J. McBrainie
First Methodist Church

Then came to Jesus the Mother of Zebedee's children with her sons to worship Him, and desiring a certain thing of Him. And He said unto her, what wilt thou? She saith unto Him, grant that my two sons may sit, the one on Thy right hand, and the other on the left in Thy Kingdom. Matthew 20:20, 21.

CHARLEVOIX teachers, quite understandably, were a bit put out about an unsigned letter to the editor which seemed to equate ditch digging to teaching, except, perhaps, it suggested teaching is easier.

I don't blame the teachers for resenting the letter. And Mrs. Laura Conradi is to be commended for the fine job she does of setting the record straight in this week's letter column.

But it did sit with me for a long time. I thought about the letter. Evidently these people had freedom is just fine for teaching in textbooks, but when it comes to applying it on the black board let's temper it with a bit of censorship.

This editor doesn't feel he has the right to control or limit what a citizen can say (as long as it isn't libelous or treasonous), no matter how much he disagrees with it.

If a citizen wants to express himself—no matter how absurdly—through the letters to the editor column, without (Continued on Page 2)

School Budget Hearing June 4

Charlevoix Public School District will put its 1964-65 budget before the public at a hearing 8 p.m. Thursday, June 4, in the high school.

The public will have an opportunity to review the budget and ask questions. The Board of Education requests that a three-quarters of a mill tax hike be approved by voters June 8 will be explained.

James and John were two of Jesus' fine Disciples, and they were ambitious young men. Believing that Jesus was the Messiah, and that He was coming into His Kingdom, they desired that He give them places of leadership.

This incident has frequently been used as an illustration of a mother's concern and ambition for her children; and in this, she is a symbol of all mothers. She no doubt gave her sons good home training, Bible teaching and regular attendance at the Synagogue. As a mother she realized her responsibility to look after their spiritual welfare. Christian Mothers are the hope of the world, for they can determine what the nation of tomorrow will be; and the world looks to Christian mothers to train and furnish dependable leaders for tomorrow.

ROYNCE CITY — The Charlevoix County Road Commission will go ahead with plans for conventional road signs.

At a meeting here last week of county supervisors, chamber leaders and planning commissioners it was decided nothing can be done about suggestions that unique, rustic signs be used throughout the county.

ROAD COMMISSION Supt. Jack Fitzgerald told some 20 persons at the meeting it is too late to make changes in plans for regular road signs. The commission, he said, takes bids this month on four inch high metal road signs with reflective letters.

The signs are pretty much standard. Like those used in most cities and counties.

If the Road Commission were to change its plans now, Fitzgerald said, it would not get signs up until next year at the earliest.

The Planning Commission had suggested a "different kind of sign" symbolic of the area, he designed so visitors would remember Charlevoix County.

FITZGERALD SAID the conventional type signs will be up in time for tourist season. These, though not unique, will be a great boon in helping visitors find their way around the county, he pointed out.

Signs will be located on all county roads, and most township roads, Fitzgerald said.

Walter Thorsen, Planning Commission chairman, who chaired the open meeting, said "We have to start thinking county-wide instead of community. Once we get people in the county all communities will benefit."

There are many agencies in the county doing the same thing with limited funds, he said. If this money and effort were combined, Thorsen added, a more complete job could be done.

We are indeed fortunate to live in what has been termed the Golden Age of medical discovery. Many of the diseases formerly treated are now virtually unknown. In the middle ages one-third of the population in Europe was destroyed by the plague, known as "Black Death." Smallpox wiped out families and communities in helping visitors find their way around the county, he pointed out.

Signs will be located on all county roads, and most township roads, Fitzgerald said.

Staley declared the city is spending enough to improve electric service. His strongest change was that the $65,000 estimated profit from the utility is "fiction."

The former second ward councilman said he feels the city has lagged in spending money to repair and replace electric lines and should spend at least $27,000 this year. The budget calls for spending $18,000.

"WE ARE KNOWN to have problems with service to some factories. The quality of power is a consideration in whether they expand here, or elsewhere," Staley said.

SOME OF THE city's power lines are dangerous, Staley said. He urged that this be corrected.

Councilman Robert Gill announced that work has already been started that will eliminate complications in industrial service. Contractors are working on $17,000 worth of line improvements.

This $17,000 may be in addition to the $18,000 originally planned this year, the council agreed before adopting the budget.

Work on the lines is costing $100 an hour.

Staley pointed out industrial use of electricity was up 20 percent last year, and rural residential use up 18 percent. In contrast to rural use, the sale of electricity to homes in the city only increased three percent.

DURING THE debate students sat beside their real counterparts.

These facts, seem to exist now simply as tragic history which can never happen to us, and we are thus lulled into complacency. The bulk of the matter is that only the constant vigilance of health authorities, from the relatively small local groups such as our own District Health Department headed by Dr. L. L. Lenzburg, to international organizations, keep these dangers from happening here.

The dangers now are even greater because of the great concentration of population, and the rapidity of modern travel.

WITH THESE thoughts in mind, the doctors of Charlevoix urge the whole-hearted cooperation of everyone in the community-wide Sabin polio vaccine program. It is emphasized that people who have been immunized with the Salk vaccine should still have the Sabin vaccine for two reasons: 1. The Sabin vaccine has a higher percentage of effectiveness, and 2. The Sabin vaccine eliminates the "residual" state. Important to many is the fact that the Sabin vaccine is given by mouth and does not involve "shots."

It has been demonstrated that many people who have been given Salk vaccine and are thus protected against the paralysis of poliomyelitis can still be carriers of the disease and transmit it to those not vaccinated. Again, the entire community is urged to participate in the project—regardless of age, health and previous vaccination.

Charlevoix Sends 110,000 Trout to N.Y.

Some 110,000 lake trout are being planted this week in eastern Lake Ontario from the Charlevoix National Fish Hatchery.

The fish are being planted in Lake Ontario as a segment of Lake trout experimental studies carried out by Ontario and New York. Authorization for the planting was granted by the Great Lakes Fisheries Commission which rules over all such operations and designates where all lake trout are planted.

APPROXIMATELY four pounds of five to six inch fish are being placed in plastic bags containing a small amount of water and the bag is then filled with pure oxygen.

It will take about 1,200 bags to complete the planting. The fish are able to live under these conditions up to seven hours.

An amphibious airplane is being used to transport the fish to an Ontario hatchery from which they will be planted by barge hours after put in the bag. It will take approximately seven plane loads to move all of the fish.

Personnel from the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, New York Department of Conservation and the U.S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife are participating in the planting operation.

Recalls Days of Daring

By M. L. WOELL
Michigan Farm Bureau

The Antarctic Explorer's Club, one of the world's most exclusive clubs, will hold a dinner meeting in London June 19. With luck, a Michigan farmer may be among the honored guests.

The occasion is the 50th anniversary of the departure from England of the famed "Shackleton Antarctic Expedition" which survived incredible hardships in the unexplored Antarctic wilderness.

ABOARD THE 144-FOOT Norwegian sail and steam ship "Endurance" when it sailed in 1914 were 28 men, among them "able seamen" William B. Ekwel and two farm boys with his wife, Merle, at Dukes, Michigan in the Upper Peninsula.

The South Pole was the goal of the Shackleton Expedition, but things just didn't work out that way. After months of travel, the Endurance became trapped in ice within the Antarctic Circle, stranding the crew with a minimum of food and equipment.

After nearly three months aboard the stranded ship, the ice pressure began to cause it to break up, and "although she was well-built, sturdy and strong, the ice crushed her like so many match sticks," Ekwel recalls.

Then following a harrowing tale of overland travel on ice—riding ice floes through open water, and a final rescue off Elephant Island shore two years later. Eventually, Ekwel drifted back to the United States and then north to Dukes in the Upper Peninsula.

HIS FARM WORK is modest as fits his 75 years, and given mostly to sheep, grazing. But Ekwel's step is sprightly and his mind is sharp. And he would like nothing better than to take his wife to the dinner in London where the survivors of the expedition will be the guests of honor.

Mostly, it is a matter of money. Enough for two, and money of that size comes hard in an 80-acre farm. That's why the Marquette-Alger Farm Bureau people have begun a fund drive to help out.

"We feel the Ekwels—whom we know as fine farm neighbors, deserve the chance to go," says Mrs. Earl Passinault, secretary of the Farm Bureau, who lists her address at 718 W. Superior Street, Munising as a place to send contributions.

"Survival of the expedition itself was a miracle; maybe we can help make another happen," she says.

Pistol Team Tops CG Squad

After two straight losses to the U.S. Coast Guard, the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club pistol team racked up a total of 1065 to win over the service team's 1034 points.

L.T. CHARLES A. Millard with a 276 continued to post the highest score for the Coast Guard. He was followed by John Satka with a 259; Chief Edwin Perzynski with 253 and Don Kirkham with a 249. Others were: Jack Hopkins with 227; Fred Thurston, 219 and Dave Radatz, 196.

★ Mothers Day

and mothers have the first and greatest opportunity in the way of preparing their children for a Christian way of life in the home of George Robert said "One good Mother is worth 100 school masters."

An old Spanish Proverb says "An ounce of Mother is worth a pound of Clergy." Because the mother of James and John was concerned about the success of her sons, it is only natural that she make this petition, "and that my 'sons may sit, one on Thy right hand, and the other on Thy left in Thy Kingdom."

She asked nothing for herself, for she was a mother who was willing to make any sacrifice for her sons.

There is one lesson that her sons deserve to have: their mother ask this favor for them: Jesus said, "Are ye able to drink of the cup that I drink of, and to be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?" Jesus surely must have realized that here was a mother with genuine love and concern for her sons. This mother had poured out her life for them and demanded nothing in return.

I wondered her sons caught the spirit of her sacrificial love within their hearts? Jesus is saying, "Are you really prepared to love your life in service to others?" This was the mission of Jesus, for the came to give himself for the whole world.

THIS IS THE question all of us face this Mother's Day, May 10, for the very idea of Mother's Day is bound to suggest that we owe a great debt to our mothers.

Shall we pay the debt? Will we be tempted to pay it in a counterfeited "Yes?" There is an exchange value to the effect that cheap money drives out good, and of this price on responsible conduct is always.

More Delay On Dock

City Councilmen haven't given up hope of salvaging at least part of the Round Lake Harbor improvement plan for this summer.

The city's plans have been thwarted, or delayed by several complications:

- Initial estimates set the cost of the project at less than $100,000. Engineers now estimate $150,000.

- How to get State Waterways Commission approval of the plans last winter were delayed by disagreement with engineers. They still haven't received the state's OK.

- Councilmen feel the state should pay more than 50 percent of the cost. The Waterways Commission still insists on putting up only 50 percent.

- Construction bids were to have been taken by late April. Due to delays the day for taking bids is still at least two months away.

With the state only paying 50 percent Mayor E. D. Hawley says the city can't possibly pay one-half of a $150,000 project this year.

THIS MEANS ONLY part of the harbor improvements could be started this summer.

The Waterways Commission paid 75 percent of the cost for Boyne City's new docking facilities. Mayor Hawley pointed out, He said the council will continue to negotiate with the state in hopes of getting more than 50 percent for Charlevoix.

The plan calls for putting in 13 new docks, a shower-toilet-harbor-masters office building and new parking space.

Engineers, Councilman William Trochman said, submitted plans calling for only 11 docks. This had to be revised to 13 before councilmen would approve its submission for final OK to the state.

PLAN EXPANSION Charlevoix County's Board of Supervisors plans to add $100,000 in new space for beds to Grandview Medical Facility. It is hoped the $100,000 will buy space for a dozen or more rooms to the 42 bed existing facility. Engineers will submit plans to the Building and Grounds Committee in the near future, the chairman, Harry Gebeau, reports. $83,000 of the $100,000 is available in cash.

County Farmers Still Eligible For 1964 Winter Wheat Program

BOYNE CITY — Charlevoix County winter wheat growers, who seeded their crop last fall, are still eligible to take part in the 1964 voluntary wheat program, Robert W. Reidel, county Agricultural Stabilization Committee (ASC) chairman, reports.

He said many growers have taken the first step toward participation by planting within the wheat allotments established before the marketing quota vote last spring.

THE NEXT STEP IS for the grower to get in touch with the ASC county office at Boyne City and sign up as a participant. The wheat program signup will extend through May 15.

After signing up, qualifying as a participant will mean: (1) Staying within the farm's 1961 acreage allotment, which already has had the minimum qualifying acreage diversion payment and certificates based on the normal production of the eligible acreage planted to wheat.

THE CERTIFICATES will have a cash value of 70 cents per bushel for the domestic marketing certificates, representing the producer's share of the wheat allocated for U. S. export, and 25 cents per bushel for the export marketing certificates, covering his share of the export marketing allocation. The Commodity Credit Corporation, through ASC county committees, will help the producers to market their wheat certificates.

Payments covering acreage diversion and certificates will begin after July 1.

Applications are now being filed in the county ASC office.

Area Bands Join to Put on Mass Concert

The two Charlevoix High School bands organizations are participating this week in the Annual Massed Band Festivals, sponsored by the Northern Michigan District of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association.

Yesterday (Wednesday) the 70 piece Reserve Band was in East Jordan taking part in the festival there. Today (Thursday) the Senior Band of 86 pieces is participating in the same type of festival in Petoskey.

BOTH FESTIVALS are to have the same form - individual performances in the afternoon, following a parade of all participating bands, and climaxed by a massed band concert in the evening. All performances are open to the public at a nominal charge.

The Reserve band yesterday played the warm-up march "Hall of Fame" by Olivadotti and the overture "Gloriole" by Noble. The guest critic, who wrote constructive criticism of the performance, was Russ Little, of Frankfort, who also served as guest conductor of the 314 piece massed band.

Other bands who participated in the East Jordan festival were the Boy City High School Band, directed by Dwight Smith; the Boyne City High School Band, directed by Herbert Parrott; the Suttons Bay High School Band, directed by Robert Merkel; the Elk Rapids High School Band, directed by Walter Williams and the Gaylord High School Band, directed by Gary Waldo.

In Petoskey today the same plan is being followed—the Senior band is scheduled to perform at approximately 1 p.m. this afternoon. It will play the overture "Zampa" by Herold and the "March of the Steelmen" by Kesterling. The band parade is scheduled for approximately 2 p.m., while the performance of the massed band will be at 7:30 tonight in the Petoskey High School gym.

GUEST CRITIC FOR today's festival is Walter Williams of Elk Rapids High School. Bands and directors taking part in the Petoskey Festival are: Petoskey High School Band and the Petoskey High School Reserve Band, both directed by Max Smith; The Harbor Springs High School Band, directed by Joseph Jezsik; the Grayling High School Band, directed by LeRoy Christian and The Pellston High School band, directed by Barbara Spencer.

Almost 1400 musicians from the area will participate in these festivals, culminating the year's instrumental activities.

Modern Math Challenges Both Students, Teachers

Modern elementary school mathematics presents more of a challenge to both teachers and students.

Two Charlevoix Elementary School teachers pointed this out to the Board of Education at its meeting last week.

MRS. BESSIE Coleman and Mrs. Carolyn Klooster told the board both teachers and students are benefiting from the new methods of teaching grade school arithmetic. They went into detail on how the new techniques are different.

"After using this two years, teachers would hate to go back to the dull, boring method," Glenn Snider, principal, said. Board members gave their own candid testimonials to the effectiveness of the new techniques.

"I'm having trouble with grade three math," Mrs. L. P. Hooper, board member said. Mrs. Hooper has a son in the third grade who brings his math studies home.

BOARD PRESIDENT Darrell Dinwiddie said his third-grade daughter is "coming home with words (dealing with arithmetic) we've never heard before." And Dinwiddie is an auditor.

Mrs. Coleman said she had a mother in who asked, "You are teaching so much more in the second grade now, what are you trying to do, keep up with the Russians?"

Mrs. Klooster said the new method has a "lot of new terms and the approach is much different, but we still teach the basic facts."

BOTH TEACHERS were quite emphatic in their opinion that students take to the new math. "They just love it," Mrs. Klooster said. The modern math technique calls for teaching arithmetic through situations and symbols the students are familiar with, the teachers explained.

It also calls for emphasis on writing story-type answers, which helps the children with their English, spelling, etc.

Pat Healey at Dairy Confab

EAST JORDAN — Pat Healey, East Jordan High School junior, was among more than 80 4-H girls from throughout the state who studied the Michigan dairy industry at the 1964 4-H Dairy Foods Conference at Michigan State University.

Pat is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Healey.

Mrs. Ross Alexander gave a resume of the activities of the Garden Club during the past 25 years at the guest night dinner marking the club's silver anniversary recently.

Rayders 4th in 62 Team Relay

The Charlevoix Rayders placed fourth among 62 teams in the Class C division of the Central Michigan relays Saturday at Mount Pleasant.

LARRY EDWARDS pictured here as he put the shot 45 ft. 5 1/2 in. to capture top honors in the event during a dual meet with Traverse City St. Francis at Kipke field Thursday. A senior, he will be among the young thins that will attempt to return the Northern Michigan Class C title to Charlevoix at Gaylord on Monday.

Charlevoix's 25 points earned on four firsts placed them behind Battle Creek St. Phillip which won top honors with 39 points. Portland followed with 34 and Flint Holy Redeemer with 30.

THE RAYDERS won only one relay event, the top point winners in the meet. This was the shuttle relay run by Andy Carey, Steve Wilson, John Ferguson and Gary Stutzman. The time was 1:03. Relay events gave the first place winners 10 points.

Stutzman came through with victories in both the 120 yard high and 180 yd. low hurdles, running the first in a time of 15.7 and the latter in 21.3.

Larry McBride racked up a blue ribbon in the pole vault, taking the event with a 12 ft. 2 1/2 in. vault.

Coach Del Terrill said this was the first time in eight years the Rayders had participated in the Chip Relays. There were 62 Class C schools entered.

IN COMMENTING on the meet Coach Terrill said the Rayders' lack of speed and experience in this type of meet were handicaps in the event. However, he felt it was an experience from which they will benefit.

Thirty-six young thins made the trip.

On Monday the Rayders will go to Gaylord in hopes of capturing the Northern Michigan Class C title held by Mancelona.

CHS Upsets Traverse

The Charlevoix Rayders made it two meets in a row last week when they upset a strong Traverse City St. Francis outfit 57 1/2 to 51 1/2 in a meet at Kipke field.

The Rayders swept the field events, racking up 29 1/2 of their total points in these events, and depending on depth in track events to give them the winning margin.

IN ADDITION to the track events, the Rayders won firsts in the low and high hurdles won by Gary Stutzman and the 880 relay.

Traverse City won all events demanding speed, which the Rayders sorely lack.

The results follow:
High jump: Steve Smith, Nick DeYoung and Mark Bourgoin tied for second, 4' 5 1/4".

Pole vault: Larry McBride; McNeil TCSF; Smith and Alan Lusk tied with Smith and Doniot TCSF for third place, 11' 6".

Shot put: Larry Edwards; Fleese TCSF Grunch. Distance: 45' 5 1/4".

880 relay: Charlevoix (Bruce Kroken, McBride, Dave Zipp, Jim Uhrick).

1 mile: O'Brien TCSF; Floyd Parsons; Corcoran TCSF. Time: 6:11.9.

120 high hurdles: Stutzman; John Ferguson; Lautner TCSF. Time: 16.2.

Broad jump: Kroken; McBride;

RECEIVE TROPHY — It was a happy day for Coach Del Terrill and the Charlevoix High School thinsclads at Oscoda when the Rayders captured the Oscoda Invitational Relays the first year they entered the event. Here Coach Terrill receives the event trophy from Pat Tate, Oscoda high school athletic director as the young cindermen, who had set four records and rolled up 55 1/2 points smile their approval.

Coast Guard Outlines Pleasure Boat Safety

The U. S. Coast Guard boarding team from the Charlevoix Lifeboat Station will be operating in the Charlevoix area during the coming months, checking boat numbers, registration and safety devices. Lt. Charles A. Mirard has announced.

A pleasure boat, underway, when hailed by the Coast Guard is required by federal law to lay to or maneuver in such a way to permit boarding. This applies to all craft. Failure to stop when signaled or to permit boarding may subject the operator or owner of the violating craft to a penalty of $100.

SAFETY EQUIPMENT required for motor boats under 25 feet long and not for hire, which includes most boats in the area, are: one approved life saving device in good condition for each person aboard; between sunset and sunrise a white light at stern visible for two miles and combination red and green lights at bow visible for one mile, of over 16 feet in centerline length, the boat must also carry a hand, mouth or power-operated whistle or horn which can produce a blast of two seconds duration audible for one-half mile; rowboats between sunset and sunrise must have a white light readily available.

Numbering must be legible block type letters and numerals at least three inches high and of a color which contrasts with the hull of the boat. The certificate of numbers and registration card must be available for inspection at all times when the vessel is in use. All undocumented vessels propelled by machinery of more than ten horsepower are required to have a certificate of numbers.

If a violation is noted, a report is made to the Commander, Ninth Coast Guard District, Cleveland, Ohio, and the owner or operator will be required to explain to the District Commander the reason for the violation and what will be done to correct the situation.

Dog Training

A basic obedience training course for dogs begins at 7:15 p.m. May 6 at the Central Lake School.

The course runs eight weeks, the fee is $8. Mrs. John Reid will be the instructor. The heel on leash, stand for examination, heel free, recall, long sit and long down are some of the commands to be covered.

THE TRAINING is the same whether you own a family pet, a dog that handles livestock, a hunter or a future field or obedience trial competitor. It makes no difference if he weighs two pounds or 180 pounds, if he is six months old or six years, if he has a long pedigree or his father was just passing through town. For more information write Mrs. John E. Faas, Central Lake, K1 4-2885.

Buy Bulldozer

The Charlevoix County Road Commission at its April meeting spent $34,000 for new equipment, Supt. Jack Fitzgerald reports.

The commission bought a rubber tired bulldozer for $29,000 with trade-in. It also purchased three pickup trucks for $3,900 with trade, from Fletch's Garage in Petoskey.

All were purchased from bidders.

Remind Boatmen to Get Permits

Local boat owners who use their craft for navigating the Great Lakes and connecting waterways were reminded today that they must obtain special boat plates by paying on annual tax provided for in the Tonnage Tax and Boat Plate Act.

This annual tax should not be confused with the registration and numbering of all motor boats, Secretary of State James M. Hare said.

"ALL MOTOR BOATS must be registered and numbered," Hare asserted. "This numbering fee costs $3 for each boat. We had a general re-registration of all boats last year, and the next re-registration will take place in 1966. In the meantime, all new boats and renewals must be registered by paying the $3 fee."

The registration numbering program is policed by local law enforcement officials, while the special annual plate tax is under the jurisdiction of the Department of State. The following tax rates were listed by Hare: 16-20 feet, $5; 20-28 feet, $15; 28-35 feet, $25; 35-42 feet, $35; 42-50 feet, $45; 50-65 feet, $75; over 65 feet, $1 per foot and $1 per ton additional for each gross ton.

This special tax may be taken care of at a number of branch offices of the Secretary of State, at certain marinas, or by contacting Watercraft Unit, Secretary of State, 300 E. Michigan Avenue, Lansing, Michigan, 48918.

Let's Halt Floundering On Slum-Hire Experts

LAST WEEK'S forthright prodding of the public's conscience about Charlevoix's "slum" area was re-sented by many Courier readers. These people would prefer to let the problem slumber and fester.

Why, they ask, should hard working, respectable citizens — and outsiders — be reminded of this blotch on our beautiful community? They know it's there. Why not allow them to continue to ignore it?

OF COURSE, THIS is exactly what they have done: refused to recognize the need for action.

This inaction is what finally forced juvenile, court, social and health officials to ask the Courier to bring the disgrace out in the open. By cooperating with them the Courier recognizes its critics who contend the newspaper has made life uncomfortable for people with the slightest bit of social conscience who now must face up to the condition.

It would be—and has been—easier to simply put the southwest sector of town out of our mind. But we cannot put it out of our town by doing this. And it must be cleaned up.

Without dignity for the individual, and equal opportunity for children, democracy is a meaningless word. Certainly no man or woman who lives in a shed without running water or plumbing can have much dignity. Nor can a child who is raised in such conditions be considered to have an equal opportunity.

THE GLARING WEAKNESS is the position of county officials is that they do not offer a pat solution. No one can. If they could, Charlevoix's dedicated and able city officials would have solved the situation years ago.

City Councilmen are as aware as anyone—and more so than most—that it borders on inhuman to have U. S. citizens living in such squalor and humility in one of the world's most beautiful communities. The fact that other communities have similar conditions has no validity. Charlevoixians are proud of the fact that they live in a city that's "just a little better."

However, councilmen realize simply running a sewer and water line into the area will not solve the problem. Nor will a hodge-podge of building and health codes.

But they do not know what the answer is. Nor does anyone else who has stepped forward in Charlevoix. Because we do not know what to do, we do nothing.

AND YET THE ANSWER is quite simple, if we will look at it simply. If any of us had a medical problem we would go to a doctor. If you want to sell something, you place a want ad. If you need your car fixed, you go to a mechanic. And etc.

The point is that when you have a problem you are not equipped to deal with you go to an expert. There are experts who are professionals at dealing with such problems as Charlevoix's slum area. Now is the time for councilmen—with support from citizens—to call them in.

These professionals are called planners, or planning consultants. They have offices staffed by men who do nothing but study and solve such matters.

An excellent example of such a firm is Vilcan and Lehman of the Detroit area (and there are others, but this one comes to mind). If councilmen would ask a representative from Vilcan and Lehman to outline what they can do for Charlevoix the cost would probably be no more than traveling expenses, if that.

THESE MEN KNOW things about community development, and how to control and guide it, that no one could possibly be aware of unless it is their vocation.

Professional planners will not come up with a fast answer. It may take two years for them to develop a sound master plan for Charlevoix. This would be done under the control of a city planning commission. Though the final product will take time there will immediately be concrete evidence that the problem is in hand and moving toward a solution.

The federal government will pay 50 percent, or more, of the cost. And when the planning is done, because it has been conducted by experts, great amounts of federal money will be made available to put into effect recommendations resulting from the master plan.

Charlevoix has shown no reluctance recently to take federal grants. And it shouldn't. If the well protected boys in Washington didn't take so much from our wallets we could afford more for local projects.

IT IS ALSO IMPORTANT to realize that this would not result in a solution just for the area directly north of the airport. It will give all of Charlevoix a sound foundation for immediate and future problems. It will assure us that Charlevoix will remain Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Perhaps the slum area is our greatest problem. But it would be absurd to suggest there aren't others. So the question isn't whether Charlevoix can afford to call in the experts. There is no question: Charlevoix cannot afford not to!

Unique Signs A Good Idea

SUGGESTIONS BY the County Planning Commission that a county-wide group study road sign design warrants support.

The Planning Commission is calling on the Road Commission to work with it—and local chambers of commerce—on the project unfortunately, the timing is off. The Road Commission must proceed as planned.

THERE HAS BEEN some criticism that the Road Commission is reluctant to work with others on designing a sign that will compliment our county and give it something unique. We are prone to disregard this. The Road Commission has a big job to do. Sitting down with a loosely knit group of laymen to discuss road signs can be a wearisome, unproductive chore.

However, it now appears there is enough organized, qualified interest in a comparable project to make it worthwhile. The Road Commission evidently thinks so too, as it has agreed to joint efforts to hit on a solution.

Though we haven't been asked, we might suggest the group ask for suggestions from such noted local creators of original ideas as Earl A. Young and Wayne Belding. No telling what they will come up with. But it's sure to be interesting.

These signs, as Planning Commission chairman Walter Thorsen suggests, should be used to mark the route to lakes, beaches and all other attractions. It will cost something. But you only get what you pay for. Charlevoix County deserves the best.

From Charlevoix's Past . . .

This picture from Ralph Price's collection of Charlevoix's harbor in the 1880's shows mud and stump fields standing on the outskirts of the then much smaller village. The picture was taken from a point where the Brow Marina now stands.

Today the neat, trim concrete and lawn of the harbor is a far cry from this unkempt scene. However, even in those days Round Lake provided one of the finest protected harbor's on the Great Lakes. If anyone in the 1880's could have predicted the boom in pleasure boating they would have realized Charlevoix would someday be the ultimate summer spot for thousands.

To the Editor

Teachers Put in 70 Hours

TO THE EDITOR:

Recently in the Charlevoix Courier two letters have appeared pertaining to teachers' pay and working time. Both of these letters could have been written by the same person, as both expressed the same antiquated, illogical thinking. I am asking the editor to print my name because I am not ashamed of what I am going to write. We teach our students that if they are to be convincing, they should write facts, not fiction, reality not dreams, and logic not irrationality.

First Mr. "Name Withheld" asked "Why should a teacher be compelled to have a college degree to teach the first eight grades, when an eighth grade is sufficient?"

IT APPEARS THAT he has not kept abreast with the times. Each state has a system of education which requires those who teach to have a license in the form of a teacher's certificate. This requirement was made in the public interest to protect children from being taught by persons who do not meet the standards of preparation, character, and health. If the Board of Education hired non-qualified teachers, it would mean a penalty in dollars and cents to the taxpayers because the school would lose some of its state aid.

Since this is a state regulation, it can be reasonably presumed that this ruling was brought about by a need in society. Apparently the people felt that teachers should have far greater knowledge than that of the children they teach. This need cannot be looked upon lightly. Also these certificates are not issued indiscriminately to all who wish to teach. Many would-be teachers cannot do the college work satisfactorily. Others are eliminated from the teaching profession during their probational period of work in the public schools.

Elementary teaching requires abilities and qualities of personality not possessed in sufficient degree by many people. Parents of boys and girls in the first eight grades have a right to expect these teachers to be well qualified. The Charlevoix people are above average intellectually, and they are not going to settle for second-rate teachers.

Our best teachers are needed in the grades. These are the years when children acquire the tools of learning and the incentive to use them to the limits of their ability. Your life and mine might well depend on how successful they are. There is no more important person in their lives at this time than a highly skilled teacher. Let us keep the excellent ones we now have in the grades.

THE STATES HAVE similar systems of granting licenses to other professions, such as dentistry, law and medicine. We no longer accept quacks in these areas. Who today would settle for someone with an eighth grade education to fill his teeth, to doctor him, or to represent him in court? Aren't our boys and girls worthy of something better, too? I am happy that there are few people who would sacrifice our basic democratic values and disregard our heritage by providing a minimum education for our children, our most valuable possessions, just to save a few tax dollars.

Mr. "Name Withheld" also said

"Considering the amount of time a teacher actually works in comparison with other positions, they receive too much as it is." I am retiring this year. Mrs. Lucille Martin is taking an indefinite leave of absence. Neither one of us is of compulsory retirement age. We both were asked to return next year; yet, we are quitting because we are weary of the twelve-hour day, six days a week, which is not uncommon. Last week I kept track of my hours spent on duties connected with teaching. It was not an unusual week—I spent seventy hours on school work.

When I consider my take-home pay after social security, retirement, professional dues, and income tax have been deducted, it leaves less per hour than a good or carpenter would receive. My position is not unique. The other teachers also work long hours after school and weekends.

NEITHER CAN A teacher's salary be compared to the salary of a worker who did not spend years in training above the eighth grade or high school. Ask any parent who is putting children through school now. Educational expenses are high, and the loss of earning power during that time is an even higher figure. Also teaching is now becoming a yearly job, often requiring summer school and evening courses. For example, a teacher of science two years ago is now out of date unless he studies new scientific developments. A teacher who had a major in mathematics a few years ago must do extra studying now to teach the new arithmetic.

In addition to keeping up with new educational trends and facts, a teacher must make lesson plans, prepare and check tests, correct daily papers, average and record grades, attend and supervise school functions, supervise during noon hours and recess, act as class advisor, have conferences with parents and students, belong to various committees which often necessitate detailed work, attend PTA's, appear on programs, attend faculty meetings, participate in various professional organizations, attend workshops or seminars, often attend evening classes, and do other time-consuming duties. If anyone thinks a teacher's day is from 8:45 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., I challenge him to follow any one of our teachers for a week.

ANOTHER STATEMENT was made that students in high school can not do simple arithmetic problems. This is a gross error probably based on one or two observations of our poorer students. I am sure it is stated without any substantial grounds. Our students are tested yearly. These results are available, and I have followed them. On a national comparison our students are above average. Two weeks ago I went over a set of arithmetic papers from a fourth grade class. I was astonished at what I saw. Their knowledge of mathematics was far greater than what I had anticipated. They were doing not only arithmetic but also geometry.

If Mr. "Name Withheld" thinks our students are ignorant of mathematics, including simple arithmetic, we cordially invite him to take the next standardized achievement test in mathematics administered to the high school and to compare his results with those of our students. If he would feel uncomfortable with the group, private arrangements can be made.

Yes, advice on education comes freely from those who are non-specialized, uninformed, and critical because they are uninformed. In spite of all of this, our school will continue to progress by hiring personnel who are committed to professional service and who are fully qualified to perform their respective roles with excellence. Let us pay our teachers enough so that we may continue to keep competent, professional personnel.

Speech Problems Can Cause Anguish

SPEECH CORRECTION IN THE SCHOOLS

by Dr. Ratigan

The 5-year-old who says "wittle" for "little" is socially and educationally acceptable, but the male adult of 21 who says "wittle" is bound to attract unfavorable attention. Such a person needs the services of a speech correctionist early in school life. Continued use of defective speech may well result in a personality maladjustment.

Authorities are agreed that there appears to be a relationship between speech and reading difficulties. The child who has speech problems quite often has reading problems, and vice versa.

ACCORDING TO statistics, there are no less than two million children between the ages of 5 and 21 years who are handicapped by speech difficulties. Two million more have relatively minor speech and voice defects which may cause them mental anguish, social embarrassment, and keep them from certain fields of work such as teaching, where good speech is vital.

Generally speaking, there are ten to twelve children with speech problems in the average kindergarten of thirty pupils. Time, vocal maturing, and the growing-in of "second" teeth tend to eliminate many of the problems for the majority of children, but other children remain whose problems require the services of an educational specialist.

On entering the school system, the speech correctionist will screen certain grades each year. He is assisted in his work by the regular teachers who are quick to recognize speech defects and to make referrals to an adequate and available source. Parents also are important and helpful in this team effort toward better speech because they have lived with the problems and, literally, know them by heart.

AT THE KINDERGARTEN level a speech correctionist rarely if ever would accept a referral on an individual child. Instead he would visit the kindergarten at regular intervals throughout the school year, listening to the children as they recite nonsense rhymes in a group, noting individual speech defects for future reference, but not singling out any child. His aim at this stage is to teach proper sounds and to locate the more serious problems that will require special education.

Starting at the first grade level and beyond, the speech correctionist begins to take referrals from teachers and parents on the speech defects of individual pupils. He examines the child, diagnoses the difficulty, and prescribes treatment. Generally he gives special instructions to the teacher and/or the parent so that remedial work may go on in the regular classroom and in the home.

The speech correctionist must budget his time and choose the children most in need of help. He is not unduly concerned about the kindergarten child who is still unable to make the r or s or th sound. He knows that natural maturation, a wise classroom teacher, and an understanding home will tend to take care of the pupil's normal speech development.

The 7-year-old may still be trying to master the sounds r and s, and this is by no means abnormal. In fact, the approximate age level for sounds is about as follows: r, 3½ years; b, p, m, w, h; at 4½ years; d, t, n, ng, y; at 5½ years; f; at 6½ years; v, th (voiced), zh, sh; at 7½ years; s, z, r, th (voiceless), wh.

TYPICAL SPEECH errors are the substitution of w for r, as in "wight" for "right"; or w for l, as in "yewo" for "yellow"; or th for s, as in "yeth" for "yes." These errors are commonly found among young children with immature speech. Sometimes a sound like p is substituted for f, as "I peel punny." Then there are children who may say "summer" for "summer" or add a vowel between other syllables as "on-on the table."

Speech errors, detected and early school years, are largely correctable, but the child with defective speech who does not receive special education services may become a handicapped adult.

Orchids to the Shakespeare and Dickens Study clubs for a job well done . . . a blue ribbon prize for a most worthwhile community service project that has heaped honors on themselves and Charlevoix . . . Right now the project is in national competition . . . Let's hope it wins something in this category.

A reminder: as of this year the Charlevoix school district has become a registration district . . . What does that mean. Up until now anyone in the community could vote in a school election as long as he or she met the requirements . . . a resident of the school district for 30 days and the state for six months, etc. BUT NOW everyone must be registered just as they must for a political election . . . The school district receives from your voting precinct, city or township, your voting record . . . thus, if you are registered to vote in any political election, you are also eligible to vote in the forthcoming school election . . . But if you have been one of those people who has never bothered about registering because you aren't interested in politics (and there are many who fit into this category), then please, please register . . . with your city or township clerk . . . so you won't be disappointed when the school election rolls around . . . The deadline, by the way, is Monday, May 11 . . .

ONE OF CHARLEVOIX'S oldest and most respected citizens, Ernest Peaslee of Hayes township, celebrated his 91st birthday anniversary last week . . . A former teacher, Mr. Peaslee was clerk with the Road Commission for many years and has always been one of the real pillars of the First Baptist Church . . . Now that he's at the LeClerc Nursing Home at East Jordan, his friends, both old and new, remember him . . . A group of them headed by Rev. and Mrs. Jack Harris visited him and brought a birthday cake and ice cream . . . So, though a bit late, happy anniversary to an old and treasured friend of the entire Marlin clan . . .

If you've written to any of your friends and told them that you'd meet them at the Michigan state exhibit at the World's Fair in New York, send a follow-up fast or you'll never catch up with them . . . Because, for some unexplained reason, the state of Michigan did not deem the fair important enough to enter an exhibit . . . The magazine section of the New York Times carried a story about the Fair, its many exhibits, etc. . . . Some 20 different exhibits by states, many of them by states that have joined together, as, for instance, the New England-states . . . Minnesota has incorporated into its exhibit a real woodland stream stocked with trout, Wisconsin has a Timber Festival along with scenes depicting its hunting and fishing opportunities plus a huge honest-to-goodness exhibit . . . Illinois its Abe Lincoln exhibit . . . and others exhibits typical of their respective states . . . But Michigan, the automotive and furniture headquarters of the nation . . . home of the Soo Locks, the busiest waterway of its kind in the world . . . the state with the longest shoreline touched by four of the five Great Lakes.

Englishman Prefers Being an American

By FIAN MARTIN

Back on the waterfront at the Fairport Yacht basin from a trip to his native England is Phil Lawrence, who, despite his clipped British accent, found, during a recent visit that he had finally become more American than English.

Born in Clivedon near Bristol, Phil has been gone from England since he went to sea at the age of 16 years. At the age of 21 he became third-mate on a sea-going vessel, and until he came to Chicago in the early 1940's, sailed the Seven Seas with the English Merchant Service. With the outbreak of World War II, he went to Canada and enlisted in the Canadian Navy with which he served four years. After the war he returned home and eventually became an American citizen. In 1951 he had gone home for a visit and only recently returned from a second visit.

IT WAS DURING this last trip that Phil, who with the G. A. Paties, owns and operates the Fairport, found that he had become more American than British and was seeing things in a different light.

An extrovert with interests in many things, Phil shared his recent experiences one afternoon recently, relating his impressions and observations with humor and interest.

At the time central heating, or rather the lack of it in England was his chief topic of conversation. "I guess I've been gone too long to appreciate the fireplace and the primitive means of heating English homes," he said as he told of his impressions of visits to homes of his friends. "I'll never think of those people again that I won't picture them huddled around a fire trying to keep warm," he commented. It seems that no matter what type of heating installation is used it is always called a "fire" whether it's a fireplace, a stove, heater or something else.

But despite these "hereships" Phil enjoyed a leisurely visit with his mother, Mrs. Beatrice Lawrence, who at 83, lives alone in a new and more convenient flat to which Phil moved her while he was there.

IT WAS INTERESTING to hear Phil tell of things that impressed him most. Like the increased number of cars since he was there in 1951... the courtesy of the English people... the "queueing up" for everything from a railway ticket to groceries, a habit acquired during the war... the abundance with which drivers flash through the countryside, with no thought to safety or the hazards of the narrow roads... the number of Negroes now seen in England... the cold nights when the temperature in the bedrooms dropped to the mid-30's... the people's desire for fresh air and wide open windows and buses without heat... the beautifully kept yards and gardens, the trim hedges and flowers despite the cold... the concern of the British about the death of President Kennedy... and tea, before rising.

PHIL LAWRENCE

ing, at breakfast, dinner, tea and supper and again before retiring... and a yen for good old American coffee.

Remembering his 'last trip to England and the lack of central heating, Phil took with him to England thermal underwear — "the best investment I ever made," he turned out to be a life-saver. He related. When I left the ship I put it on and kept it on until I returned to the ship for the return trip, he added.

Clivedon, where his mother still lives, is a residential community of some 14,000 people, located 14 miles from the industrial city of Bristol. Until a short time before he returned, his mother had been caring for a 77-year-old friend despite her advanced age of 83 years, he said. Clivedon has a newspaper published twice each month. Phil has arranged to send copies of the Courier to the editor who, in turn, will mail him copies of the Clivedon paper.

One of the first things he noticed was the increased number of cars compared to 1951. "And 95 percent are compact cars for two reasons, a third of the purchase price is purchase tax and petrol is 75 cents a gallon," he explained. He also observed that there were fewer bicycles... "probably because it's too dangerous to ride along the narrow highways where there are no speed limits except in the towns and villages where the limit is 30 miles an hour."

THE COURTESY of the people is something, he related. They're never too busy to help you find a place, to give you directions or to say "please" and "Thank you." As for queues, everyone did it during the war when things were rationed. The people got into the habit, it was a good time to visit and exchange bits of news, one made many friends this way and so they continue though there is no reason for it now, he said by way of explanation.

Space is at a premium in England and there is no place to build new roadways, so they just build them on top of winding roadbeds that may have been in use for centuries. "After all, one is not about to relinquish even the tiniest piece of precious land for a highway," he explained. Wide roadways and right-of-ways as Americans know them are unheard of in England, he added.

Another thing he noticed, especially in London, was the increased number of Negroes... many of them filling jobs in the subway and other public places where one seldom saw them in 1951, he commented.

The damp, bone-chilling cold and the gray, overcast "take" to it was one of his chief topics. Water pipes, for instance are placed on the outside walls of the houses and often freeze and burst. He told how people were without water for days during the severe weather of 1962-63 when these outdoor pipes froze and burst. Britishers are fresh air fiends and even on the coldest days they throw open their windows to let in the fresh air, regardless of the outdoor temperatures, he told of the cold damp weather after he arrived and the temperatures, in the low 20's, that resulted in hoar frost over everything, even the streets where it

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL Charlevoix fisherman so far this spring seems to be Irv Drost. Irv returned to Irv's Cocktail lounge from a trip to his mysterious UP stream with rainbows ranging up to 11 pounds. This isn't hearsay. He had 'em in the cooler.

DON'T BOTHER ASKING where he got them. He will lead you around and away from the subject better than a senator with 40 years experience.

Irv had promised to share his secret spot this spring. But then Anne (Mrs. Drost) had to horn in and there just wasn't room in the crowd.

Perhaps realizing he had committed a serious breach of honor, Irv came across with a tour the other day of his favorite Charlevoix fishing spots. As you probably know, he has 'em

One of the small lakes he guarantees is full of bass and panfish is so secluded and private there was actually a Loon in full view and more surprised to see us than we were to see it. It's insane laugh brought back poignant memories of childhood campfires.

AFTER A TOUR OF Irv's Charlevoix County, it seems a bit senseless to go wandering far afield in search of fish. However, most local fishermen are finding things slow.

There still seems to be little, if any, chance of a perch run in Round Lake. Bernie Ward has been waiting four years to mail out cards that announce the run has started. He doesn't seem very optimistic about getting them out this year.

Charlevoix's once-famous Perch-A-Rama appears to be a thing of the past. But maybe not. Who can tell what fish will do?

Merle Scott is a good deal more confident down in Ironport. The resident perch should start hitting any day in the South Arm. Could be this weekend will be "it". There's almost sure to be good perch fishing at Ironport before the spring is out.

MEARLE ALSO reports taking eight respectable brook trout in Monroe Creek (between Ironport and East Jordan) one day last week. He used worms.

Reports are that some of the kids are doing real well on Hnl Forbri's impoundment in Stover Creek beside the beet plant ruins. Some of the 'bows are said to run up to 18 inches.

formed a skating rink for the youngsters.

BUT, DESPITE the cold, there were always in bloom, a primrose, snowdrops and a hardy flowering plant, Himalayan saxifrage. The grass always seemed to be green and there were always flowers on vines clinging to fireplaces and roses with buds and daffodils.

In February the fields were tilled and seed potatoes planted in order to harvest them in May when a second crop will be planted.

After being gone so long, one of the things he found the most amusing were expressions that are typically English. For instance, when visiting with old friends, one "noters" (reminds, to the uninitiated). Instead of being laid off from work, the "Englishman" is laid off from a meeting. A friend at 10:30 sharp, it's 10:30 precisely, streets when slippery, are "gritted" instead of sanded, as an American would say, and, of course the television is referred to as "the telly".

Socialized medicine has its good points. Phil's friends told him. Under this type of care, one selects a doctor and then continues as his patient. If you are seriously ill or injured you receive excellent care under socialized medicine, was the consensus of opinion of most but if you have a chronic ailment or a pesky illness that has to be diagnosed, you receive brusque treatment and little attention is given to you. However, on the whole, people seem to be satisfied with socialized medicine. It is doubtful, however, if Americans would "take" to this, he added.

And after a couple of hours he concluded in an accept more British than ever since his return. "This was indeed a sentimental journey... a visit to a 'long ago' world. They asked me how I had become an American citizen and I told them I wouldn't want to be anything else. It was good seeing old friends and familiar old places and, of course, my mother. But it's good to be back... at my work, among my friends, to the life I've come to love here."

THE LAST TIME he was in England, the railroads were being nationalized. On his return he found the service much improved, especially the food served aboard the trains.

Everyone he met talked of the assassination of President Kennedy and were concerned about what it would mean to the world. "Until you talk with these people you cannot imagine with what great esteem President Kennedy was held abroad. It is as though these people have lost a personal friend," he said. It makes one take stock of what he says and does while abroad when you realize how closely we are observed, he added.

One of the things that impressed him greatly was the London Boat show which far surpassed anything he had thought he would see. It attracted countless American exhibitors as well as European exhibitors. Only six outboard motor manufacturers showed boats in this category. Exhibits were mostly of large, sea-going yachts, cruisers and sail boats of various classes. To give you an idea of the size of the show, the boats on exhibit were floated in a massive pool instead of being on ways as they are here.

After a couple of hours he concluded in an accept more British than ever since his return. "This was indeed a sentimental journey... a visit to a 'long ago' world. They asked me how I had become an American citizen and I told them I wouldn't want to be anything else. It was good seeing old friends and familiar old places and, of course, my mother. But it's good to be back... at my work, among my friends, to the life I've come to love here."

Seek Answers
On Lake Fish

Details are being worked out by the Conservation Dept. to start an intensive inventory of sport fishing potential in the Great Lakes that could give some answers on the lack of Charlevoix perch runs.

Don Peterson, district fisheries biologist, has pointed out that due to lack of information on Great Lakes fish populations and habits the department does not know what happened to Charlevoix's once fabulous perch runs.

THE SURVEY, scheduled to get underway this spring, is part of a broader effort to develop a full scale program of commercial and sport fisheries management for the Great Lakes.

For lack of better information sport fishermen as a whole are not taking advantage of angling opportunities throughout many parts of the Great Lakes, according to department officials. The task at hand is to pinpoint over looked areas, measure their fish populations, and make them known to the public.

At the outset, the inventory program will be devoted to centralizing the backlog of general information which is already available and to setting up a field crew for exploratory fishing.

For the next several years, this team of fisheries experts will carry on a systematic study of Great Lakes inshore waters to find new hot spots for sport fishing.

'A Man is as Big as the Things that Move Him'

By REV. H. E. KOHN

In spring we see elemental forces taking effect among us. Spring is a time of hatching and birth, with life getting a fresh start in myriad ponds and streams and nests and dens. It is a time of evolution when April and May conquer the tyranny of winter, life rears the rule of death, springing overthrows the kingdom of loam, and man feels sunlight enacting into the very marrow of his bones.

Now, in May we behold a blending of man's response to earth and earth's response to man. It is this indelible transaction of business between man and earth that takes spring the most exciting season of the year. In the yellow-green hours of springtime man acts and expects nature to react appropriately. The boy raises his kite to the strong, moist breezes; the householder cleans out last year's nesting box and hangs it in a tree near the house; a man to have her calf, and for a cow to bear her calf. The lawn is mowed; the garden is spaded; the field is ploughed; the gardener has planted his bulbs and the farmer sows his seeds. And each performs his task with the high expectation as if to say: "If I call, Nature will answer."

AGRICULTURE is based upon the assumption that there is something beyond us that is sympathetic to us and sensitive to what we do. The farmer ploughs and plants and then waits for Nature's reply to his expectations. He believes the silver rains and golden sun will encourage the good earth to acknowledge his work and answer his trust with growth and an abundant provision for his need. All great religious faith rests upon the idea that behind this responsiveness of nature there is a God who cares for us and answers our need, and that Nature is but one of His ways of manifesting His concern.

Responsiveness is a basic element in human nature. Man's very physical being is fashioned for sensitivity to what the world may be saying to him. We have lungs for responding to air, ears for responding to sound, eyes for responding to light. Air, sound and light were here before man came, and lungs, ears and eyes are God's way of furnishing man with an answer to the atmosphere and a reply to the visible, audible wonders of the world.

One of the world's saddest sights is a person who can make no appropriate response. We have all seen some such person at one time or another. We may have watched with pity as a mother awaited the first sign that her infant recognized her and would smile at her in answer to her smile, and we have seen grief steal into her face from her fearful heart as she realized the child might be blind, or mentally retarded, and could not respond to her as she had hoped.

THEN THERE ARE others who will not respond when they can, the pupils in school who will not listen to instruction, the citizens who will not bother to vote even when they know great issues are at stake, the tourists who speed through vistas of breathtaking beauty oblivious to the splendor because they are preoccupied with the number of miles they can travel each day. Unresponsive folk are as frustrating as were the dolls about which one little girl complained to her mother, "I just love them and love them, and they never love me back."

Jesus had trouble with such dull, dehumanized, unresponsive people. In the days of his flesh he "went about doing good" the Book of Acts tells us. But he could not do the good he desired everywhere.

Why? Because some people were unimpressed by him. They did not receive him with eagerness and high expectation. The Gospel of Matthew cites Christ's rejection by his neighbors in Nazareth, his own home town: "He did not do many mighty works there because of their unbelief." Some knew him too well, so they thought. They were his neighbors and relatives. He had a familiar face and manner. He had worked for them in the carpenter's shop, making their doors, tables and chairs. How could God do anything of real consequence through such a commonplace fellow. The power of Christ was present among them in abundance, but the Nazarenes missed it because they lacked the faith to respond to it. It takes little faith to respond with amazement and joy to miracles that occur across seas, or a province away, but to behold God's work—and to appreciate it—when it is a next-door miracle, seen every day, that occurs only to rare souls.

MAN IS MADE to respond, and we are hardly human at all until we are humble and unweary in the presence of God and God's wondrous works. God reaches out to us through the beauty that surrounds us, through the prayers of those who love us, through the example of some walking Gospel whose life we have read, through the Book, through a well-trained conscience, in manifold other ways and supremely through Jesus Christ. At our best, we eagerly reply. We answer in wonder, in prayer, in changed and devoted ethical conduct. "We love . . . because he first loved us" declares the First Epistle of John. God's love takes the initiative and man answers. And this is man's glory, that he can sense God's care and his commands and that man is capable of grateful and joyful response.

A man's soul can be measured by the size of the things that move him. The greatest souls are those who appropriately respond to God.

My "Mom"

... and how we love her! She is a unique individual. She is personal. She is mother. It is she who tempers us to fit into a big world. She leaves the life she gave and guides its destiny. Mother is the one who is most concerned when the world may rise against us. She is an important factor in shaping the mold from which real men are made. Not one single human emotion comes nearer the divine than does a mother's love for her child. Then, respect her experience, her knowledge, her concern for your life. Listen to her pleadings. Follow her teachings. Accept her guidance... for, in few instances, will she ever be wrong. How fitting that we give this day... the second Sunday in May... in her honor. In respect to her, and to show your deepest concern, take her to church this Mother's Day.

ANNE BAUMGARTNER tells a first-time visitor to Charlevoix Hospital that she likes to compare it to a country club.

Of course, she's half kidding. But during National Hospital Week (this week) it's nice to think she's also half serious.

Why shouldn't hospital patients have luxurious accommodations with breath-taking natural beauty only a look away? They should, and they do, at Charlevoix Hospital. Miss Baumgartner, administrator, and other members of the staff seem to be rightly proud of it.

Having a healthy dislike for hospitals, it was a bit difficult for Miss Baumgartner to get me to tour her country club. Having been here eight months without any reason to see the inside of the hospital, I was hoping I could make it another eight years. It was downright puzzling why she thought anyone would want to make an unnecessary visit to a hospital, even if it was National Hospital Week.

It's obvious the hospital is a pleasant sort of building in a lovely setting. But tour with Miss Baumgartner fast convinces you the interior is even more fantastic.

The informal, relaxed staff combined with the rich colors and fixtures and lack of odor almost makes you think it might be a country club.

Charlevoix should be justified in proclaiming every week National Hospital Week. But since this is it, the hospital is sort of holding open house. Everyone is welcome to come down and take a grand tour of the grand facilities available to relieve their suffering.

Opened August 31, 1954, the hospital has had two major additions since: the solarium and room for X-ray viewing, laboratory, cafeteria, dining and physical therapy department.

Perhaps, from the story I piece together, the Charlevoix Hospital should be considered a monument to the people who consider Charlevoix their second home town. If you want to think of it that way, the many who did, and continue to, contribute couldn't have done anything finer.

The list of Advisory Board of Trustees members is an indication of how much our summer citizens think of us and Charlevoix. They are: Mrs. F. Carly Schumacher, Clayton, Missouri; Mrs. Gordon Ware, St. Charles, Ill.; Mrs. D. Eckhart Williams, Chicago; Mrs. Benjamin Douglas, Oak Park, Ill.; Mrs. C. L. Retherford, Toledo; Mrs. Joseph Gardner, Marshall, Vir.; William Cotter, Jackson, Mich.; Mrs. Robert Rowe, Toledo; W. R. Dickinson, Jr., Chicago.

Concert Caps Year for Band

More than 200 of northern Michigan's finest young musicians wind up one of the most successful years in Charlevoix school history at the Spring Concert, 8 p.m. Wednesday, May 20.

Charlevoix Public School music director C. A. Omdark said the traditionally free Spring Concert is the bandmen's final public performance of the school year. It is in the high school gymnasium. Everyone is invited.

THREE BANDS will perform: the Seventh Grade Band, Reserve Band and Senior Band. Both the Reserve Band and the Senior Band captured top ratings of 1 in competition this year. For the Senior Band it was the second straight year of 1 ratings in state festivals.

The program begins with the 40 piece Seventh Grade Band. The seventh graders will present several selections they have been practicing under Omdark's tutelage. They are the youngest musicians in the school program.

Following will be the 79 eighth and ninth graders of the Reserve Band. They will play several numbers prepared for their performance at the Mashed Band Festival in East Jordan earlier this month.

WHILE PRIMARILY a training band, Omdark said, the Reserve Band is also a performing group. Climaxing the Spring Concert will be the 86 veterans of the Senior Band. These bandmen—northern Michigan's elite—will play a variety of selections, Omdark said.

Following will be the 79 eighth and ninth graders of the Reserve Band. They will play several numbers prepared for their performance at the Mashed Band Festival in East Jordan earlier this month.

STARTING AT 4 p.m. in the school beside the new St. Mary's church building, the fair continues through 8 p.m.

All proceeds from the fair are used to buy new educational equipment for the school. The fair is the only fund raising event of the year sponsored by St. Mary's parents.

Highlighting the evening's entertainment will be a magic show by Robert Nowakowski. An accomplished magician, Nowakowski stole the show at this year's public school PTA Fair. He and his wife own the Capri Motel on US-31.

Games for adults and children will include: bingo fish pond, grab bag, penny pitch, live gold fish, and others.

A BAKE SALE and lunch counter will be featured.

A free bicycle will be given away at a raffle.

Happy Birthday

Charlevoix County State Bank is holding open house this week to mark its 80th birthday.

The public has been invited by bank president Robert Bridge to stop in Wednesday May 20, for cake and coffee. The person who most accurately guesses the number of pennies in a jar will win a U. S. Savings Bond.

COMPLETE DETAILS on the birthday party and the bank's history are found on pages 10 and 11 of this week's Courier.

Camp Needs Acute, Forestry Chief Says

Shortage Rated as 'Critical'

The shortage of campgrounds in the Charlevoix area is one of the most critical in Michigan, H. V. Bargerson, Conservation Dept. regional forestry chief from Roscommon said last week.

Bargerson was in Charlevoix with district forester Roger Rasmussen. They were looking over the Bell's Bay State Forest campground which will be expanded this spring.

CHARLEVOIX'S beautiful beaches, scenery and harbor facilities make it one of Michigan's most desirable vacation spots, Bargerson said.

However, with family camping the fastest growing leisure-time activity, Charlevoix is cut-off from thousands of vacationers who cannot find tent or trailer space in the area.

The Bell's Bay campground on Lake Michigan, three miles south of town will be improved and expanded to 15 or 20 campsites by summer, Rasmussen said.

New Bell's Bay campsites will be scattered along Lake Shore Dr. for a half mile from the present campgrounds.

THE CONSERVATION Dept. will clear the sites and provide box toilets and tables. The well, and some of the present tables, were contributed by Charlevoix township and the city.

The expected ten new sites at Bell's Bay will be the only campground expansion in the area this year, Bargerson said. He said Bell's Bay is the first state forest campground in Charlevoix County.

When the project is completed, the department will have approximately 100 campsites.

Hire Teachers

Hiring of two new teachers for 1964-65 was approved Monday evening by the Board of Education.

Mary Gallagher, a Beaver Island girl, was hired as a later elementary school teacher. She will graduate from Western Michigan University in June.

MRS. MILDRED Lawrence was approved for a contract as a vocal music teacher. Mrs. Lawrence has a masters degree from DePaw University and one year experience at Lake Odessa (Mich.) schools. Her husband will be working in the Petoskey school system.

Hawley Goes South

The mayor of a southern Michigan agricultural-industrial community will be Charlevoix's top executive for a day, Monday, May 18.

Mayor Robert E. Onweller, of Hudson, Michigan will replace Charlevoix Mayor E. L. Hawley on Michigan's Mayor Exchange Day.

ACCOMPANYING Hawley to Hudson will be City Supt. James Taylor, who spent 32 in city government at Hillsdale (a few miles west of Hudson) before coming to Charlevoix in 1959.

Coming to Charlevoix with Mayor Onweller will be Hudson Councilman James Findlay. Both men will be accompanied by their wives.

Hudson is a small community, with about the same population as Charlevoix, on US-127, ten miles north of the Ohio border and 15 miles west of Adrian.

In contrast to Charlevoix, it is located in Lenawee County. In the heart of a wealthy farm area, rich in small industry. The county has a population of 77,789 people.

TORNADO DAMAGE—Sheriff Glenn Rose surveys damage to the Joe Martinechek Jr. barn on the Floyd Black Rd. The barn's roof was torn off and dumped in the yard by a tornado Friday, Rose reports. Another of the Martinechek's barns on the Ellsworth Rd. was damaged slightly. Rose is positive the damage was caused by a small tornado—the first he is sure has hit the county in 14 years. A community work bee to repair the Martinechek damage will be held Saturday. Everyone's welcome. Minor tornado damage was also sustained by J. F. Pletka and J. M. Beddow on Ellsworth Rd. Busy Schedule Set For Michigan Week

Next week, May 17-23, Michigan Week, will be a busy seven days for Charlevoix.

Organizations have planned programs for every day of the week. Local committees and groups have been busy for months making preparations for Michigan Week.

WHEREAS MICHIGAN Week is held to emphasize the state's local efforts have concentrated on bringing attention to Charlevoix's people, beauty and traditions.

There won't be much goofing off time between Labor Day and the start of school this fall.

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday evening tentatively set the opening day of school for Wednesday, Sept. 9—two days after Labor Day.

BOARD MEMBERS decided to bolt the traditional Monday after Labor Day opening due to the holiday's not coming until Sept. 7. This, Supt. Rex Milligan explained, would result in school starting Sept. 14 and not getting out until June 10 or 11.

High school principal Harry Dingham said football coaches would probably prefer starting school Sept. 9 because it gives them a better chance to hold practice sessions before the first game Sept. 18.

The possibility of starting school Sept. 14, but shortening the Christmas vacation was discussed. Elementary principal Glenn Snider said this would create problems for juniors who try to do a Michigan Week starts Sunday with "Spiritual Foundations Day" being observed in Charlevoix churches. Charlevoix's religious traditions will also be observed with dedication of a historical marker at Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church (story elsewhere on this page). Medusa Gets OK On Dock Plans

The Michigan Conservation Commission, meeting in Niles last week, gave the final go-ahead for Medusa Cement Co. to build a conveyor-bridge and pier into Lake Michigan off South Point.

Troy Yoder, Conservation Dept. regional director, reports the permit gives the cement company authorization to build the ship-loading facility on state-owned Lake Michigan bottomlands.

THE CONVEYOR-BRIDGE and pier would be used to load limestone, or finished cement into ships.

Worth Loomis, Medusa vice president, told the Courier from his Cleveland office, the company has received its permit to construct the pier from U.S. Army Corps of Engineers headquarters in Washington.

The engineers, Loomis said, reported there was no technical, navigational or engineering objections to Medusa's proposal. The only questions raised concerned damage to the natural beauty of the area.

Loomis said the Conservation Dept.'s authorization will make it possible for the company to begin a quarry, or build a cement plant, on its South Point property. But he would not commit himself as to the company's future plans.

imately $10,000 invested at Bell's Bay.

The potential for campsites in the Pigeon River State Forest at Bell's Bay hasn't even been touched, Hargerson said. He predicted an unlimited number of campsites would be filled during the summer if funds were available to prepare them.

THE CONSERVATION Dept., he said, does not have the equipment to clear and prepare additional campsites, or wells. However, if a local governing unit—city or township or road commission—would do this portion of the work, the department would earmark the land, administer the campground and provide tables and toilets.

The limited camping space now available at Bell's Bay would not exist if the city and township had not contributed a major portion of the work, Hargerson said.

Signs will be placed on state highways directing campers to Belle's Bay, Rasmussen said.

IF THE ONE DAY BREAK between Labor Day and school opening is going to cause problems for the community, board members said they will re-examine their decision. They asked that persons who feel school should start Sept. 14 and adjourn June 10 or 11 contact Supt. Milligan.

If they stay with the Sept. 9 opening, the teachers will report for work Sept. 8, the day after Labor Day.

THE CHARLEVOIX County State Bank celebrates its 80th birthday next week. Elsewhere in this week's Courier we make quite a fuss about the bank's anniversary. But this corner would like to devote a little space to Bob Bridge.

At 70 years of age, Bob is only 10 years younger than the bank he is president of. He might not figure it's in order to say so, but after hours of thumbing through scrapbooks of bank stories, it's quite evident Bob Bridge is more than just the bank's president. If blood circulated in the bank's walls, it would be Bob's blood. If a heart was needed to keep the blood running, it would be Bob's that would do the job.

Letters and telegrams from the nation's top bankers in 1921 and 1923 attest to their admiration and respect for Bridge in his successful rebuilding of the bank after fire and depression. However, he isn't very interested in talking about the past. At 70 he would rather talk about the future . . . and Charlevoix.

He still feels the entire Round Lake side of Bridge St. should eventually be a park. He, and other community leaders spent years and considerable money in an event of June 16 in Grand Rapids, was honored at a luncheon and linen shower hosted Saturday by Mrs. Gerald Loop of Grand Rapids at the Loop cottage at Oyster Bay.

Detroit's multi-million dollar waterfront beautification program is simply a case of the Motor City copying a good idea from Charlevoix, he half-funnily says.

Yachting, boating and the Chicago Club will continue to be Charlevoix's major tourist assets for many years, the veteran observer predicts.

For School Beginners

Friday, May 22 is enrollment day for Charlevoix children who enter kindergarten in September, Glenn B. Snider, Elementary School principal reports.

Parents of children whose last name begins with any letter from "A" through "K" are asked to register their pre-schooler between 9 and 11 a.m. May 22.

CHILDREN WHOSE last name begins with any letter from "L" through "Z" must be registered between 1 and 3 p.m. May 22.

Parents are asked to bring the child's birth certificate and immunization record.

The 1960 Immunization Law requires a record of vaccinations, triple shots and Salk (polio) shots, signed by a doctor. This record will become a part of the child's health record at registration time.

To be eligible for kindergarten in September, a child must be five years of age by December 1.

MRS. JEANNE MILES, school and community nurse, will be present to confer with parents and begin the school health record on each child.

All parents whose children will be enrolled in kindergarten next fall are urged by Snider to register children on Friday, May 22.

To permit registration of new students, there will be no school for kindergarten on that date.

county was immediately immunized with the oral vaccine and the epidemic rapidly ceased.

No one will be charged for the oral vaccine Sunday, Dr. A. F. Litzenger, district health director points out. A small contribution will be appreciated from those who can afford to pay.

LITZENBURGER said persons who have Salk vaccine, though they be partially immune to polio, can be carriers and give the dreaded disease to someone who has been vaccinated.

The new oral vaccine eliminates this possibility.

Mrs. Keith Miles, Charlevoix public health nurse, reports pre-registration cards for the immunization clinic are available at Central and Schroeder's drug stores. She urged people to get them and fill them out for parents and children before the clinic to speed up the line.

"The aim is to have the community take part 100 percent," Mrs. Miles stated.

THE LOCATION and time of clinics outside Charlevoix on Sunday are:

Boyne Falls — At the school, 10 a.m. to noon.

Boyne City — City Hall, 12:30 to 5:30.

East Jordan — School nurse's office, 12:30 to 5:30.

Wallow Lake — School, noon to 5:30.

Mr. and Mrs. John Vincent have returned to Roseville after spending Mother's Day weekend with her mother, Mrs. Doris Pierce, and with relatives in East Jordan.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Richardson called on Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wagner and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Richardson of Norwood Friday.

Mrs. Hilda Hartlep was a guest at the East Jordan Study Club 50th anniversary noon luncheon Apr. 30.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Charlevoix County Barracks No. 2710 of Veterans of W. W. I brought us bibs and lap robes which they had made.

Mrs. Glennie Green of our Divisional Therapy department took six of the patients to the band parade in East Jordan May 6.

The regular monthly meeting of the Charlevoix County Welfare Commission was held here Friday May 8. Mrs. Doris Reynolds, Rev. Geo. Majors of Charlevoix, Mr. Roy Scott of Boyne City and Mr. Clarence Healey of East Jordan were in attendance.

Mrs. Emma Sulton, Mrs. Anna Morrison, Miss Annie Spencer, Mrs. Nellie Hosier, Mrs. Antonia Florenski and Mrs. Pearl McHale spent Mother's Day with their families and enjoyed dinner there.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Milford of Petoskey visited Mrs. Rae Milford Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Farmer and Mrs. Hazel Bogart of Lansing visited Mrs. Anna Farmer Sunday May 10.

A. M. Allard of Charlevoix called on Mr. Clyde Strong Sunday.

The Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club was urged last Thursday promote more conservation projects and activities to interest in and younger members, by Hal Rainer, field representative Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC).

Rainer addressed club members and their families after pancake supper in the club hot on U.S. 31 north of town. He pointed out many sportsmen clubs are losing their influence and enthusiasm because they let new blood and worthwhile "cas."

AN ESTIMATED 75 persons attended the pancake supper. Activities were shown on automobile and MUCC activities.

Ideas Sprout When Kids Meet Challenge

By FIAN MARTIN

When a cartoonist wants to get across to a reader that his character has a brilliant idea, he usually draws a glowing light bulb over the character's head.

Mrs. Gordon Moeller, who teaches a combined third and fourth grade in the Charlevoix Elementary School, used the same idea except that she started with a light bulb from which her students developed original ideas for figurines which are called "watt-figures" and which are made with a light bulb, paper tube and paper mache.

MRS. MOELLER SAID the purpose was to get children to develop an idea and to complete the work with their hands from sculpturing with the paper mache to painting the figurine. But the entire project surpassed anything she might have wanted.

"Once they were shown what could be done they really got into the spirit of the thing, came up with very clever ideas and worked like little beavers to bring them to reality. Added to that, each created a little story about his or her character, so the project served several purposes besides being a lot of fun," Mrs. Moeller said.

The gayest of colors were used to complete the figurines, making them a colorful addition to homes that now boast clowns, tramps, chubby characters in pajamas or night shirts and a gay procession of other imaginative figures.

Re-Elect Anders
Chest President

Don Anders was re-elected president of the Charlevoix Community Chest Board of directors at the annual meeting in the county building Wednesday.

Mrs. Frank Bourgoin, was named vice president; Frank M. Oleksy, secretary and Ann Cunningham, treasurer.

MRS. ROBERT ANDERSON, Mrs. Thomas Wieland and Ralph Doan were named a committee to appoint a campaign committee chairman; John Lachman, Miss Cunningham and Curtis Burlin, the Budget and Admissions committee and Mrs. Bourgoin, Mr. Oleksy and Miss Cunningham the public relations committee.

A special committee to review requests from member agencies wishing to conduct special fundraising activities was also appointed. Mrs. Bourgoin was named chairman. She will be assisted by Mr. Burlin and Mr. Doan.

June 2 was set as the date for the annual Budget and Admissions meeting. Representatives of all agencies wishing to be included in the chest campaign will present requests for funds for 1965 operations.

It was decided to place $700 of the funds on hand into a savings account. In the future any monies not allocated for immediate distribution, in excess of $200 will be placed in this savings account.

IT WAS ALSO decided that due to the fact that part of the money raised is in pledges which are paid throughout the year, the agencies would, in the future, be paid twice a year, 50 per cent in December, the remainder in June.

At the annual meeting, Mrs. Charles Duerr, executive secretary, reported that $12,432.53 was raised in cash gifts and pledges during the 1963 fund campaign. Campaign and administrative expenses cost less than four per cent of the amount raised on behalf of participating agencies.

Miss Cunningham who was named treasurer to succeed Ernest Murri who resigned when he left Charlevoix, presented the annual financial report which showed a balance on hand of $880.75. She also reported that all agencies have been paid the full amount allocated to them for 1964 operation.

Oleksy presented a summary report of board action for the past year including the election of two members who resigned.

THE NOMINATING committee presented the names of three candidates for three year terms. The names of Mrs. Anderson, Anders and Lachman were placed in nomination. A unanimous vote for the trio was cast when no nominations were made from the floor.

Anders opened the meeting and expressed his thanks to all the volunteers who worked on the drive last fall, especially Laehman, who served as campaign chairman, and A. L. Livingston, Robert Bridge, Bourgoin, Mrs. Robert Foss, Mrs. Donald De Moor, Mrs. Wieland and Francis Martin who served as division chairman and co-chairmen. He also thanked the board and the executive secretary for their efforts on behalf of the chest.

FROM BEACH TO JEWELRY — Ed Heise polishes a Petoskey Stone after cutting it to shape for jewelry to sell in his Rock and Relic Shop. (Courier Photo)

Could Draw Thousands Push Unique Stones

Literally thousands of people would come to Charlevoix in the spring and fall to collect Petoskey stones. But they can't unless they're invited.

This is the verdict of two of Charlevoix's most active Petoskey Stone boosters — Ed Heise and Fred Looze.

HEISE, WHO operates the Rock and Relic Shop on Bridge St., says hundreds of thousands of Americans are taking up rock collecting and lapidary work.

The majority of these people are in their late middle age or retired, he adds.

If they know about Charlevoix's unique Petoskey Stones and the natural beauty and tourist facilities here, both Heise and Looze are convinced they would begin making a big difference in the off-season business.

Heise has concrete evidence he is on the right track. He placed a two-inch ad in a national rock-hound magazine, the Lapidary Journal. The tiny ad resulted in more than 300 replies from 35 states.

THE AD OFFERED to sell Petoskey Stones in the rough, uncut and unpolished. It did not tell rock hounds about facilities here, or the beautiful beaches along which the stones are found.

Petoskey Stones are found only in this area. The biggest concentration of the stones in the world is along the Lake Michigan beach between Charlevoix and Norwood, Heise said. He contends the best area in the world for collecting them is just south of Bell's Bay.

Actually, the stones with the intriguing eyes are fossils of prehistoric coral.

OTHER COMMUNITIES cash in on mushrooms, fish and various attractions that everyone has, Heise points out.

Charlevoix, he contends, has the big advantage with Petoskey Stones, because it is virtually the only resort area that can provide them in almost unlimited quantity.

Add to this that Charlevoix can offer unequalled beauty and choice lodging and eating facilities along with superb spring and fall weather.

Neither Heise or Looze predict Petoskey Stone hunters would overflow the beaches or motels and restaurants. But their experience tells them it would bring several hundred people in each spring and fall properly promoted.

IT WOULD TAKE time to build the business up, but with proper promotion, they're sure it can be done.

Because the majority of serious rock hunters have raised their families, Heise points out they are able to take their vacation in the spring or fall. And quite often prefer to, because things aren't so crowded.

He explains there has been no real effort to promote Petoskey Stone collecting in Charlevoix. In spite of this a few people who know about them write him regularly and come to Charlevoix.

Though he says he isn't an expert at promotion, Heise has a few ideas:

- Advertise big in national rock hound magazines. Ads should point out that Petoskey Stones are found only on the beaches here; that the beach area is some of the world's most beautiful; that fall and spring weather is warm and bright; and that plush facilities are available.

- Advertise on the hobby pages of metropolitan newspapers.
- More publicity in the local and metropolitan newspapers.

- Prepare a special brochure for rock hunters on Petoskey Stones, the area and facilities.

- Figure out some way to promote a national rock festival in the fall.

- Every Charlevoix businessman should have a Petoskey Stone — with natural and cut views — prominently displayed.

Unlike the perch runs, Heise points out, the supply of Petoskey Stones is predictable and reliable. He figures there is little chance of Charlevoix's beaches, gravel pits and streams ever running out of the stones.

Ed Heise Finds Life in Stones

Petoskey Stones and native handicrafts and lore have made a new life for Ed Heise.

Heise had a life as an invalid ahead of him after a fall down an elevator shaft at Hess Furniture Co. broke his legs in 13 places.

DURING SOME 18 months in a wheel chair and on the operating table he decided he had to have something to do. One afternoon he thought about Petoskey Stones. A little determination can go a long way, Heise just about crawled onto the Lake Michigan beach to collect a few Petoskey stones.

From that point he received help from the Michigan Rehabilitation Center in learning how to make jewelry from the stones and getting the equipment for it.

Working in the back of his home on Mason St., across from the Post Office, he found more and more people interested in paying for something he could do. He regained his feet — with the help of a cane — and his confidence in his value as a contributing member of society.

LAST SUMMER, Ed, a lifelong resident, leased what is now the Rock and Relic Shop on Bridge St., at Antrim.

He added ceramics, local Indian basket weaving, hand carving, and other knick-knacks to his Petoskey Stone business.

Then, a museum of local lore. The old days were recalled in a hodge podge collection of relics from bygone years well displayed in the back room. On rainy days as many as 35 people would be milling around in the museum, getting acquainted with each other and Charlevoix history.

School Prepared Should Disaster Ever Threaten

Walk into school Supt. Rex Milligan's office and you might think for a minute you are in a Civil Defense center.

Sitting on a cabinet across the desk from Milligan is a compact radio receiver bearing a Civil Defense marker.

THE RADIO RECEIVER isn't on hand because an attitude of impending doom prevails in the school office. It is there just in case natural disaster or national emergency should develop.

In the event of tornadoes, or something even less likely, the radio assures the school it will be in constant contact with the nerve center of area Civil Defense operations.

Should phones be knocked out the receiver will keep the school informed on conditions and advised on what steps to take.

To make sure there is no floundering or guess work should disaster ever threaten, the Board of Education has adopted an emergency evacuation policy. This, Milligan explains, assures parents their children will be evacuated in an orderly manner.

The evacuation policy is:

1. ALL CHILDREN who normally walk will be released immediately and MUST WALK DIRECTLY HOME, or to an area previously designated by parents.

2. Teachers will be assigned to drive buses until the regular driver is available. Bus drivers must take over driving duties as soon as possible.

3. Buses will load at the Charlevoix Retarded Children's Center first, then the Elementary School and St. Mary's School.

4. Bus riders in the High School will remain in building "A" until their bus is ready to load.

5. BUS DRIVERS will run their regular route unless there is an emergency that alters the route.

6. It is the responsibility of the parent to designate the place where children should go if parent is not home.

WILL ANNOUNCE TROUBLE. School Supt. Rex Milligan and secretary Jacqueline Phelps study the recently installed radio receiver that will warn the school of impending emergency and natural disaster through the Civil Defense network. After the warning is flashed the radio will continue to inform the school of conditions and advise it as to action that should be taken. (Courier Photo)

Are Officials Hoping We Will Forget Slum Areas?

UP TO THIS point we have seen nothing but inaction on the part of county officials that something be done to eliminate humiliating living conditions in Charlevoix's southwest "slum" section.

Perhaps public officials, and individual citizens, are hoping Probate Judge John Makel and district health director Dr. A. F. Lizenburger will let them forget it if they ignore the gross indecency of the situation. Or, maybe, they have illusions that if they continue to quietly grope blindly a solution will fall out of the sky.

WELL, WE FIGURE they're wrong on both counts. County officials aren't likely to drop the issue. It has stuck in their craw too long. They went too far out on the limb in calling for a major newspaper expose of it to back off now.

There is no excuse for further delay. The answers are no more than a telephone call away.

Other Michigan cities with larger and smaller problems, have faced up to their own inability to solve them. They have called in professional planners who have come up with answers that were reasonable, compatible to local tradition and culture, and easy on the pocketbook.

We can understand city officials being rather hesitant to openly take a suggestion from county officials, or the Courier. They may feel unfair pressure is being applied on something that is their domain.

YET WE FIND THIS hard to believe. Charlevoix city leaders are as sincere and selfless as any we have worked with, and much more so than most. We have—and will continue to—respect and admire them for their dedication to Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Calling in someone from the outside is always a frightening thought for people who zealously guard their hometown heritage. This is understandable, but only up to a point.

When children in our town are living in conditions that have made American GI's wince and shudder with heartbreak and sorrow in Asia, that point has been passed. The time has come to let down the barrier and call for help from professionals.

These professionals are not needed solely to clean up the slum area. Charlevoix city officials, its leading realtors and others close to what is happening recognize—though may not admit—that times are changing and what served us well in the past is going to need revamping in the future.

PLANNING EXPERTS have made this transition comfortable and orderly for other towns. They can do an even better job with Charlevoix, because we have a better foundation than other communities.

Farmer is Loser

THANKS TO THE AMERICAN farmer, you'll see fewer Volkswagen trucks on the road in the future. You'll see more Econolines and Corvairs and pickups.

It all began when common market countries in Europe boosted import duties on poultry. Advanced production methods here allowed American poultry farmers to ship broilers to Europe and compete with European farmers. To stop that, the European governments raised poultry duties so high that American farmers couldn't compete.

TO RETALIATE, the United States raised the duty on European trucks by about $200. That immediately cut Volkswagen sales by 30%.

That's fine for Ford and General Motors, but what does it do for the American farmer?

Right now, 11% of our beef supply is coming from Australia and New Zealand. It has cut beef prices an estimated $3 a hundred pounds here. It has also hurt milk prices and increased the dairy surplus because low beef prices discourage culling of dairy herds.

So what does our government do? It shaves import quotas by 6%, which cuts our total meat supply by 6/10 of 1%—a little to have any noticeable effect. Even that tiny cut will be more than wiped out by an 8% increase in quotas by 1966.

WHEN FOREIGN producers are faced with outside competition, their government slams shut the door to our products. When our farmers are hurt, we do almost nothing to help them.

Maybe our government's policy is right. But if it is, why should just the farmers suffer for it? And why should the benefits of this policy go to Ford and General Motors?

slum problem, a good planning firm would conduct the following study:

1—Inventory and analysis of what the community now has, past history, growth and what direction it may take in the future.

2—Analysis of residential areas and commercial facilities, what future needs will be, Parks and recreation needs, housing conditions, the tourist economy and how it is changing, community centers and libraries.

3—ECONOMIC BASE analysis. This would include industry, the business area, the future downtown area and what can be done to make it more dynamic.

4—A future plan analysis based on the other portions of the study and revealing what the problems will be 20 years from now.

5—An action plan, aimed at solving the problems and creating a master plan. This would include preparation of the very latest and most practical ordinances to cover all phases of municipal government, rather than the current hodge podge.

Charlevoix is not one of the nation's most beautiful and finest cities by chance. But it could lose this stature if we refuse to face up to our slums and other, as yet largely undemanding, problems and let the future develop by chance.

Why Pay Solons For Lack of Skill

LAST WEEK'S declaration by Rep. Don Gordon against the legislature's handing itself a pay raise wins applause.

The slightest notion that the men who voted themselves a raise deserve it, is in our opinion, absurd. The majority of these men don't seem to rate any sort of compensation. Why should we pay them for dragging the state through the muck and trying to stagnate it for antiquated political reasons?

THESE ARE EXCEPTIONS to this Don Gordon is definitely one of them.

But as Gordon points out, Solons could get their work done in three months, instead of 12, if they knew how to do the job and would set aside personal prejudices.

The pay raise seems to us to be a sure-fire indication that the inner-rot has really begun to stink in Michigan's old guard Republican line-up. These men have been stumbling around for years, and causing Michigan to stumble with them. Partially because they are so inept, legislative sessions have stretched from three months to 12.

Of course they are not fully to blame. The bull-headed determination of labor leaders in control of Michigan for their selfish interests is equally at fault.

IT DID NOT SURPRISE us to see Gus Scholle's Democrat palsies vote for the pay hike. But we were a little taken back to see the GOP let it through.

There were a few rays of hope in the results of votes on the pay hikes. They came from both parties. Republicans, like Gordon, and a few Democrats who refused to be knuckled under. They lost when the ballots were counted, but won a point for integrity in Lansing.

The increase in legislative pay (from $7,000 to $12,500) will not attract the kind of men and women we want in office. The caliber of people who should be in the legislature would not take the job for money.

However, it is very apt to attract money-hungry demagogues with vote-getting talents. Many of our legislators, at $7,000 were making more than they ever would in private life. At $12,500 they're really riding high.

WE'RE NOT AGAINST paying legislators what they are worth. But we are against paying anything to deadwood and empire builders. With able men on the job, the legislature's work can be cut down to three or four months a year, making $7,000 a reasonable salary.

The fastest way to discourage men of Gordon's caliber from running for the legislature is the frustration they face in trying to serve Michigan's best interests, while the majority of the team is pulling in the opposite direction.

Our Ultimate Wonder

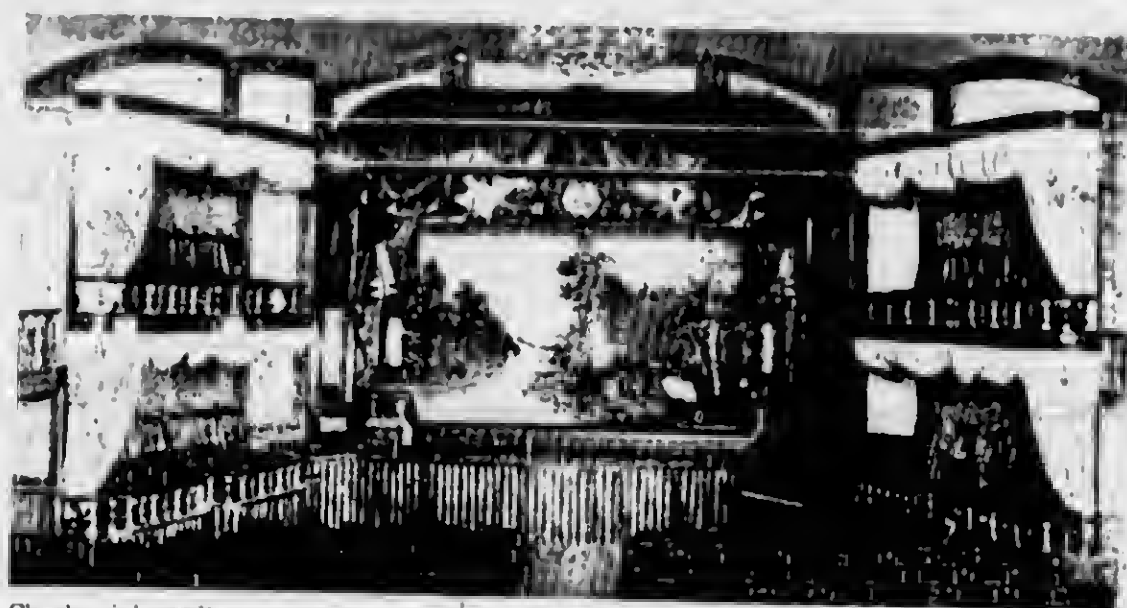

NATURE'S ULTIMATE wonder, birth, has sprung upon us. All too few of us take all too little time to stand in awe of this unequalled miracle.

The trees, bushes and grass have turned green. Suddenly the lawn was a hold, healthy color, and trees popped out with bright, hopeful young leaves. There is bird song in the air. New creatures and plants have received life.

IN THE PASSING of our everyday routine and problems we are apt to accept God's gift of spring without more than a moment's thought. After all, it happens every year about this time, and there is nothing we can do about it.

No matter where we are, it is blindly pompous of us to take this attitude, or let our personal matters concern us more than Nature's rebirth. But in Charlevoix it is especially so. God has blessed us with more to be thankful for in spring than in almost any part of the world. Let's not forget it this year.

From Charlevoix's Past . . .

Charlevoix's earliest resorters brought with them from Chicago and downstate Michigan. This resulted in the Lewis Grand Opera House, an interior view of which is seen above.

The Opera House stood on the Pine River channel. There were enough of the seats seen in this picture to hold 800 people. Oldtimers recall they were often full.

The Lewis Opera House finally gave way to demand for more room for a new bridge. This picture is probably from the 1880 era. It was supplied by Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Gibbons.

Teacher Interns Valuable Addition to School Staff

By DEL TERRILL

and D. C. MALTBY

During the current school year, Charlevoix High School has been in partnership with Central Michigan University as a cooperating school in the operation of the University's five year program teacher education project. This partnership permits Charlevoix to share responsibility along with the University for seeking out and educating the teacher. It will need for the future.

Briefly, the partnership plan operates as follows: Partnership school systems employ teacher interns. Teacher interns are students enrolled in the project's five-year teacher training program. A semester of internship usually alternates with a semester of campus study. Three semesters of internship are required. A program is usually completed in the fifth year.

FOR THE FIRST semester of this year, Richard Scatell of Big Rapids' student, in the program, was employed as "teacher assistant" in the commercial and English departments of Charlevoix High School.

It being his first semester of internship, his duties were limited, for the most part, to those routine clerical chores which are estimated to take up more than 40 percent of the teacher's time. Other jobs often took "Rick" outside his assigned department, to supervise study halls, on trips with the debate team, to help at athletic events, substitute for an absent teacher, or scout a football game, and thus experience a broad range of teacher activities outside the classroom. His introductory work included help to individual students, general assistance in the classroom and, after a few weeks, complete teaching responsibility for a class in general business.

As provided by the program, all work of the intern teacher is done under the direct supervision of a "cooperating teacher" is done under the direct supervision of a "cooperating teacher" in the department to which the intern is assigned.

signed.

This second semester Jon Bond of Grayling is employed as "extern teacher" to help relieve an excessive teacher load in the area of the eighth and ninth grades. This is Jon's second semester as an intern teacher and his duties include more actual instruction and less routine clerical work. He is teaching large urban schools, with most recent teaching innovations, long-established school districts with more traditional instructional procedures, and small systems serving thinly populated rural areas.

ALTHOUGH CHARLEVOIX does not have a "teacher associate" such as a student teacher, in his third semester of internship, and is well qualified to assume teaching duties as a beginning teacher. He or she is assigned to allow time for additional study, and is supervised by the principal, department head or supervisor as well as by the coordinator from the teacher education project.

The coordinator of the teacher education project represents the university and maintains contact between cooperating school, intern teacher, cooperating teacher, and the university to assure smooth operation of the partnership arrangement.

Intern teachers are available to all schools that qualify. Many types of schools are represented, large urban schools, ultra-modern suburban districts with most recent teaching innovations, long-established school districts with more traditional instructional procedures, and small systems serving thinly populated rural areas.

STUDENT TEACHERS are required to take their three semesters of intern experience in at least two different school systems. They receive an opportunity to obtain substantial amounts of experience in a variety of school systems and thus have some basis for deciding whether or not they can or want to become teachers, causing some to change their career plans and strengthening the convictions of other students that they do want to become teachers.

The employment of intern teachers enables the cooperating school system to enrich its program as desired and to relieve teaching pressures in areas where needed at much less than the cost of hiring additional teachers.

The intern teacher works under contract with cooperating school system and is paid fifty percent of established salary schedule for his first semester of internship, 65 percent for the second semester, and approximately 85% of a beginning teacher's salary for the third semester.

The final selection of the intern is made by the cooperating school from a list recommended by the university after a study of the school's needs.

THE FIVE YEAR program, scheduled as a five-year experimental project, is now in its third year and is expected to be incorporated in the regular curriculum of Central Michigan University.

Because of the heightened emphasis which Northern Michigan will be given during the coming campaign, we will endeavor to keep in closer touch with you than your committees have in the past. It is always a pleasure to be in Charlevoix and I'll look forward to the opportunity of further meetings.

Build Ironton Causeway?

TO THE EDITOR:

A few days ago I was in telephone conversation with Mrs. Irma Scheid regarding our property in Ironton just east of the ferry landing.

You might be interested in knowing that we receive your paper weekly and lately I have been rather disturbed about all the controversy, discussions, suggestions, etc. regarding the ferry and its ultimate and uncertain future.

IN THIS connection it occurred to me that a causeway of the two lano type might be a permanent solution to this whole problem. Surely there is enough stone and other material in the area to provide the necessary fill. The causeway would further be a means of all year access to both sides where, as at present, there are times in the early and late winter when it is impossible to cross over. The South Arm could then become an individual lake by itself or a gap in the center of the causeway with a bridge could be considered to permit boats to get through.

Please understand that this is only a basic idea or suggestion and I would appreciate knowing the reaction and attitude of the commissioners in this respect. The causeway would certainly be a permanent improvement and very helpful in developing east Ironton. A crossing fee could be charged, a moderate increase in real estate tax could be instituted to help defray the cost and maintenance. I don't know if Mrs. Scheid related all this to you but I wanted to be sure and get my idea across while it is still in the process of discussion.

Yours truly,

L. M. Picard

What with the return of the martins (and on schedule, too, like the swallows at Capistrano), here's a little something to think about. It was brought to our attention recently by the Carl Kollers. Seems that when Mr. K. took down the martin houses to clean them for the summer he found several dead baby birds. This bothered him so he started asking questions of people who he knew had similar houses up for the happy little birds.

He found that many had the same experience. . . . Later while in Lansing, he mentioned this to his son, Bud, who said they'd had the same experience not only with martins but other birds the year before. . . . They and others had "killed" some of the dead birds to the lab at Michigan State and it was found they had died as a result of eating insecticides. . . . the babies had died when they'd been fed bugs or worms from bushes or plants that had been sprayed. . . . The people in the know issued this warning: use insecticides according to directions. . . . in this way, it will kill the bugs and worms but not leave enough to poison the birds. . . . So, won't you save our little birds so they'll grow to be big birds and sing for us, please?

THURSDAY was a big day for the kindergartners. . . . They called the Sandy Mitchell farm. . . . and what a trip. . . . they made the trip by school bus, a first for many of the children who walk to school. . . . And the farm, well, that was beyond description. . . . baby turkeys, baby chickens, day-old lambs that they fed from a bottle. . . . dozens and dozens of sheep that scattered in every direction when the youngsters chased them. . . . It was a day to be long remembered by everyone. . . . especially Mrs. McHae and Mrs. Smith who made two trips with more than 100 youngsters!

You see the darndest things in spring. . . . like, for instance, a muskrat swimming in the channel right at the bridge as we were crossing. Tony Pawlone spotted it and we wouldn't believe him until we looked for ourselves. . . . and sure enough here was a big one swimming like mad against current. . . . crossing from north to south. . . . with only short piling where he was going.

Friday was a big day for our retired G-man, William Marne, Jr., who, with Mrs. Marne departed via covered wagon (the modern version that is known as a camper) for a six weeks camping trip through the west. . . . As they left the plans call for a leisurely trip west to Nevada, then north to Washington and return. . . . There's no schedule, just travel when we want to and stop when we're tired. . . . We're not even stopping to visit people we know along the way 'cause then they want you to stay and that will not be the fun of it all," was Mr. K's comment about their plans. . . . How's that for realizing a dream?

FROM GHOTON, Conn., a letter from Oscar H. Erickson Ch. Math. late of the crew of the CGC Sandew where he was engineering officer. . . . Out fell not only a letter, but a clipping and program which certainly attracted my interest. . . . and well it should for it brought news of a couple of Charlevoixans. Rear Admiral W. J. Smith, now superintendent of the U. S. Coast Guard Academy at Groton and Franz Erickson, a student at Robert E. Fitch Senior, high school. . . . Adm. Smith was the speaker at the second annual Honors Convention at the high school recently. . . . and Franz who was always on the Honor Roll here, was among the 28 Seniors in a class of 359 to receive an academic achievement key. . . . "You may take pride in this key which I hope will open many doors leading to future success and happiness" was the theme of Adm. Smith's address. . . .

At the reception that followed, the Ericksons met Adm. Smith and conversation turned to Charlevoix where Franz had been a student as a sophomore and junior and from which Adm. Smith was graduated as salutatorian of his class. . . .

A "well done" to Franz and a fond "hello" to Adm. Smith from all of his Charlevoix friends. . . . ONE OF THE MANY interesting things seen at a recent track meet: Charlevoix's—All-American Bob Carey, whose shot put record at Michigan State is still tops, giving a few pointers on putting that shot to young Larry Edwards. . . . Aren't kids lucky to rate a teacher like that?

There is a Power Behind Life's Appearances

By REV. H. E. KOHN

Colonel T. E. Lawrence, that intrepid adventurer who rallied Arabs to the allied cause during the First World War told of two desert chieftains who visited him in London after the war.

The Arabs had saved Lawrence's life more than once, and "Lawrence of Arabia" was grateful to them. He invited them to England to see the sights. They stayed in the best hotels. They were taken to the Tower of London, to Buckingham Palace, and were received by King George and Queen Mary. Everywhere they went they were the center of attention because of their unusual garb and their association with Colonel Lawrence—a hero in England.

WHEN THE TIME arrived for their departure from England, Colonel Lawrence asked the chieftains to choose anything they wanted as a gift to take home with them. The Arabs went into serious, secret consultation. Then they announced they had agreed on the gift: they would meet "each other" all the winters they had seen they wanted most two hot water faucets.

The Arabs did not understand that hot water faucets alone will not furnish hot water. Hung on the walls of their desert tents the faucets would be merely ornamental. For behind hot water faucets there must be plumbing, heating apparatus and reservoirs of water, or the faucets will have little meaning. Can't you imagine Arabs transporting two faucets from London to the deserts of the Mid-East, hanging them on the walls of their tents and the squeezing and pounding them in fretful frustration because those faucets offer no water?

The Arabs are like the rest of us. We have too high a regard for the superficial. We are frequently unaware of the deep backing of resources every one of life's faucets must have. We have a great love for external things, and we glory in them. In education such externalism means getting diplomas and degrees without a sustained growth of knowledge and the enlarged awareness which the untutored mind misses, it means schooling without achieving an amplified usefulness. In marriage externalism means maintaining the appearances of wedded life, but neglecting the soul of it, which is self-giving manifested in kindness, forgiveness, loyalty and companionship; it is ceremony without commitment, a faucet without resources.

EXTERNALISM in parenthood means provision for all of a child's material needs and neglecting the cultivation of his spirit, furnishing a splendid house but a user home, giving him good toys and dull table conversation; teaching a child to brush his teeth without inspiring him to brush his mind, training him to keep his body clean, but not his soul. In religion externalism means following the rules but not the spirit; observing religious rituals, traditions and holidays without the wholehearted dedication of life to God which makes all else in religion meaningful.

People who best handle trouble when it comes are those who have an abundance of spiritual resources behind the walls of their lives. Their glory is not in faucets, but in deep wells and vast reservoirs. When life makes heavy demands upon their souls, when droughts arrive and the world seems dimly dry and parched, they become replenished and refreshed from sources Heaven has hidden from the world. We all know such people. I do.

A FEW DAYS ago a good friend of mine, a minister of the Gospel, died. His death was sudden, without warning to his wife, his children and the community that loved him. Many looked on, as his family moved with quiet dignity through difficult days, remarked about the stoical effort such splendid conduct must have demanded. Of course the bereaved wanted very much to carry their burden with good grace; therefore will power and effort were involved. But these were not secrets to the handling of their heartache.

These people were not so much engaged in strenuous trying as they were in being hospitable to God. They knew that their grief was God's affair and that on the other side of human weakness he the boundless expanses of God's strength. They recalled the great truths of their faith, God's dependable love; that ultimately his hands are in all things and all things are in His hands; the resurrection of their Lord, triumphant over death, as witness to the conviction that even death is not fatal to the souls of God's children.

Behind the externals of their religion was a deep, abiding trust. They knew the meaning of resources, as well as faucets. A New Testament benediction, written to the church at Ephesus, reads: "Now to him who by the power of work within us is able to do far more abundantly than all we ask or think, to him be glory in the church and in Jesus Christ to all generations for ever and ever. Amen."

THIS IS THE spiritual insight that goes beyond appearances; there is a Power, not of our own, working within all who are open to it. And that Power is more abundant than our greatest need or our wildest guesses. There is a reservoir beyond the faucets.

The chief goal of life should be to make vital connection with it.

Teacher Gets Top Award

James H. Luther, Charlevoix High School science teacher, has been awarded a National Science Foundation Scholarship at Antioch College at Yellow Springs, Ohio.

This is a four summer program leading to a Master Science Teachers Degree at the college which is the home of the Charles Kettering Research Center.

LUTHER, WHO joined the faculty here in September, 1963, will study botany, physics and philosophy of science during the eight week period this summer.

More than 1,000 teachers apply annually for the 40 scholarships awarded by Antioch College. The program is designed to bring tea-

Antioch College was a pioneer in the work-study program in which a student attends college one semester and, during the next semester, works on a related job.

$1,726,356 In Social Security

Approximately one out of every six Charlevoix County residents is receiving a Social Security check according to figures released by E. O. Wiles, district manager at Traverse City.

A breakdown of the figures reveals 2,288 beneficiaries at the end of 1963, an increase of 3.1 per cent over the corresponding figure at the beginning of 1963. The dollar benefit amounts total more than $1,726,356 annually.

RETIRED WORKERS are the largest group of Social Security beneficiaries in the county. There are 1,275 in this group with benefits totaling $91,747 monthly.

The number and amount of the other monthly benefits paid in the county as of Dec. 31, follow: wife or husband, 410 beneficiaries receiving $15,349; widow or widower, 196, $12,016; mothers and children, 338, $15,699; and disabled workers, 66, $5,052.

In releasing the figures, Wiles said "it is a fact that almost every dollar of Social Security benefits coming into the county is spent each month in local businesses for food, clothing, shelter and other essentials. In this way, the benefits have a stabilizing effect on the local economy."

He forecast that the number of Social Security beneficiaries will continue to increase but at a much slower rate than in the past 10 years. The rapid growth from about five million in 1954 to more than 19 million at the end of 1963, resulted from major amendments to the Social Security Act from 1950 through 1961.

HE CITED SEVERAL amendments which extended Social Security coverage to self-employed business and professional men, farmers, agricultural workers and other groups, bringing several million people whose work fell in these categories under Social Security for the first time.

Others qualified through amendments which reduced the amount of work needed to get benefits. One change, lowered the age at which older people can get benefits from 65 to 62.

County Bank Bucked Odds To Stay Alive

Devastating Fire in 1924,
Crippling Depression - 1933

When the Charlevoix County State Bank celebrates its 80th birthday Wednesday, May 20, it will do so only because men of tough fiber have been determined to buck the most discouraging odds.

By all rights the bank should have disappeared in 1924, and again in 1934. It would have, had lesser men been in control.

FEBRUARY 8, 1924, the "bank on the corner" was reduced to rubble. A faulty flue in the building started a fire that shocked Charlevoix and destroyed the building.

October 31, 1933 after a valiant fight, the county bank closed its doors. This should have made it no different than hundreds of others that folded permanently, or for the duration of the depression.

But in both cases disaster was turned into a stronger foundation by executives at the bank.

Robert Bridge, 70, now president, and in those days cashier credits the bank's recovery in 1924 and 1933 largely to the people of Charlevoix. "If the people hadn't had confidence in us we wouldn't have made it," Bridge said.

ANSWERING THE Courier's request for information on the bank's early history, Bridge dug up two detailed scrapbooks.

They are filled with documents, letters, pictures, and newspaper clippings. All turning yellow with age.

The scrapbooks are largely filled with information on the two tragedies the bank faced and how they were overcome. On the fourth page of the first scrapbook the 1924 fire takes over. On the last page of the second book it's the year 1933 and the bank is waxing healthily after its near failure five years before.

Bridge isn't sure why the scrapbooks have not been faithfully kept up to date. He says there are plenty of clippings and things to put in them that would bring them up to 1964. But it just hasn't been done.

MAYBE THE past 30 years haven't been as exciting. If not, they have been profitable for both the bank and Charlevoix. From assets of $240,000 in 1934 the bank has climbed to $5 million.

Documents, letters and newspaper clippings make one thing clear. Bob Bridge led the nerve-racking battle after the 1924 fire and 1933 depression closing.

No money or critical papers were ruined by the fire. Twenty-four hours after the three-story building was destroyed, the bank was operating in a salesroom in the IOOF building.

The building destroyed by fire was constructed in 1903.

LETTERS IN THE scrapbook show that on February 9, one day after the fire, Bridge was already starting arrangements for a new building. On Feb. 21 architects were already on the job.

Walls of the new building — the present one — were already going up that spring. Old pictures show workmen laying brick in the snow.

June 28, 1924, the bank on the corner was dedicated at its 40th birthday celebration.

But if the fire was a tragedy and dramatic, the depression years were months of grueling pressure and misery. While the whole nation floundered, Bridge and his comrades faced the public with determination and a smile. They stayed off the inevitable until October 1933.

AND THEN the worst of the battle really began. Determined to keep faith with the people of Charlevoix the bank announced it would reorganize as a state bank.

Four months later, the move was a reality. The Charlevoix County "State" bank was in business. It was the only private bank in the nation to successfully reorganize as a state bank.

Ninety-seven percent of the bank's depositors signed waivers on 50 percent of their deposits. When the reorganization was completed the bank made good on 81 percent of all previous deposits.

Letters, telegrams and other documents from New York, Chicago, Detroit and other leading bank institutions reveal the admiration for the coupe pulled by the Bank on the Corner in little Charlevoix, Michigan.

ON MAY 20, 1964, these deeds are largely forgotten. Modern banking laws make it impossible for them to ever be repeated.

Though continuing in its quiet, dignified atmosphere, the strength that held the bank together for 80 years continues to command respect.

FIRST "BANK ON CORNER" — This is the three story Charlevoix County Bank building erected in 1903 that was destroyed by fire in February 1924. In June of 1924 the present building was dedicated.

PTA Installs New Officers

New PTA officers for the 1964-65 school year were installed at the May meeting.

Mrs. Clarence Smith is the new president. She will replace Frank Boss.

OTHER OFFICERS ARE: Rev. George Majors, first vice president; Mrs. Dorothy McRae, second vice president; Mrs. Dale Boss, secretary; Mrs. Dorothy Dixon, treasurer; Mrs. Lawrence Feindt, conducted the installation.

A two phase program was presented. Mrs. Robert Telus was program chairman.

The first part of the program was conducted by Mrs. Laura Courtade and Mrs. Harold Kohn on the science research associate program for improving reading.

Bank's Assets Boom in 20 Years

Charlevoix County's oldest bank, the Charlevoix County State Bank, has done more growing in the last 20 years than it did in the previous 60 years.

In fact, on its 80th birthday, May 20, the bank has $5 million in assets, compared to $240,000 when it was reorganized as a state bank in 1934.

PRESIDENT ROBERT Bridge outlined the bank's rapid growth since its precedent-setting recovery from the depression in 1934.

Four years after the reorganization, in 1934, the boom began. The bank's assets hit a half million. Five years later, 1939, they hit the million dollar mark.

In 1945, two short years later the assets were at $2 million. Then the economy leveled off somewhat. In 1953 the $3 million mark was reached. In 1961 assets topped $4 million and last year they jumped to $5 million.

ability which they used in their classes this year.

Supt. Rex Milligan then explained the Board of Education's request that voters approve 2.5 mills for operation at the June 8 school election. The millage proposal calls for an increase of three-quarters of a mill in school tax. The other 1.75 mill was levied this year for operation and debt retirement.

GREETERS FOR the evening were Mr. and Mrs. David Patrie. Hostesses were 12th grade mothers Mrs. Edith Novotny and Mrs. Josephine Stutzman.

At 80 Plan More Growth

The Charlevoix County State Bank has been widely known as "the bank on the corner" since 1903.

Now it plans to take up more of the corner. But it certainly has no intention of moving off the corner.

ROBERT BRIDGE, president, reports the bank's space will be more than doubled with expansion planned later this year. The building will be extended into the two shops located next door, the gift shop and cigar store.

The expansion will make room for new tellers windows, allowing the bank to employ much needed additional help, Bridge points out. There will also be room for modern electronics equipment and private office space for consultations.

Bridge estimates the expansion will cost $100,000.

FIVE YEARS AGO the bank was completely remodeled inside. The current building was dedicated in June of 1924, after fire leveled the original "bank on the corner," that was built in 1903.

Bank on Corner Founded in 1884 By Lt. Governor

It's July, 1884. Charlevoix, Mich., is a small town with a population of 300. It's industries are fishing and saw mills.

Charlevoix boasts two year-around hotels — the Ingleside and Fountain City House — and the summer hotels Belvedere and the Chicago Club. It also has two physicians and two lawyers.

THE COMMUNITY needs a bank. So A. R. Upright, Archibald Butters, John Nicholls, O. D. Wood and Amos Fox organize the Charlevoix Savings Bank.

In 1890 John Nicholls, Butters, Harry Nicholls and Monte Lewis take over the Charlevoix Savings Bank and rename it the Charlevoix County Bank.

Twelve years later Albert F. Bridge comes to Charlevoix and joins the firm. In 1903 he is responsible for construction of a three story brick building on the corner of Bridge and Clinton Sts. A young high school student begins working at the bank in 1911. He is Robert Bridge. In 1924, 20 years after his father completed the bank's first modern building, Bob Bridge is responsible for construction of the present building.

BUT THIS IS ONLY a very brief chronology of the Charlevoix County State Bank's first 40 years. Old newspaper clippings give it much more detail.

May 20 the bank marks its 80th birthday with a party. So a closer look at those early days seem in order.

Archibald Butters was the driving force behind the creation and early years of the bank, according to clippings from the Charlevoix Courier and Charlevoix Sentinel.

In the year the bank was established — 1884 — Butters was elected Lt. Gov. of Michigan. During the absence of the governor, he served several periods as acting governor.

BUTTERS DIED in San Diego, Calif., Saturday, June 5, 1926. On his death the Charlevoix Sentinel wrote: "The city of Charlevoix loses an excellent citizen, a pioneer resident not only of this region but of the state, one whose lifetime extended over a term of years exceeding by far the allotted span of human life—three score and ten."

IN 1926 ALBERT F. Bridge was

Fruit Trees
Nice Shrubs

BOYNE CITY — Dwarfed or small sized apple and pear trees may be just the answer for the Charlevoix County amateur gardener faced with the problem of limited space, according to Ed Hebban, County Extension Director.

The small trees are also useful as ornamentals on the lawn or along shrub borders and for planting in larger gardens where it is impractical to grow standard-sized trees, says R. F. Carlson, Michigan State University horticulturist.

THE SMALLER-SIZED, dwarfed trees have several advantages over the standard tree, for the home gardener and commercial grower alike including:

—They begin to bear fruit at an early age.

—They can be conveniently pruned or sprayed.

—The fruit is easily harvested from the ground or with short ladders.

—Small-hand dusters and sprayers can be used for insect and disease control.

—The fruit is highly colored and above average in size under favorable conditions.

—Dwarf trees are produced by grafting or budding a desired variety onto a special type of root system which restricts the growth of the grafted variety, says Carlson. So far, only apple, pear, plum and peach can be successfully

Poster Theme

An anti-litter theme was used in the poster contest held in the Charlevoix elementary school in connection with Clean-up week.

Sponsored by the Charlevoix Garden Club in an effort to promote Clean-up week, cash first prizes have been awarded to the classrooms of the winning entrants.

FIRST PRIZE in the first-second grades division was awarded to George Khisde, a student in Mrs. Coleman's second grade.

Vicky Skeltan, a student in Mrs. Mueller's room, was the winner in the third-fourth grade division.

Dianne Klooster, a winner in last year's contest, turned in the winning entry in the grades five-six division with the prize going to Mrs. Harris' classroom.

The winning entries and some of the runners-up were displayed at Schroeder Drug, Central Drug and Lieberman's during the week which is officially Clean-up week.

Gordon Named To Fight RR
Abandonment

State Rep. Don Gordon of Leeland (Charlevoix District) has been named vice chairman of a five man Legislative Committee to fight proposed abandonment of railroad service in northern Michigan.

Gordon, a member of the House Committee on Economic Development, has warned that discontinuance of the rail service would result in job losses and cripple northern Michigan industries which depend on rail transportation. It might also, he added, discourage new industries.

SERVING WITH GORDON on the committee are John F. Toeppe, Cadillac, Chairman; Arnell Engstrom, Traverse City; Dominic Jacobetti, Marquette, and Russell

IN ANNOUNCING the winners, Mrs. Max-Hosmer, chairman of the poster contest, said the Garden club was extremely proud of the youngsters who participated in the project. "The thought, time and effort put forth by these children should inspire all of us to be 'Neaterbugs,' particularly during Clean-up Week," she added.

Track Fans Loyal to CHS for 6 Decades

Today's youngsters think of cinder tracks and track records as a part of this generation.

These three men, photographed at a recent track meet, are living proof that this sport has been around a long time for Earl Miller (center) than the half-mile and was a tackle on Charlevoix's championship football team before he graduated in 1901.

ALLEN CAMPBELL, left, was a sprinter in his day. He was graduated from the local high school in 1905.

Clark Coulter makes no claim to track records but contends that he was always around to give moral support to those athletes who were striving for track records. He was a member of the class of 1906.

All three are avid sports fans and can be seen in all kinds of weather, following Charlevoix teams on the gridiron, the basketball court and the cinder track.

In Michigan... after a swim, beer is a natural

On a hot summer day, a dip in a cool stream can be wonderfully refreshing. Equally refreshing when you're relaxing afterwards with friends is a hearty glass of beer. There's hardly another beverage around that suits what you do for fun as much as beer. Canoeing, hiking, or just lounging on a lawn chair—beer brings to each just the right touch of extra good living.

Your familiar glass of beer is also a pleasurable reminder that we live in a land of personal freedom—and that our right to enjoy beer and ale, if we so desire, is just one, but an important one, of those personal freedoms.

In Michigan... beer goes with fun, with relaxation

CHARLEVOIX WILL get $11,701. Petoskey gets $20,812, more than any other area city. Others get—Boyne City, $14,937; East Jordan, $7,831; Ellsworth, $3,333 and Boyne Falls, $1,631.

The breakdown for counties is: Charlevoix, $146,608; Emmet, $166,612; and Antrim $148,613.

The 18-hole qualifying rounds will be played the first two days of the five-day tourney, June 24 and 25 with the low 63 scores for the 36-hole (stroke play) joining defending champion Bud Stevens of Birmingham, in match play competition on June 26, continuing through June 28.

The entry fee will be $20. A check in this amount should accompany each entry which must be certified as to correct handicap by the entry's club handicap chairman or by the proper authorized handicap agency in the case of public links contestants. Certification of an incorrect handicap, or failure to provide such certification on the entry blank, will be cause for disqualification.

A SPECIAL 36-HOLE best-ball competition will be scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, June 27 and 28, for those entries failing to qualify for championship matches, plus losers in Friday's matches. Contestants desiring to participate are advised to watch for details which will be posted on the

Rambling

A HANDFUL OF inconsiderate, selfish pipsqueaks are spoiling one of the best deals Charlevoix kids have had in a long while.

Hal Forbrig, this spring, opened his trout pond on Stover Creek beside the old beet plant, to kids only fishing. "I just think it's a good idea," Hal said during one of his shy moods last April.

Well, it was. The kids have caught plenty of trout, ranging up to 18 inches. Everything I can put together indicates it's by far and away the best trout fishing Charlevoix kids have had in a generation.

You probably don't think about it, but there are literally hundreds of thousands of Michigan kids who will never catch a trout. Not even a puny seven inch hatchery specimen... leave along a spunky 18 incher.

So a few smart alecks, whose folks haven't taught them to respect others, are going to ruin it for all the rest.

Forbrig reports dozens, windows, equipment and other things have been ruined by the kids. "Just plain vandalized!" he declares. Forbrig, and no one else can stand for this.

"I'm going to have to shut it down, unless it ends," he says. And he says it like a man who doesn't want to say it. For which you can't blame him; every decent boy, and a few of their fathers, who like fishing, is bound to get mad at Hal if he is forced to keep the kids away from the trout pond.

"There are probably about 40 boys who fish there regularly, but I don't expect more than a half dozen of them are doing the damage," Hal said.

So the blame will be on these half dozen boys and the others who don't do anything to stop them. Next time a boy sees someone throwing things in the pond or spillway, or breaking anything they should have their folks call Hal, or do something themselves.

The spotters will always be around to rob the good guys. Maybe this gives Charlevoix kids a unique opportunity to learn to deal with them early in life.

3,000 Get Oral Polio Protection

Doctors and nurses in the public health service are reported to sometimes feel their work is a never-ending repetition of frustrations.

But not in Charlevoix last Sunday. The public health service was rewarding work Sunday.

THREE THOUSAND people streamed through the Charlevoix County Building to get their type II oral polio vaccine. Doctors and nurses had conducted their most intensive campaign in years to get people out. It paid off.

Dr. A. F. Litzenger, health district director, and Mrs. Jeanne Miles, public nurse, had estimated the potential number of persons who could get the vaccine at 3,000. This figure represented 100 percent of the persons eligible for the vaccine.

Mrs. Miles admits they hoped to have 3,000 out, but didn't expect it.

Not only did they fulfill their most optimistic expectations, but

Want Flowers Planted by Businessmen

Downtown Charlevoix's sidewalks and store windows will become flower gardens this summer, if the Garden Club has its way.

The Garden Club last week launched what it considers a determined drive to interest the merchants in beautifying the downtown area with flowers.

MRS. HARLEY OCHS said the club is asking all businessmen to plant flowers along sidewalks in front of their stores.

As early this week, Mrs. Och said all businessmen contacted have agreed to enter the project.

The Garden Club idea will work like this:

● All businesses will plant flowering plants in front of their stores. These will be placed in flower boxes, tubs, or other containers.

● The club suggests businessmen make an effort to design unique containers for flowers. Such as a large mortar and pestle for drug stores, sealed down automobile models for car dealers, small boats for marinas, etc.

● The Garden Club will judge the flower displays and select winners. A plaque, offered by the Charlevoix Courier, will be presented to the winner.

MRS. OCHS said Garden Club members will be glad to act as consultants to businessmen who desire suggestions.

The club expects the project to expand every year. They also hope the spirit of the downtown area will inspire more homeowners to participate in traditional, residential garden club contests.

The idea for the downtown flower beautification came from Neosho, Missouri. Neosho instituted such a project on a community wide basis nine years ago.

Since then, Mrs. Och said, the idea has spread throughout the country, and won Neosho considerable fame.

"IF NEOSHO CAN do it, we can do even better as we have more natural beauty to start with," Mrs. Och said.

Local Veterans Push Poppy Campaign

"In Flanders' fields the poppies blow

Between the crosses, row on row."

These stirring lines from a poem about World War One dead in European graveyards inspired American veterans organizations to launch their Buddy Poppy campaign.

Members of the VFW Auxiliary will be on street corners selling Buddy Poppies. All donations above 15 cents are appreciated, Mrs. James Whitley, VFW Auxiliary chairman reports.

"The sale of poppies is the only direct appeal to the public for aid to hospitalized and needy veterans," Ken Stanley, men's chairman said.

Contributions made by the public in good faith are used in the same good faith by being placed in the Relief Fund to be held in trust for specific purposes only, Mrs. Whitley said.

Ellsworth School Joins Charlevoix Intermediate

Related Stories Page 6
The Ellsworth Community School District has joined the local school family.

Ellsworth Supt. Jerry Albright last week announced the school district has annexed to the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

THIS MEANS ELLSWORTH educators now look to Intermediate Supt. Charles Robinson's office in the Charlevoix County Building for the same services as other local school districts.

The amalgamation strengthens the bond between Charlevoix and Ellsworth—two natural neighbors—Albright points out.

Robinson said Ellsworth requested permission to join the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate District because it is a geographically logical move.

"They feel we are a logical service area and our philosophies are sound," Robinson said.

ANOTHER STRONG point with Ellsworth, Robinson said, was the pending establishment of a special education district by the Intermediate District.

Ellsworth school district will join with those in Charlevoix and Emmet counties June 8 to vote on a half-mill levy to create the special education program.

Other reasons given for Ellsworth breaking away from the Antrim County Intermediate District to join Charlevoix were:

● Ellsworth has stronger social economic ties with Charlevoix than Antrim County communities.

● Highways in the area run north and south, leading them to Charlevoix.

● The additional student enrollment will enhance Charlevoix district's ability to offer more efficient and economical services than in a smaller intermediate district.

THE ANTRIM COUNTY Intermediate District and Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate District boards approved the merger on the request of the Ellsworth Community School District Board of Education.

Robinson said there is a possibility of a merger with the Antrim County Intermediate District.

Charlevoix Courier People-Reader Want Ads continue to bring unsolicited rave notices from those who have used them.

Last week two Charlevoix women who placed People-Reader Want Ads extolled their value. They both received results from their ads the day they came out.

MRS. MARG WARNER of Antrim St., sold her used piano Thursday. People were so enthusiastic about her offer to sell it they even called her neighbors because she was out of her house for a while.

Mrs. Ken Forbes of May St. had equally good luck in her search for a boy to care for the lawn. She found someone the day the ad came out.

People-Reader Want Ads can help you, too. Don't forget, they are read by more people than any other publication in Charlevoix County.

Fate of Sucher Home in Court Must Settle Hospital's Claim

Charlevoix Hospital's claim to the late C. William Sucher's home on Lake Michigan is being settled by Circuit Court. Circuit Judge Charles L. Brown Tuesday took the case under consideration, County Clerk F. R. Bulow said.

Sucher's heirs, Richard Sucher, his son, and others, have asked the court to determine if the hospital is the legal owner of the estate across from the hospital on the lake. The home is the last one on the Lake Michigan side of Park Ave. before you reach the hospital.

EARL A. YOUNG, realtor and builder, who had the home built for Sucher, estimates the value of the home, furnishings and property at more than $100,000.

Sucher, the president of Speedway Corp., began legal transactions to give the estate to the hospital in late 1960. He completed dealing over an undivided one-half interest in 1961.

However, he died Nov. 13, 1962, before the other undivided one-half interest could be legally transferred to the hospital.

HOSPITAL TRUSTEES, represented by attorney Norman D. Ance, contend Sucher's oral commitment to give the rest of the estate to the hospital.

City Workers Get Pay Hike

City Council Tuesday learned operating the electric utility with purchased power isn't as profitable as anticipated.

Auditors reports, received by Councilmen, reveal the utility made $41,689 profit during its first fiscal year under the new system. Instead of producing its own power, the city now buys electricity from Consumers Power Co. and sells it to customers.

A CONDENSED summary of the audit made by Dinwiddie and Kandi, certified public accountants on the electric utility, shows profits of $57,000 were projected.

Tuesday evening's meeting also resulted in approval of a pay raise for all city employees and plans to construct a $30,000 passenger terminal (administration building) at the Municipal Airport.

The electric utility audit summary, signed by E. Darrell Dinwiddie, shows that while the city-operated business made $15,311 less than his firm projected, it's total sales increased 13 percent.

The city took in a total of $287,797 from electricity sales, $1,397 more than projected. However, this was more than offset by total expenses of $243,719, which is $21,519 more than projected when the bud.

Judge Dismisses Criminal Charge Against 5 Here

Circuit Court Judge Charles L. Brown dismissed criminal charges against five persons Monday.

Charges were dropped against Robert A. Dougherty of Boyne Falls, who faced an insufficient check charge; Jack Collins, of Boyne City, embezzlement; William Rebec, Jr., of East Jordan, driving under the influence of alcohol; Harold Magee of Boyne Falls, larceny from an automobile; and John S. Mariage, Jr., of Boyne City, larceny from an automobile.

PROSECUTING Attorney Harvey Varnum said Dougherty is serving a prison term on another charge.

Magee and Mariage were sentenced to probation on another count of the same charge that was dismissed.

The charge against Rebec was dismissed, Varnum said, because he has volunteered to take hospital treatment.

Judge Brown referred Robert Russell of Charlevoix to the probation department for a sentence recommendation when he was convicted of a third disorderly person offense.

Clifford Towles of East Jordan was sentenced to $50 fine and costs and two days in the County Jail for driving while his operator's license was suspended.

Bob DeYoung, Gordon Freedman, Mark Karntoya, Victor Kantola, Mike Elenne, Larry Anders, and Joe Hayes. They were accompanied by Scout Master Louis Edwards, Earl Holborn, John Ochs, and Tom Hawley.

All Buddy Poppies sold in Charlevoix are made by disabled veterans at the Veterans Facility at Grand Rapids.

No money donated by the public for poppies can be used for general expenses. It must all be used for the welfare of veterans, Mrs. Whitley said.

Mayor E. D. Hawley has issued a proclamation urging Charlevoix citizens to buy and wear VFW and Legion poppies as "mute evidence of our gratitude to the men of this country who have risked their lives in defense of the freedoms we continue to enjoy."

Ellsworth

Ellsworth has 275 students this year. Of these, 100 are in grades 9-12.

Ellsworth superintendent Jerome Albright has close ties to Charlevoix. He is a 1954 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Albright received his BA degree from Central Michigan University in 1961 and his MA degree from Central in 1963.

Mrs. Albright, a native of Manistique, in the Upper Peninsula, was a lab technician at Charlevoix Hospital for three years. They have a son, Craig, 3, and daughter, Patricia, 1. They live in Ellsworth.

ANCE HAS asked Judge Brown to dismiss the heirs' claim for a judgment directing the directors of Sucher's estate to convey the remaining half interest to the hospital. If he does this, the hospital will remain ownership and the heirs, reportedly, will not be liable for inheritance taxes on it.

Rambling

OUR LETTERS to the editor column this week carries a time worn suggestion that we only print letters that are good for the public to read. Newspapers constantly receive these proposals.

However, the free world's top newspapers have long felt too humble to think their judgment is so supreme they should decide what the public should and should not read.

It is a dictator's role to decide what the public should be told and what it shouldn't be.

The only time we do this is when we're sure the letter writer is expressing a purely personal and selfish view in an effort to gain something of value to himself and not the general public.

If we feel a letter has general interest — though we thoroughly disagree with it — we print it.

The notion that only signed letters should be printed has been discarded by all the good newspapers we read. If a person is allowed to express his opinion secretly at the ballot box, why shouldn't he have the same option in the public letter box?

With the rest of the letter we have no quarrel. In fact, I suggest that it is definitely a letter that is in the public's interest.

SEEMS I WAS guilty of a very unnecessary oversight in last week's piece on the wonderful Charlevoix Hospital. I left out the names of the Board of Trustees, medical staff and administrators. So, better late than never:

get was set up early in 1963. COMPLETE, DETAILED audit statements on the utility and general fund will be ready for the June 1 council meeting, Mayor E. D. Hawley said.

Councilmen accepted an offer of the Michigan Dept. of Aeronautics to construct a $30,000 airport terminal building on Carpenter St. The city will pay $15,000 of the cost over the next two years. The building will replace the white frame building now used.

City Supt. James Taylor told Councilmen, the state department informed the city it had some unexpected funds available, and would of them by putting up the building because the landing field here is considered a "priority airport."

THE BUILDING will include a lounge, restrooms and other facilities for pilots, passenger and the airport manager.

Councilmen approved pay raises of approximately six-cent an hour for hourly employees and between $300 and $350 annually for salaried employees.

Hawley estimated the pay hikes will cost the city $4,500 this year. There are 17 hourly workers and 16 on salary.

Sonja Richardson Weds John Martin

The Community Reformed Church was the scene Saturday evening of the wedding of Sonja Richardson and John F. Martin.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Doyle C. Richardson and Mr. and Mrs. John F. Martin.

THE REV. CHARLES A. STOKES officiated at the double ring service in the presence of more than 225 guests. Arrangements of white gladioli and snapdragons and blue delishes and lighted candelabra entwined with ivy formed a setting for the ceremony. Mrs. John Boss, at the organ played a program of traditional wedding music and the wedding march was accompanied by the soloist, Herbert Boss.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of white tulle and Alencon lace for her wedding. Fashioned with a lace bodice and long tapered sleeves, the bouffant skirt had a panel of the same lace which also trimmed the back of the skirt that flowed into a bustled marriage back and chapel length train. A seed-pearl crown secured with a fingertip veil. She carried a small white Bible topped with an arrangement of white rosebuds.

Shirley Arnold of Lansing served as her cousin's maid of honor and Mrs. Robert Mathews as bridesmaid.

Loretta Richardson, sister of the bride, and Donna Martin, sister of the groom, were junior bridesmaids.

Funeral services have been tentatively scheduled for 9 a.m. today at St. Mary's church. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery. The Rosary will be recited 8 p.m. Thursday at the Western Funeral Home.

County Reduces School Income

The Charlevoix County Allocation Board this week cut the school's portion of the 15-mill tax levy and gave the County Board of Supervisors more.

However, school officials said the cut will be minor, and should not reflect any threat to their 1964-65 operations.

Supt. Rex Milligan of Charlevoix Public Schools said the loss to his district will be approximately $550. This, he said, will be more than made up by the unexpected increase in valuation.

BOYNE CITY SCHOOLS will lose approximately $270 in tax money and East Jordan $220.

Brought Christianity in 1823

Recall Peter Greensky's Work

(EDITOR'S NOTE —The Courier hopes to print all of Mrs. Elsie (Greensky) Pashenee's history of Greensky Hill Indian Church. Unfortunately, it would have required more than a page of solid type, for which there was not room.)

The greed and brutality of some early northern Michigan traders and missionaries in their treatment of Indians is dramatically told in a historical report on the 125 years of Charlevoix's Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church.

A STEP-DAUGHTER of George

Greensky, Mrs. Pashenee gave the major historical presentation at the dedication of the church. She told the Courier, "I only wish it may reach the hearts of the people who so cruelly wrote ignorant imaginations of our sacred Church."

Construction of the secluded church on top of the hill five miles northeast of town, was started in 1832 by local Indians, converted to the Christian faith by Peter Greensky. Work was completed in 1840.

Peter Greensky, Mrs. Pashenee's report says, was born in Chippewa County, Mich., Feb. 15, 1798. His Chippewa Indian parents perished in a Lake Superior storm. Peter and his sister Susan (after whom Susan Lake is named) were placed in the Christian Mission School at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Leaving the school in his 20's, Greensky was determined to spend his life as a missionary among the Indians.

HE TRAVELED by canoe to the mouth of the Pine River, then an Ottawa Indian settlement, arriving in 1823. Greensky's early days among tribes in the area were troubled and difficult. They were content with their religious beliefs and saw no reason to change.

Gradually, Greensky's patience, earnestness and faith won converts. Greensky, Mrs. Pashenee reports, dressed simply, without ornamental embellishments. Until Greensky started his work in this area, efforts by white men to evangelize the Indians had failed, her report points out.

NINE YEARS after he arrived here, Greensky and his converts started construction on the Greensky Hill church. The location was chosen to avoid intrusion. The trees were hauled by oxen from the shore of Pine Lake (Round Lake).

In 1834, tribes from throughout the region were invited to a memorial planting at the site of the church then under construction. More than 1,000 are reported to have attended.

Thirty-two of the families converted by Greensky planted maple tree saplings in a circle near the church.

Mrs. Pashenee's report denies articles that say Greensky's religious meetings on Greensky Hill and the planting of the trees by Christian converts are legend.

THE TREES signified burying the old beliefs and traditional practices. "Why do people call this sacred memorial a legend?" Mrs. Pashenee asks.

"Not many years ago KE-WAD-NO-QUA daughter-in-law of Peter Greensky, sat in the shade of these trees, tears streaming down her face, recalling the events of that never to be forgotten, impressive day," Mrs. Pashenee relates in her history. She would always take me to church . . . she drove her team of horses from Bay Shore EVERY SUNDAY . . . She always told many of the great meetings held in Greensky Hill and how they saved our people from a very sad plight.

Today nine of these gnarled, trees survive, several hundred yards from the church, on property owned by Karl W. Purdy.

Eighteen maple saplings were planted this spring by church members on their property near the historical marker. Though it is hoped the original trees will be preserved by Purdy, the saplings were planted to enrich the tradition and give meaning to persons visiting the marker.

By 1840 the log church was completed. In 1905 the original clinking of swamp moss and clay was replaced with cement.

"1836 — THE WHITE man has taken full authority," Mrs. Pashenee's report continues. "Government agents are sent to every Indian settlement. Proudly, telling the natives, titles are needed to prove ownership to their land. Titles are unknown to my people, they have been here for centuries."

She relates that several of the Indians were sent to Ionia to come back with government loans to save their land. "Those that were chosen never returned," Mrs. Pashenee's report explains.

With white men becoming more numerous and determined to take over the land, Mrs. Pashenee relates years of greed, brutality and slavery imposed on the Indians. Her story tells of the jealousy the white missionaries felt toward Greensky's success.

She tells of Indians deposed of their home during winter, left with no means to obtain food or care for children.

IN 1810 GREENSKY married Jane Smith from Bay Mills, Mich. They had a son, Jacob in 1842. The youngest of Jacob's sons is George Greensky—Mrs. Pashenee's step-father. He now lives in a convalescent home in Minnesota.

Peter Greensky died in 1864, after more than 40 years of missionary work in the Charlevoix area. Jacob died in 1887, from Civil War wounds.

"Peter Greensky did not gain great published fame, or worldly riches, but he was happy," Mrs. Pashenee states. "God called him, and led him to his people. His great leadership can still be seen. The American natives who defied the gospel of Christ came from great distances to hear his teaching."

Top Scholars Act as Hosts

Members of the National Honor Societies of the Charlevoix and Petoskey High School entertained exchange students from seven countries who are spending the school year in Northern Michigan.

STUDENTS FROM Sweden, Germany, Finland, Holland, Uruguay, Mexico and Brazil who are spending the school year here under the sponsorship of the Youth for Understanding program of the Michigan Council of Churches and the American Field Services participated in the special event planned by the honor societies. The group included Charlevoix's exchange students, Maria Kroeze of Holland and Selene Solar of Uruguay.

Charlevoix students who participated were Diane Phelps, Terry Nielsen, Judy Walker, Barbara and Sharon Sugden, Janice Vandenberg, Verene McClanaghan, Sherill Pearsall, Nancy Novak, Richard Gelz, Tony Price, Bob Odmark, Del Terrill and John Bleha. Mrs. Harold E. Kohn, Mrs. Robert G. Martin, Mrs. Charles A. Duerr and Mrs. Clara Walker served as adult advisors.

Dedicate Marker at Old Church

The Michigan Historical Commission Sunday honored the work and memory of a Chippewa Indian missionary who came to Charlevoix 141 years ago to teach Christianity among Ottawa Indians.

A Historical Society marker was dedicated atop Greensky Hill, overlooking Susan Lake, five miles north of Charlevoix.

PETER GREENSKY came to Pine Lake (now Round Lake) from an Indian mission school in Canada in 1823. Where the efforts of white missionaries had been rejected by local Indians, Greensky succeeded.

By 1832 the number of Greensky's converts had swelled to such a number they started building the church on top of the hill at Susan Lake. It was completed in 1840.

Services are still held in Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church, that, according to historians, was completed 124 years ago.

Sunday this history was recognized as accurate and "official" by the State of Michigan, A Michigan Historical Marker, authenticating Greensky's work and the date of the church, was dedicated.

PARTICIPATING in the dedication were local Indian families who make up the 18 present members of the congregation, descendants of Peter Greensky, pastor Raymond McBratnie, George May of the historical commission and Rev. Health T. Goodwin, district Methodist Church superintendent.

Willard Shomin, Jr., of Petoskey, great-grandson of Peter Greensky, gave some historical highlights of the church for his grandfather George Greensky, grandson of Peter Greensky, was unable to attend due to health.

Mrs. Elsie Pashenee, step-daughter of George Greensky, gave the official version of the church's history.

Rev. McBratnie of the Charlevoix Methodist Church, holds services in the Greensky Hill church every Sunday at 9:30 a.m. He reports the rough hewn log walls of the building are those hauled up the hill between 1832 and 1840 from Pine Lake.

THE FOUNDATION, thinking and interior of the church have been rebuilt during the years. A modern dining building and outdoor chapel has been added at the site.

The graveyard, much of it lost in the surrounding woods, can still be seen.

The church services, Rev. McBratnie points out, are open to the public. Visitors are welcome. About 125 attend each summer.

The historic church is reached by going north from town on US-31, turning east on the Boyne City rd., then north on old US-31. Three-tenths of a mile after turning on old US-31, a sign in the middle of a uphill curve on the left side of the road marks the dirt road up the hill to the church.

HISTORICAL MARKER — The wording on the historical marker dedicated Sunday at Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church can be read here. The marker stands in an open field across from the church.

CHARLEVOIX'S HERITAGE — This is Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church. These thick, rough hewn log walls have enclosed the worship place for 125 years. They were hauled from the banks of Round Lake (then Pine Lake) to the top of Greensky Hill by early Christians, converted by Peter Greensky.

Petoskey Stones Present Opportunity for Charlevoix

A FEW YEARS AGO — easily within the memory of a young editorial writer — the word "lapidary" meant nothing to most of us. If you said you were studying "lapidary" and planned to take it up as a hobby, you would more often than not, draw a puzzled frown from even your best-read friends.

But not today. With the tremendous increase in leisure time, and swelling population of healthy, financially comfortable retired couples, lapidary has become a household word. Even most children today know it means working with rocks.

MAGAZINES WITH circulation measured in the tens of thousands are now published on rock collecting and lapidary—finishing them into jewelry after you've found them. Hobby shops and community recreation centers are not complete unless they have equipment for the rock hound.

Hundreds of thousands, and maybe millions, of people have taken up rock collecting as a serious hobby. A hobby they spend millions of dollars on. Because lapidary requires a keen intelligence and skill, most rock hounds are people of good standing and with enough money to enjoy their hobby.

They are also people who appreciate natural beauty, or they wouldn't find pleasure in cutting and polishing maximum beauty into a stone.

FOR SUCH PEOPLE as these, Charlevoix offers attractions that can be equaled nowhere else. This is the unqualified opinion of Charlevoix's two most ardent, and successful, rock hounds—Ed Heise and Fred Lonze. They both agree that hundreds and thousands of rock hounds would flock to Charlevoix if they were only informed about the unique Petoskey Stones to be found along our beautiful beaches.

The majority of lapidary hobbyists who are familiar with Petoskey Stones buy them from professional peddlers in downtown and out-of-state shops. These peddlers come to Charlevoix and take truck loads of Petoskey Stones off the beaches.

Heise contends that if these same people knew how easily they can find their own Petoskey Stones along Charlevoix's beaches they would jump at the chance. He isn't beating his gums. Heise has some positive, constructive ideas on how these people can be lured to Charlevoix.

He goes even further. Rock hounds, Heise explains, would prefer to come in the spring or fall. This is when Charlevoix needs them the most. Our summer and winter business packs available facilities. But in the two in-between seasons, paying visitors are rare.

WHY WOULD THEY rather come in the spring and fall? Heise says the weather is nicer for rock collecting and rock hounds aren't generally partial to crowds.

How does he suggest they be attracted to Charlevoix? Heise proposes that we:

- Deliver the Petoskey Stone story through national magazines and metropolitan newspaper hobby page advertising and publicity; tell people about the charm of Petoskey Stones and that they can only be collected along our dramatically beautiful beaches, that our spring and fall weather can be relied on to be warm and clear, and that we have some of the best tourist facilities anywhere.

- Prepare a special brochure telling the "above things and aimed directly at rock hounds.

- Plan and stage a national rock hound festival, or some such thing, in the spring or fall.

- Get businessmen informed about Petoskey Stones and busy telling the story to visitors.

WE'RE CONVINCED Heise is on the right track. What he proposes can be done . . . and should be.

Why should Charlevoix continue to exploit its uncommon natural attractions in such a common manner? Isn't it time we used our imagination? Did something hold and different, rather than stagnate in old ideas?

Petoskey Stones and rock hounds aren't going to make any of us rich. They won't make the difference between a Chevrolet and a Cadillac. But they could mean a new Ford every three years instead of every five years.

Camp Needs A Challenge

CHARLEVOIX IS CONSIDERED to be critically lacking in one of the most basic needs of a modern tourist center—campgrounds. Michigan's top forester for all of the northern Lower Peninsula wasn't being critical when he pointed this out in last week's Courier.

Regional forestry chief H. V. Bargerson was, instead, recognizing our unsurpassed attraction to vacationers. He is also more aware than most of us that campers are backbone of a major portion of today's vacationers.

TRADITIONALLY CAMPGROUNDS are a state responsibility. However, it isn't hard to understand that the state hasn't been able to keep up with demands for campsites. Nothing in recreation has ever equaled the increase in family camping in the last decade.

We should thank Bargerson for giving us some practical solutions to our critical shortage in campsites. He points out the Conservation Dept. puts its campground development funds in locations where there is local participation in the project. This way the state is getting more for its money, because some of the investment is made by the local government.

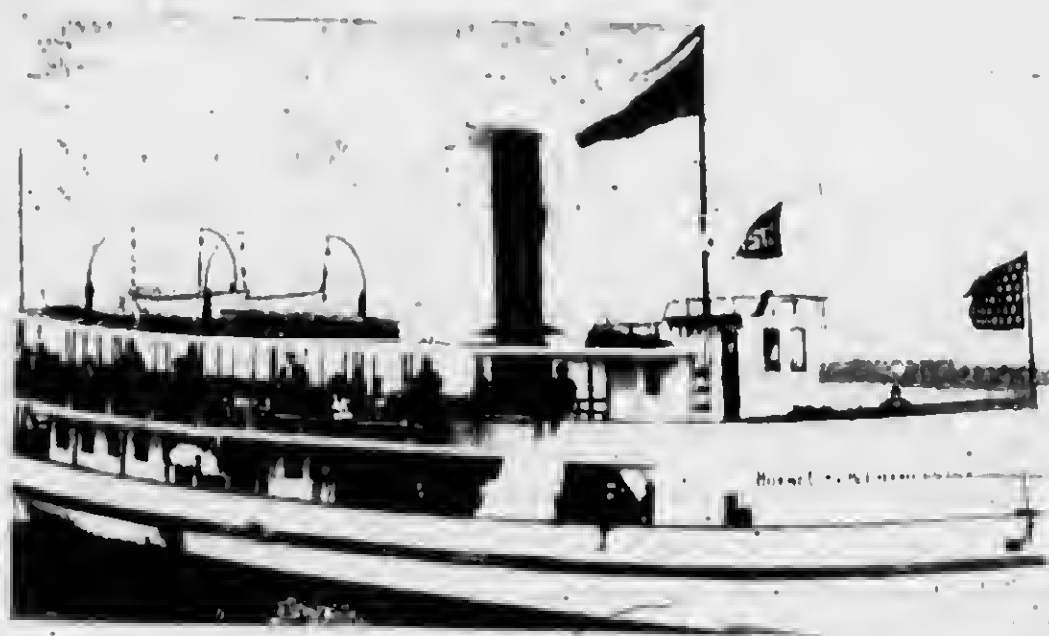

This makes good business sense to us. The state should try to get as much from our money as it can. Further, communities that show the most interest in campground development should get top priority.

Specifically, Bargerson suggests a local unit of government — city, township, or county road commission — put up the equipment and manpower to clear campsites in the Pigeon River State Forest along Lake Michigan south of town. If Charlevoix Township and the city hadn't cooperated on this at Bell's Bay the campground there would not exist, the regional forestry chief declared.

BEFORE THIS GOES ANY further we can imagine local officials finding legal, and other, reasons why they can't possibly invest in a joint venture with the Conservation Dept. But we can also imagine the dexterity with which they would get around these stumbling blocks if they wanted to.

The state will provide the surveying, engineering, box toilets, tables and administration of additional campsites along the lake. Asking the community to put up the rest is mighty generous when you consider the thousands of dollars it would bring into Charlevoix.

From Charlevoix's Past . . .

The lakes and sailing ships have always dominated a major portion of Charlevoix's livelihood and interests. This 1900 picture from Ralph Price's collection shows a passenger ferry that made two trips daily between Charlevoix and Boyne City.

Other ferries carried people between Charlevoix and Ironton and East Jordan.

Roads in those days were commonly ribbons of mud or churning dust. Boats offered much more comfortable transportation than horse carriage. Even after the automobile, boat travel continued to be preferable for several years.

Today the ferries are gone. But in summer you can skim down to Boyne City in a light, high-powered outboard much faster than by road.

Student Defends Teachers

TO THE EDITOR:

Regret that I have aroused the ire of the teachers with my comments, and appreciate Mrs. Courtade's riposte, evading the issue, without investigating the facts.

When I stated that a TWELFTH grade graduate (mis-printed by the Courier to read EIGHTH GRADE) should be sufficient to teach the lower grades, which in turn would relieve the shortage of teachers, I cannot understand why it should be necessary to hire a college PROFESSOR to instruct the children to cut out paper dolls or that two and two make four.

THE STATE REQUIRES a certain degree to teach I agree, may I add the state may be in error? The government requires a physical examination and intelligence test. PEEL potatoes in the army, this, I believe is also wrong, a handicapped person could do as well.

My barber and taxi driver also "must" have a license to conduct their business. Should I insist he have a college degree and if he had, should I pay him more? I think not, I do not care about his education as long as he can do the work.

The Courier printed an article in Feb. or March which stated in part viz: a National Survey of Senior Students in High School said business could be operated at a non-profit basis, this from 60 percent on a national poll. Mrs. Courtade contended that I may have asked some of the poorer students who gave me the wrong answers to my questions. May I ask HOW they passed to High School if they were unable to answer fourth or fifth grade questions?

She also stated that after her expenses were paid she did not have much more than a GOOD carpenter. May I ask WHY she should have? She could not do what the carpenter does, if she would try it for a day, she would be glad to go back to teaching.

SHE ALSO invited me to take a test with the students at the school. My reply is "I am sorry, I do not have the time, or the interest; furthermore I am the plaintiff, not the defendant."

Mrs. Courtade should have investigated whether I was right in my statements before writing her defense of the charges.

I state again if they would teach the three R's instead of teaching children HOW TO PLAY, such as teaching square dancing in grade school which many parents object to, and devote this time to teaching the three R's which the parents send their children to school to learn, I feel sure would be more helpful.

However, if the teacher DOES NOT teach the pupils the necessary knowledge for their future life, she has failed, regardless of her college education.

I DO NOT claim that ALL students are inferior in knowledge, nor all teachers fail to teach what they are paid for.

I do say there is too much needless activities which the students as well as the teachers are active in.

Hope this concludes the parance and I have made myself clear.

Parent-Teacher Confabs Would Strengthen Ties

By DR. WM. RATIGAN

Throughout this academic year, and with the initiative supplied by the superintendent of schools, the elementary teachers, principal, and guidance coordinator have been exploring the possibilities of regularly scheduled parent-teacher conferences. Although no definite schedule has been adopted, the year-long study has resulted in the following conclusions:

Parent-teacher conferences should be held regularly in the elementary school and, insofar as possible, within the framework of the school day, although special provisions would be made for parents able to attend only in the evening of the designated school day.

TWO PARENT-TEACHER conferences would be planned during each school year, one scheduled in connection with the first marking period, and the other pointed toward a springtime discussion and evaluation of pupil progress.

Rather than dismissal of the entire elementary school, one day would be set aside for each grade. For instance, on the day set aside for the fourth grade, the children in that grade would not come to school. Instead the parents would be invited to visit the school and discuss the progress of their children in the fourth grade.

A definite schedule of appointments would be pre-arranged by setting the time of day most convenient to most parents. Any problems in scheduling would be worked out on a master schedule in the elementary principal's office.

As an example of this system, let us say that a parent had been given a choice of certain times of day and had chosen ten o'clock in the morning as most convenient for her. The teacher had found this time space still unoccupied on her schedule and so had put the parent's name down for that period. The elementary principal had checked his master schedule and another parent-teacher conference was in the making.

A DEFINITE TIME limit: perhaps fifteen minutes would be given to each conference in order that all parents might be given equal consideration. If more time seemed necessary, the teacher and parent by mutual agreement could arrange another meeting outside of regular school hours.

During their year-long study of parent-teacher conferences in other elementary school systems throughout the United States, our own teachers and administrators learned that parents want to learn three things from the teacher:

1. How is my child getting along with you and with the other children in the class?
2. Is he doing his work as well as he should on the basis of his ability?
3. If his work is not up to the standard for him, what can I do to help him?

OTHER QUESTIONS that may occur in any parent-teacher conference are as follows: Concerning work habits. Does the teacher and parents feel the child is putting forth his best effort? Does the child start promptly and finish what he starts at home? At school? How does the child use his leisure time at home? At school? Special interests, hobbies? Does the child share some of the home responsibility? School responsibility? Does the child work at home and at school in such a way as to permit others to work also? Does the child have a quiet place to read and study at home?

Concerning social habits: Does the child play with his own age group in his neighborhood and at school? Is there something about child's relationships with his brothers and sisters? With his parents? What family or school activities does the child particularly enjoy? Is he cooperative in planning for school and family fun? Does he show respect and good manners at home? At school? Does child control talking?

Concerning health: Does the child have any physical problems which might affect his school work, such as poor eyesight, color blindness, hearing difficulty, allergies, poor coordination, speech problems, nervousness, tenseness? Does the child have at least ten hours of sleep? Does the child have a good breakfast? Does the child take pride in personal cleanliness?

THE FUNDAMENTAL purpose of any conference between parent and teacher is to provide an opportunity for an exchange of ideas. These specific purposes for which the parent-teacher conference is used are: Getting acquainted; Reporting on a child's program and progress; Clarification of possible reasons for maladjustment of a child.

At the conclusion of each parent-teacher conference, a list of suggestions for helping the child both at school and at home may be agreed upon by the two adults who hold his interests at heart. The elementary school teachers are looking forward to the time when parent-teacher conferences may be regularly scheduled twice a year.

Youngsters in our seventh grade had quite a treat the other day. They've been studying the North American continent and had in their Central American which Greg Shadko returned home with seeds of native dolls. . . . Just one kind of doll, but doll made by the natives and dress in authentic hand-loomed garments typical of the country. . . . So, with some urging, she spoke to a group, telling them of her recent travels there, and about the dolls which were really replicas of the five ways of life. . . . Quite a treat. . . . And certainly a good way to make these kids remember about—Mexico and Guatemala where the dolls came from. . . .

Happened to be passing the 11 shop the other day and saw a lot of the loveliest flowers. . . . I think it was the unusual color that caught my eye more than anything and I stopped to admire them. . . . And got quite a bit when Polly VerWys, seamstress extraordinaire, told me that these were her "creation" and were made from all sorts of sewing materials like colored scraps of material, pompons and similar things. . . .

BUT NOW THAT the real kids are here one doesn't have to need for this type of bouquet. . . . yards everywhere are a riot of color. . . . daffodils, tulips, in all shades, splashes of forsythia, the deep coral and bright pink of the other bushes. . . . and soon the white and purple of the lilacs. . . . 'tis spring. . . . with the leaves well on their way. . . .

And spring in Northern Michigan means one thing. . . . more mushrooms to you. . . . and I understand there's seeds of 'em. . . . A few people I know have stakes in certain places that yield bushels of the moist, dark fungi of goodness. . . . don't know how they do it for I couldn't see or on a bet. . . . But people like the Bourgoines are real good about sharing. . . . Mary Jo came in with a bucket of 'em and we'd they ever good. . . .

Some time back I mentioned in this column a letter I'd had from a former resident, Guy Eccleston of Indianapolis, regarding the name of He Aux Galets. . . . A letter from another former resident now living in Aurora, Ill., brings the answer to this question: I thought someone would have answered you by now, especially some of those Irish sailors who spend the winter jailing ashore. . . . Skillingie He aux Galets. . . . Islets of Pelee. . . . If you have ever seen it from the lake side, that is just what it looks like: small groups of little islands, made up of rocks, no pebbles by any means, but a haze and to shipping. . . . So there you have an answer. . . . and if it isn't correct, let me hear from you. . . .

Have you ever taken a good look at a chart of the Straits region? You should some time, for it's quite amazing. . . . the formation of reefs, shoals, islands, and what have you that form one of the most hazardous of all areas in the Great Lakes. The huge glacier that slid over this area centuries ago must have dropped some of the huge rocks from its underside as it went west to have created such a formation. . . . That's how come the Coast Guard has so many aids to navigation, lighthouses and buoys of every description in this area. One marvels that there weren't more ship wrecks than were recorded when one considers the countless sailing vessels that sailed through the Straits and down the shipping lanes on both sides of the Beaver Island archipelago. . . .

SPEAKING OF SHIP wrecks, this low water level has brought up one of the derelicts of long ago. . . . Jim Sawtelle, a former resident, now of Leelanau, has been dismantling it for the old lumber. . . . Checking it out, I'm told that it's the old Sawyer which was from 150 to 200 feet in length and which has been aground at least 50 years. . . . The water, wind and weather have taken their toll so it's hard to tell too much about it. . . .

This is an S.O.S. . . . If you're having company. . . . If you're going on a trip, if there's a wedding in the family, a shower, an anniversary party, a youngster graduating from college, won't you give me a buzz so it can be shared with Courier readers. . . . I'd appreciate it a lot.

MICHIGAN... Great in Resources and Opportunities

Michigan Week Thoughts . . .

IF IS MICHIGAN Week and newspaper editors are expected to write an editorial extolling the state's wonders. If they don't feel up to writing one, the Greater Michigan Foundation has handed out a whole packet of them you can use.

And though a north country editor is just naturally expected to be lazy in the spring—with fishing season getting well under way—there are a few personal thoughts about Michigan that might be worth passing along.

TO US MICHIGAN IS an impossible blend of the dynamic and dramatic. Our travels to the nation's, and some of the world's major cities leave us convinced no where else is the dynamic atmosphere of Detroit equalled. Here are men gasping with bold new ideas. But this almost might be commonplace, except that in Detroit there are men with the money and daring to develop their ideas.

And just a few miles from Detroit is some of the most soothing natural beauty in the world. The Great Lakes send your imagination spinning. Inland lakes thrill you with their charm and the expectation of big bass and pike. Rivers running through quiet, second growth pine forests put your mind at rest and restore your spiritual strength. And, wonder upon wonder, there is enough of the outdoors for everyone.

People from other states may tell you they have this, plus more. It will do you no good to argue with them. But don't believe them.

WE HAVE CLIMBED the highest of their mountains hiked their arctic barrens, fished the wildest rivers on the continent, cursed our way through their swamps. . . . and always looked forward in the day when we would again ramble along a Northern Michigan beach or cast a trout fly in the AuSable, all only a few hours drive from the most exciting city in the land.

Michigan people think big. They are bold and daring. And they are gentle and confident. Maybe it's the vast forests and endless miles of Great Lakes horizon that makes us this way.

How Can We Ask: Do Miracles Happen?

By REV. H. E. KOHN

May declares "Miracles do happen!"

A May day is beyond man's explanation. Almost anyone can account, in a rough way, for the arrival of spring by citing certain known "laws" of nature and by showing how more warmth is brought to our hemisphere as this area of the world turns toward the sun. But such an interpretation of spring's coming in no way diminishes our wonder as we watch May merrily frolic toward June. A whiff of a dew-laden meadow or a fragrance of apple blossoms drifting on morning breezes, the sight of a shy nodding trillium hiding on the forest floor, transcends every written explanation. Uncommonly beautiful things appear in this extraordinary month, things that are signs that point upward, reminding us that the Creator is still creating, prompting us to remember how dependent is earth on Heaven.

MAN HAS NOT brought May to the earth. May days came before man named the month and before man was here. Man can neither halt nor hurry May's coming. Maybe this is one reason this month seems so wondrously good: it wholesomely reminds man of his limitations and of the Power that works beyond man's limitations and of the Power that works beyond man's limitations. In a world where we are unduly impressed by our inventiveness, technology and gadgetry, in May we are peculiarly aware that all the turbines, dynamos and industrial plants in the world cannot develop one-quarter horsepower of capacity for causing a yellow lady slipper to blossom or compelling a forest fern to unfold. Man can do little to hasten, slow or stop the throbbing pulse of nature, as it beats out the seasons. In a thousand other ways we influence nature, tearing up turf and causing erosion, massaging forests and creating floods, moving mountains with bulldozers and dulling the scenery, until we feel well-nigh almighty. But no man, or combination of men, ever made a May day.

The Biblical meaning of miracle was not the meaning most common today, which is some event that is a contravention of nature. In the Biblical view a miracle was any wonder that was a sign of God's working among His children. A miracle was a revelation, not just any wonder but a luminous wonder that shed light into man's dark ignorance of God and God's ways. Like a May day a miracle pointed upward and reminded man of things above him. Miracles of healing of body and mind demonstrated that man was not alone with his ailments and afflictions. God cared and God could manifest His care, sometimes by performing surprising wonders of healing or, again by supplying wondrous capacity for endurance and cheerfulness under the burden of infirmity. Either way, men knew that only God's help could offer any plausible explanation of the mystery of restored health or a reinforced spirit.

The Gospel of John tells of a Pharisee named Nicodemus who came to Jesus one night and exclaimed, "We know that thou art a teacher come from God; for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him." The revised Standard Version of the verse uses the word "signs" where the King James Version says "miracles." The word "signs" clarifies "miracles," for in the Bible a miracle is more than an event that seems to break through the natural order, or passes understanding and is bewilderingly wondrous. Rather, like a wayside sign, a miracle calls attention to something beside itself, as a sign saying "Riverside, 63 miles" is not meant to advertise itself, but the distance to Riverside, California. A sign saying "Mount Rushmore Memorial" is not intended primarily to draw attention to the marker, but to the mountain top and its vast sculpture of America's Presidents. Christ's miracles were not mainly meant to make men mindful of astonishing healings and exorcisms, but rather to signal the good news that God cares for his children, and he watches over them with loving care all along. The extraordinary, miracalous event is the unusual sign that points to the usual, the astonishing reminder of the love that is always there but which we so easily forget.

THE MIRACLE OF Christ's life is a sign signifying God is in our midst, among us, the Word made flesh. God always loved us enough to dwell among us and always will. Christ's miraculous life was God's remarkable, singular way of pointing this out to us clearly and once for all.

Nicodemus cited another attribute of miracle when he said, "No man can do these miracles that thou doest except God be with him." A miracle, then, in the Biblical sense declares this truth: that which is beyond human power to accomplish unaided can still be achieved through the help of God. "Except God be with him" is a key phrase; miracle points to the assistance of God.

It reminds us that man's unaided efforts are inadequate to handle the world, to do what must be done, to answer his own deepest needs for healing of body, mind and spirit, for comfort, forgiveness, renewal. We need reinforcement by a Power beyond our limitations. No one ever heals himself by will power. Everyone relies upon forces beyond effort alone. Even the physician does; he gives medicine or performs surgery; then he waits. Nature (man's weak word for God) must do the rest.

No farmer grows crops by sheer strenuousness. Hammering a seed or squeezing it in a vise will not make it grow. Every farmer must sow and then step back and count upon God and His beneficent forces of sunlight, rain and fertile soil. When looked upon religiously, every growing thing, like every healed body, is a miracle—a sign of the wonders God constantly performs beyond man's strength to achieve. All healing and growing are extraordinary, because they could not occur in an ordinary, mechanistic natural order, void of God. God's help is there.

THE WORKS OF THE masters of the fine arts are witnesses to this truth about miracle. We say that the artist Raphael, the sculptor Rodin, the composer Johann Sebastian Bach, the dramatist Shakespeare were "gifted." Gifted how? In what way? There can be no gifts with a Giver. The great masterpieces are miracles in the Biblical sense, for they represent a Power that is beyond what human exertion can create. If effort alone could produce enduring works of art, every art school, school of music and writing class would be pouring out a deluge of masterpieces, for the schools are full of pupils who try hard enough. But the world's best artists are not known for strenuousness but for gifts. "No one can do these miracles... except God be with him."

The miraculous life is one that sees the signs that God is ever present, and lets such a God-consciousness control every aspect of one's existence.

DEAR DISTRUGHT: Apparently your neighbors like the "Free baby-sitting". Send the kids home, if they won't mind. Then tactfully explain to their mama... if your appliances are that bad, better visit PUFF'S APPLIANCE CENTER. Their law prices on quality appliances will save you plenty.—DICK.

Rayder Athletes Lauded At Annual Sports Fete

By FRAN MARTIN

Success on the gridiron, basketball court and cinder track is not handed to you—it represents hard work, good training, good coaching, community to provide certain equipment and place in which to develop these things and potential athletes who are prepared to utilize these things, Keith Evans, former East Jordan athlete, who now is a coach at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City, told the Charlevoix high school athletes, coaches, parents and others at the annual All-Sports banquet held at the Weatherlane Inn Tuesday night.

Sponsored by the Sideliners Club, the event attracted more than 100 persons who gathered to honor the Rayders who have brought three Northern Michigan Class C titles to the school this year as well as other honors.

THE BASIC ingredient in any athletic program is the athlete himself, Coach Evans said. He said that a boy who wants to be coach, is willing to take orders and make sacrifices, give his best at all times whether in practice or in a game, be a good sport, set a good example for others to follow, accept responsibility and have a desire to win 100 percent of the time, is bound to become a good athlete.

As he developed his inspiring talk, he enlarged upon each of his subjects, warning the young athletes never to play for personal recognition alone, to always remember that they are always looked upon as representatives of the school and community and therefore should conduct themselves as gentlemen at all times; that they must always practice self-discipline; learn to develop both their physical and scholastic abilities; accept responsibility; to keep athletics in their proper perspective and to appreciate sacrifices parents and the community make to provide them with a place and the necessary coaches and equipment to develop a fine athletic program.

He spoke briefly to the coaches commending them for their fine efforts through the years and adding that their fine coaching is reflected in Charlevoix's accomplishments.

IN CONCLUSION, he said that if the athletes would learn to live by the lessons they learned in athletics, they could be assured of a full and rewarding life.

Bill Lusk, former high school athlete and ardent sports fan, served as toastmaster at the dinner. He introduced Coach Don Carey, who in turn introduced the young Rayders, cheerleaders and student managers. Coach Del Terrill also spoke briefly, thanking the Sideliners Club for the dinner and the community for making the sports program possible. Ron Peterson and Leonard Staley, assistant coaches, Harry E. Bingham of the high school athletic council and Fred Lovelace, Petoskey News-Review reporter, were introduced. Leonard Burns, also of the coaching staff, was unable to attend. Members of the Sideliners Club, Dan Genett, A. D. "Hap" Cunningham, Jack Warner and Joe Williams were also introduced.

Thomas Maxwell Sr., gave the invocation.

The program concluded with the singing of the high school song "Red and White Forever."

The three league trophies and the Oscoda Relays trophy placed among red and white spring flowers, decorated the speakers' table.

Coast Guard Back on Top

The U.S. Coast Guard pistol team is back in the lead in the series of matches between them and the local pistol team.

In recent competition, the service squad posted a total of 1047 points with Lt. Charles A. Millard posting 283; John Sutka, 262; Chief Edwin Pyrzynski, 253 and Don Kirkham, 249. David Radatz, a fifth participant, had 185.

BERNIE WARD paced the local team with a 282 followed by Frank Zednick with 276, Bernie Schaner with a 237 and Herb Boss with 234. Others and their scores include Ken Boss, 230; Harold Lang, 222; Lester Brown, 216 and Dick Smith, 191.

A team from the Cutter Sundew, shooting with the group for the first time in recent months, posted a total score of 889 with Dick Gallant posting a 252; Bill Pelkner, 210; Don Gray, 224 and Ernie Andalis, 183.

Here's Where to Fish

By DON PETERSON
Conservation Dept.
Fisheries Biologist

No one can accurately predict where, when and on what fish will bite.

But the fish division does know where the fish are. Constant observation and testing of lakes and streams in the area gives fisheries biologists accurate knowledge of fish populations.

CATCHING THEM is another matter. This is up to the fisherman. One basic fact stands out about successful fishermen: They fish every chance they get.

What are the prospects for trout fishermen in this area?

ANTRIM COUNTY
ELK LAKE: This 7,000 acre lake located in Kalkaska and Antrim Counties furnishes good fishing for rainbow and lake trout. Fishermen can be expected to pick up a few large rainbows. Access limited—best fishing by boat.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY
Lake Louis (Thimble): This lake offers excellent fishing for rainbow trout. Normally this lake produces a fair number of 3 to 5 pound rainbows every year. Limited amount if shore fishing—best fishing by boat.

Jordan River: This is an excellent brook and brown trout stream. Brook trout are found primarily above Penny Bridge with the remainder of stream producing mostly brown and rainbow trout. Most of this stream can be best fished by boat except upper area above Penny Bridge.

Walloon Lake: This large lake near Petoskey is planted annually with 10,000 rainbow trout. The lake has produced some excellent fishing for the past two years. Fishermen should take a goodly number of 3 pound rainbows from the lake this year. Best fishing by boat—access limited.

Eoyne River: This stream is primarily a brook trout stream with an occasional rainbow and brown being taken. Upper reaches should furnish some good brook trout fishing. Stream can be waded.

Bear River: Good brown trout stream. This stream is stocked each year with brown trout and should offer some large trout to the good brown trout fisherman. Stream needs to be fished by boat.

EMMET COUNTY
West Branch Maple River: This is primarily a brook trout stream. There is ample access to stream in vicinity of Pellston. This stream furnishes some excellent brook trout fishing. Stream can be waded.

East Branch and Main Maple River: Furnish some fair fishing for rainbow and brown trout. Rainbow trout are stocked in these two streams each year.

CHEBOYGAN COUNTY
Burt Lake: This large lake is stocked with 19,000 rainbow trout each year. Fishing done mostly by boat—there is some wading fishing at the mouth of the Sturgeon River. Good catches of 2 to 3 pound trout taken each year.

Silver Lake: This small lake near Wolverine is planted with 3,000 rainbows annually. Can be fished from shore or by boat. The lake produces good catches of 12 to 16" rainbow each year.

Sturgeon River: This is an excellent stream providing good catches of brown and rainbow trout early in the season. A fairly good number of 3 to 5 pound rainbows are taken every year. Good brown trout fishing is available on this stream above Wolverine.

West Branch Sturgeon River: This is an excellent trout stream. The upper reaches of the stream is primarily brook trout while the lower reaches contain all three species of trout. This stream can be waded with waders with the exception of a few deep pools. The upper end of the stream has few access points and should furnish good fishing for those anglers who want to get away from the crowd.

MONTMORENCY COUNTY
Long Lake: This is a combination lake which offers excellent fishing for rainbow trout. Quite a large number of good size trout are taken from this lake every year. This lake can be fished by boat only. Very limited amount of shore fishing available.

Hunt Creek: This stream furnishes good fishing for brook trout on Hunt Creek Experimental area. Permits are needed for fishing on the area. The lower end of this stream should provide good fishing for brown trout. However access is limited in this area. Stream can be waded.

OTSEGO COUNTY
Pickering Lake: This small lake provides excellent fishing for rainbow trout. Limited amount of shore fishing but can be waded to reach deep water.

Black River: This is an excellent brook trout stream. Good catches of trout can be expected if weather is good. This stream can be waded except for deep pools. Access limited which provides long stretches of stream for anglers who want to get away from crowd.

Pigeon River: This stream is a fair trout stream which provides fair fishing for brook and brown trout. Good access to stream particularly in Pigeon River Research area. Permits are needed to fish the area. Good brook trout fishing can be found on lakes in the experimental area.

PRESQUE ISLE COUNTY
Essau Lake: This lake planted with 5,000 rainbows annually. The HARRY Boyd, Lakewood, Ohio, a guest at War-Mar Cabins here caught this 18-inch brown trout in the Sturgeon River, a short drive from Charlevoix. Boyd said it was his first time trout fishing. An ardent bass fisherman, he caught the big trout on a worm.

lake provides excellent trout fishing and can be fished from shore or by boat. Access limited.

State Deaths Top 70,000

LANSING—Michigan deaths topped the 70,000 mark in 1963 for the second time in history, according to the Michigan Dept. of Health.

A total of 71,961 deaths from all causes were recorded with the health department in 1963, an increase of 1,912 over 1962.

THERE WERE no changes in the positions of the seven leading causes of death, with disease of the heart, cancer, strokes, accidents, pneumonia and influenza, diabetes, and arteriosclerosis all recording slight increases ranging from 144 to 362.

However, immaturity, which ranked ninth last year, with 903 deaths, dropped out of the top ten for the first time in many years as only 810 infants died as a result of premature birth. This is a reflection of a decreased number of births and is the lowest number since 1905 when the then incomplete reporting procedures and record keeping deaths listed 751 deaths due to immaturity.

Suicides, numbering 829, occupied the tenth position, marking the first time that death due to suicide has been listed among the 10 leading causes of death in Michigan.

OUTDOOR RAMBLING

THE LAKE MICHIGAN beach south of Charlevoix looks like hell!

That may be a tasteless way of putting it, and you may not like it put that way.

But I'm not in the least bit interested in whether you like it. I like the tons of beer bottles, cans, rags, clothes, food containers and other crud you've coated the beach with even less.

No not tons. Hundreds of tons. For a fact, the devil must keep his domain a good deal cleaned, so maybe he has an apology coming.

Why must man corrupt his most beautiful gifts with filth? Why? Why? Why?

There is no answer. There is no excuse.

Millions of polite words have been written urging reform from our litter pigs. They've done no good.

If you doubt this for a minute, take a walk along the beach. A very short one will do. You'll have a hard time finding a spot where beer cans and bottles and other human droppings don't pollute the view.

You may say you're not responsible. Maybe so. But until you do something to stop it don't beg to be excused.

And the Lake Michigan beach is no exception. It's just more sacrilegious to spread your litter along it.

Some people condemn a man for using profanity. But it seems more sinful to mar God's creation. Maybe the Rod and Gun Club, or some organization, ought to ask everyone in town to volunteer some Sunday morning to turn out for a massive cleanup of the beaches. Such a thing could be organized. It might be the only way we can do penance.

Random Rambling

IF YOU'RE PLANNING a camping vacation this year you'll do well to pick up a copy of the Michigan Campground Guide. It's the best effort yet to list Michigan's hundreds of camp and trailer sites.

Michigan's thousands of campsites, from luxurious to desolate, are listed by county. If there's any criticism it's on the lack of information about each site. If

SPRING BLEMISH—The many wonders of Spring in Charlevoix are sometimes offset by man's ugliness in mistreating that which is most beautiful. Our Day of course it is, but it brings with it a staggering challenge...the individual responsibility of helping save civilization. The terrible "dark days" following the fall of the Roman Empire would be termed "good days" compared to the period of destruction that would follow the loosing of our hydrogen weapons. We must face it. In a manner we must be our own saviour. Then let us kids not quibble. We must cheerfully accept the task. If we keep our eyes fixed on God and our ears tuned-in to His direction center, we can be the deterring force He needs to save the world from destruction. For He said, "Him that lacketh wisdom, let him ask of God." The varied programs of the church offer opportunity to gain this wisdom and understanding of God and His plan of salvation for the world. You have a part to play. Get inside His field of service...attend church regularly. For, "The wise in heart will receive Commandments."

Offer Haven in Boating Crisis

Charlevoix's claim to the finest pleasure boating harbor on the Great Lakes won't be disputed this summer.

Mounting evidence of low water hardship at other harbors, and dramatic pre-season business increases here, leaves observers convinced Charlevoix will be the pleasure boat mecca of the inland seas.

MARINA operators here all agree their operations will not be hampered by low water that is causing a crisis around the lakes.

Newspapers at metropolitan Great Lakes cities report the record low water has literally eliminated facilities for thousands of boatmen.

But not in Charlevoix. Round Lake marinas have been forced to do some minor dredging, but, with it done, their slips are ready for the deepest draft boats. The city owned piers are also standing in plenty of water.

SOME boatmen, Lynn Porter of Brow Marina, reports, may find they are minor inconveniences because docks are higher than their decks.

Bob Hamilton of Hamilton's & Son Boatyard, says marina slips and the city's have plenty of water, in spite of the low water, due to the unique natural advantages Round Lake provides.

Phil Lawrence of Fairport of Charlevoix, says he has already done more electronics work this spring than he did all last summer.

Lawrence, and David Patrie, of Fairport, specialize in boat electronics equipment, installation and repair. The marina also offers berths and supplies.

OTHER Marinas report their business barometers.

Question Sports Budget

A debate that is as traditional as June brides — slash the sports budget — reared up at Monday evening's Board of Education meeting.

Board Vice President Albert Smith launched the issue when he asked why football practice has to begin before school opens. Smith was acting president in the absence of Darrell Dinwiddie.

HIGH SCHOOL Principal Harry Bingham told Smith the first football game is Sept. 18 with Rogers City, and the boys have to have time to get in shape before it.

"Why schedule these non-conference games?" Smith asked. "Why

Cut $53,000 Deficit With Added Millage

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two articles, written by Charlevoix Public School Administrators, that the Courier is printing so educators can explain their side of the June 3 millage election.

By REX MILLIGAN
Supt. of Schools

The legislature of the State of Michigan, feeling that all citizens should have an understanding of school financing, passed legislation requiring that school districts have a public hearing on the budget.

The Charlevoix Public School District is holding its hearing on Thursday evening, June 3, at 8 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

A school budget is based on what the community wants in education for its boys and girls.

THE BOARD OF Education requested the aid of an advisory committee. This committee was composed of the following citizens: Russell L. Curtis, Director of Charlevoix County Assessment; Equalization Department; Carlton Smith, farmer; Phyllis Gill, housewife; James Elzer, owner of the Charlevoix Lumber Company; Alvin Bevan, Public Relations Director of Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant (replaced by Thomas Bassett, Big Rock Point Nuclear Reactor Engineer); Leona Bartlett, housewife; Ted Brown, owner of Brewe Electric Sales and Service; and David Davoport, Secretary-Manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

Sixty-seven young Charlevoix men and women break their final bond with childhood at 8 p.m. Wednesday, June 3.

They can be expected to feel quitters as they reach for diplomas doubtful of what is ahead.

majority are not letting the future frighten them. Charlevoix High School principal Harry Bingham reports 72 percent of the graduates are on record as having definite plans to continue their education next fall, in colleges or advanced training schools.

Commencement exercises for the 67 graduates start in the high school gym at 8 p.m. with the band playing "Pomp and Circumstance."

Baccalaureate services will be Sunday, May 31, at 8 p.m. in the high school gym. Four Charlevoix clergymen will participate.

Dr. Walter F. Johnson, director of graduate student affairs at Michigan State University, will be the commencement speaker.

BOTH COMMENCEMENT and baccalaureate are open to the public, Bingham announced.

Dr. Johnson's topic is "Suddenly It's Tomorrow." He will be introduced by Supt. Rex Milligan.

Best known for his work in guidance and counseling, Dr. Johnson has his BA, MA and PhD. from the University of Minnesota. He is one of six recent winners of the Distinguished Faculty Award, the highest honor obtainable by a Michigan State University faculty member. During 1963, Dr. Johnson's travels took him to Mexico, Central America, England, Germany and Nigeria.

Nancy Fleming, former Miss America, is married to Dr. Johnson's oldest son, Bill.

THIS YEAR'S graduating class of 67 is smaller than several previous classes, Bingham reports, next year's class should number between 85 and 90 students, making it the biggest in history.

The biggest, most carefully planned Memorial Day parade ever, is on tap Saturday, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars leaders report.

Rambling

IF ELLSWORTH people are half as enthusiastic about their town's history as Charlevoixians are about theirs, Mrs. John Timmer should be the most popular person in the little village with the spectacular natural setting.

Mrs. Timmer, until a year ago, carried on her late husband's tradition as Ellsworth correspondent for downstate papers. Mr. Timmer started reporting Ellsworth events in 1931.

A year or so ago, Mrs. Timmer decided she had been at it long enough. But she has seen to it that none of Ellsworth's contemporary history disappears. She has complete scrapbooks of all newspaper clippings pertaining to the community since her husband started writing.

P. O. Closed

The Charlevoix Post Office will be closed all day Saturday for Memorial Day. Postmaster Peter Timmer reports.

Special deliveries will be made, and postal boxes will get their mail. Timmer also said mail going out of town will be posted and sent.

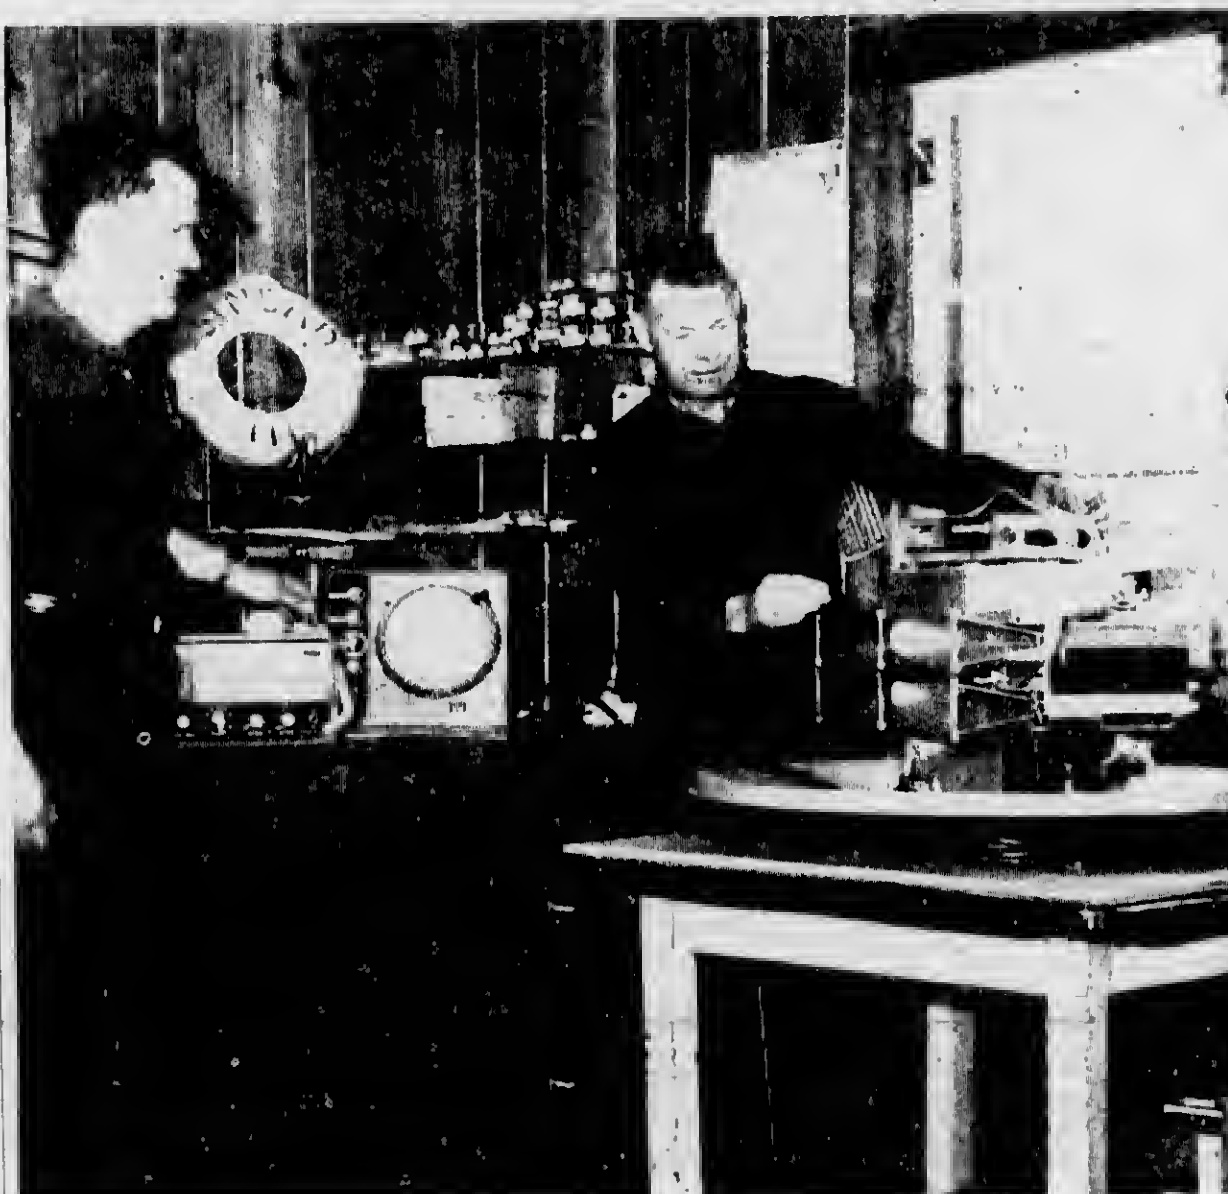

WHAT YOU'LL FIND INSIDE

PICTURES OF ALL Charlevoix High School 1964 graduates and Ellsworth Community High School graduates are found inside this week's Courier, pages 10, 11 and 8.

BOATS BY TRUCKLOAD—New boats have been arriving at Charlevoix marinas by the truckload. Here the last of four new outboard boats that arrived on this truck Friday is unloaded at Bellinger Marine. On the same day a new luxury cruiser was scheduled to arrive at Elbow Marina. (Courier Photos)

RADAR FOR BOAT—David Patrie, left, and Phil Lawrence check a radar unit before installing it on a boat at their Fairport Charlevoix marina. Lawrence reports they have already sold more boat electronics equipment this year than they did all last year.

PLENTY OF WATER—Bob Hamilton is dwarfed by this 50 foot ketch, for which there is plenty of water at his docks. The ketch, owned by John Rockwood of Chicago, draws seven feet of water.

Rayders 5th in State

The Charlevoix Rayders finished out their track and field season at Mt. Pleasant Saturday by placing fifth with Ann Arbor St. Thomas and Baldwin in the State Class C meet.

The Rayders had 12 points won by Gary Stutzman and Larry McBride.

STUTZMAN PLACED second in the high hurdles with a time of 15.45 to set a new school record. The winning time was 15.4.

McBride's 12 ft. 4 in. distance in the pole vault was second to the new state Class C record of 12 ft. 9 in. set by Roland Carter of Carson City who captured his team's 21 points by himself.

Battle Creek St. Philip won the title with 42 points and Detroit St. Theresa came in second with 22 points. New Haven was fourth with 12 points.

A shot put record of 31 ft. 7 1/2 in. set by Charlevoix's Bob Currey in 1948 was shattered by Louis Fournier of Cheboygan Catholic.

★ Parade

speech by a high school student and remarks by a member of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

The parade will disband after the cemetery program.

ALL GOLD STAR Mothers, or veterans unable to make the walk, should contact a Legion or VFW member to arrange for a ride in the parade formation.

Parrell and Russell urged the spectators to get out of their automobiles and stand erect when the flag passes. Men should take off their hats.

They also asked that children who want to ride bicycles in the parade stay in formation and not weave in and out.

The term "fine arts" is used for those arts, such as sculpture, painting and music, which are intended primarily to affect the emotions and to give an exalted kind of pleasure as distinguished from the "useful arts" which serve the physical needs.

★ Debate Sports Costs

and just stay in our own league (Michigan Michigan Class C League)?

"I can't see any reason for it myself," Smith said. "This is one place where we can save money on sports."

"We've got to cut somewhere, and that's a place where people can see it."

SUPT. REX MILLIGAN said "people don't realize sports only cost the taxpayer $1,700 to $1,800 a year." This, he said, is all for extra coaching salaries.

The coaches, Milligan added, all have full day teaching duties. Coaching is an extra job for them that is done after school, and, in the case of football, before school opens in September.

The rest of the sports budget, the superintendent explained, pays for itself through gate receipts and fees paid by athletes.

Bingham said many people "would be quite perturbed" if fewer football games were scheduled.

"THEY'RE QUITE perturbed when we go to raise millage," too," Smith said.

Burr Blanchard, board secretary said the state requires that athletes have at least three weeks of practice before the first grid contest to get them in good physical condition to avoid injury.

By not scheduling nonconference games, Smith said, the board could save money without eliminating the program.

"We've got people here working with kids and there's a dollar sign on all of it," Joe Martineck, a board trustee, said. "I worked in 4-H for years and didn't even get gas money... and so have others on the board," Martineck said.

MILLIGAN SAID coaching and other school duties are part of the teachers' jobs. "We have teachers who do volunteer work with Scouts, 4-H and other youth activities," Milligan said.

The issue was dropped with no attempt to take official action.

★ Boating

also, indicate the busiest summer in history.

Early season new-boat orders and requests for summer berths are topping all previous years, marina owners say.

Boaters are also taking to the water ahead of their usual June or July dates. Ed Vieau, operator, reports the bridge has been opened 113 times this month (as of Friday) for boats. Many of these are not pleasure boats but far more than expected are.

People who cannot find berths at their usual summer places due to the low water are already trying to get $5.00 at Charlevoix, the marina operators report.

★ School Millage Vote

This committee had several meetings; they studied last year's financial audit, the budget for 1963-64, teachers' salaries and salary trends, teacher load, our present course of study, and helped to determine the budget for 1964-65.

In the study it was noted that Charlevoix needs to strengthen its program in the areas of Art, Physical Education, and Vocal Music. Last year's audit showed a deficit of $53,000.00.

Following this study, the committee recommended that the school eliminate its deficit over a three-year period and strive to continue and to improve our present program.

TO ACCOMPLISH this goal, the committee recommended that the school request the citizens to vote two and one half mills (2 1/2 mills) for three years. This would increase the present tax rate for our schools by 3/4 of a mill, as the 1 1/2 mills voted last year expired, and the amount levied for payment on the new high school was reduced 1/4 of a mill.

The budget as prepared would increase the total expenditures in the general fund, from $402,780.00 to $450,108.00. Of this increase, $20,600.00 will be used this year to decrease the financial deficit.

Your vote can eliminate the financial deficit and continue to provide a good education for our boys and girls.

Outlook Good for Bass

Fishing takes on a fast-paced addition June 1 with the start of the black bass season in inland waters, the Great Lakes and the St. Mary's river.

Elsewhere in Lake St. Clair, the St. Clair and Detroit rivers large-mouth and small-mouth bass become legal catches June 20 to put angling action into full swing throughout the state. As in the past, the season makes a later debut in the southeastern area to keep it closely in line with Canada's bass opener for these same waters.

LAST YEAR'S regulations on bass fishing remain in effect for all Michigan waters, the Conservation Department reports. The minimum size limit stands at 10 inches. Sportsmen have five bass in their daily take or possession.

Come the first part of the season, fishermen can make their best play for largemouths by casting and spinning with artificial lures in three to 10 feet of water. The carpenter fish are mostly found in fly pad or bullrush areas and around stumps, submerged logs, and other such types of cover.

Action on smallmouth bass hits its peak right after the season begins, while they are still spawning in shallow water or lakes, near mouths of rivers, and in bays of the Great Lakes.

AT THIS EARLY time, anglers get top results with smallmouths by using small to medium-sized jugs, spoons, poppers, bugs, and streamers into the shallows. The most productive places for catching these fish are rock, stone, or gravel-bottomed areas in cold water.

For more tips about this and other types of fishing, write the Conservation Department's Publications Room in Lansing or stop at one of its field offices for a free copy of "Michigan Fish and How to Catch Them."

Dems Outline Party Strategy

Charlevoix County Democrats held their convention at the County Building here to elect delegates to the Democratic State Convention June 13 in Grand Rapids.

Named to represent the county were George A. LaBlance, county chairman, Mrs. Ted Tunison, Mrs. Clyde Warner, Gerald Left and Stephen LaBlance of Charlevoix and Irwin (Shorty) Smith, Peter Johnson, Carl Skornia and Mrs. Gary Newville of Boyne City.

LA BLANCE ANNOUNCED he wants to be a delegate to the Democratic National Convention later in the summer and asked for the support of the county delegates to the state convention.

Three candidates to the county convention announced they would be candidates in the forthcoming primary election. They are Smith, a Boyne City teacher, who will seek the nomination for the post of representative for the district in which Charlevoix County will be a part; James Keltz of Boyne City who will seek the nomination for county clerk and Merle Karlshu also of Boyne City who will be a candidate for nomination as sheriff.

bridge; Mrs. James Gallagher, surveying the remaining portions of the city, and Mrs. Milton Richardson, surveying rural portions south of the city.

THE CENSUS TAKERS will call on each family to determine how many children they have, their age, and whether they have any handicaps.

The results of the census gives the school information on which to project its future needs.

Mackie Sees Tourist Boom

State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie predicted recently that Michigan will have a banner tourist season this year.

Michigan, speaking at Michigan Week Hospitality Day ceremonies observing the start of construction of a new Tourist Information Center on I-75 near Monroe, said, "MICHIGAN'S TOURIST industry will be a major beneficiary of the nation's unparalleled economic health."

"The recent income tax cut will mean that people will have more money to spend on vacations this summer."

"This comes at a good time because people in other states now know about our fine highway system and the ease of traveling to our many tourist attractions."

"Improvements in our tourist facilities, increased promotion of them, and our nearly 1,200 miles of freeways will give us a banner tourist year."

MACKIE SAID the number of inquiries received by the Michigan Tourist Council was up nearly 25 percent during the first four months of this year compared to last year.

"Support by the State Legislature of our tourist information program resulting in the opening of new centers will mean that Michigan will be in a better position than ever to welcome these tourists."

"With good breaks in the weather, I'm certain that Michigan's tourist industry may well have its first billion-dollar year," Mackie said.

ORANGE CAKE

Mrs. George Hallam of Charlevoix wishes to share her recipe for Orange Cake—and it is delicious. Try it!

Take one large orange or two small ones, squeeze out the juice, add 4 tablespoons of sugar to the juice and set this aside for the top of the cake.

Grind the orange skin with 1 cup raisins. Pour hot water over the raisins and drain, before grinding them. Make a batter of 1/2 cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs and 3/4 cup sour milk. 1 level teaspoon of Soda, 2 cups flour and a pinch of salt. Mix all of the above for batter mixture and stir in the raisins and orange peel last. Bake slow, about 1 hour in 350 deg. oven. When done pour the juice and sugar mixture over the top of the cake while hot. Use a 9 by 13 pan.

School Survey Reveals

900 Students in Area Need Special Teaching

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This article by Intermediate School District Supt. Charles A. Robinson, is the first of two explaining to voters the issues and advantages of a special education program, as seen by educators.)

By Charles Robinson

School electors in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District voting at their annual school election June 8 will be asked to support a proposal to establish a special education district as provided in sections 307a to 324a of the school code for the purpose of establishing programs for handicapped children.

These exceptional children represent the last segment of our school age population to be given their rightful consideration in the development of the public school program.

UNDER THE proposal, educational programs and services will be provided for children who have speech problems, for the mentally handicapped, both the educable and trainable, the physically handicapped and those having special health problems, the emotionally disturbed, the hospital and home-bound, the deaf or hard of hearing and the blind or partially sighted. The Michigan legislature has encouraged the development of special education programs by providing state-aid reimbursements for approved programs at approximately 75 percent of their total costs.

The establishment of a special education district on the intermediate district level is the method provided for in the statutes. This plan was enacted by the Legislature because relatively few individual school districts (almost none in out state Michigan) are large enough in school membership to have enough children needing special education programs to qualify for state aid.

THE INCIDENCE OF speech defects can be estimated at from 3 1/2 to 5 percent. Using the percentages it can be estimated that approximately 1,100 of the 8,993 students in public and parochial schools membership in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District could benefit from one or more specialized programs. A recent survey made through the district's classroom teachers suggested the conservative total of approximately 900 exceptional children among our present total school membership.

The Intermediate District includes the following local public and parochial school districts: In Antrim County: Elkworth Community School District; in Charlevoix County: Boyne City Public Schools, Boyne Falls Public School, Charlevoix Public Schools, East Jordan Public School, Melrose School, Beaver Island Community School, Hayes Township School District No. 1 and Eveline Township School District No. 4, Charlevoix St. Mary's School.

Ellsworth Lions Club Aids Blind

ELLSWORTH — A blind man from Indiana has received new eyes, thanks to the Ellsworth Lions Club.

Lions Club president George French reports a leader dog, donated through the club by Bob Hilton of Rte. 2, Charlevoix, has passed the required training.

THE LEADER DOG. Ginger, was trained by Leader Dogs for the Blind School, Rochester, Mich. Ginger entered the school last winter. After three months of intense training, she was given her diploma as a leader dog.

The Leader Dog School then offered Ginger to Eugene G. Hinton, a blind man from Indiana. After another month of training together, Ginger became Hinton's eyes, French reports.

French said the Ellsworth Club is always on the alert for qualified dogs local people will donate to the Leader Dog School.

SINCE THE SCHOOL was founded, nearly 2,000 dogs have been trained. German Shepherds, Labrador, Golden and Chesapeake Bay Retrievers have been graduated. Dogs must be between the ages of one and two years, at least 24 inches at the shoulders and positively friendly.

WALLOONS The Walloons are the inhabitants of Belgium who speak a dialect of French, as contrasted with the Flemings who speak a dialect of Dutch and Low German.

EYES FROM Ellsworth Eugene Hinton with Ginger, the Leader Dog donated through the Ellsworth Lions Club.

EAST JORDAN EXHIBIT — The usually drab and neglected air of loneliness that hangs over East Jordan's long-vacant Community Hall was replaced last week by a gay exhibit for Michigan Week. Entering the hall, visitors were first impressed by this colorful exhibit from the Garden Club being admired by Mrs. Myrtle Crowell and Mrs. Ethel Crowell. Other exhibits included those of the 50 year old Women's Study Club, color slides of Parker Seiler's snow figures, the American Legion and local industry. (Courier Photo) the Timmers did such an excellent job of keeping their town in line. I'd take odds no one in Ellsworth would even dream the news for three decades.

But the scrapbooks only whetted Mrs. Timmer's interest. She started digging and now has notes for a complete history of Ellsworth area back to Indian times.

It may appear that Mrs. Timmer is the natural person to compile this into a written history. And she may well be. But I can't help but suspect, after a brief visit over her coffee table, that Mrs. Timmer's friendliness and charm keep her in such demand by neighbors that she is pressed to find time to get the job done.

So, if I may make a suggestion, there must be a college student in the area looking for a subject for a paper. Why not Ellsworth's history?

Just working with Mrs. Timmer should be a stimulating experience for a young person. It might be a job talking her into it though. I did my best to hire her as the Courier's Ellsworth reporter and left a good deal wiser, but with no correspondence.

THE LONG SPUTTERING dream of many outstanding Charlevoix citizens to convert all of the Bridge St. side of Round Lake into a park can take one more step toward reality, if people act fast and generously.

I'm told the building occupied until a few weeks ago, by Puff's Appliance Center is for sale. Assuming the terms are reasonable, it would be a shame not to take advantage of the opportunity.

Whether this is a project for philanthropists or businessmen is worth probing. In some towns businessmen have banded together to form improvement corporations to purchase such property and do other things to enhance the downtown area's beauty and facilities.

AND WHILE WE'RE in the waterfront park it seems fitting to point out fish have returned to the pond by the bandshell. I guess the little sturgeon are from the fish hatchery. A few more trout would add interest, but maybe there isn't enough shade for them to get out of the sun.

We're told original plans called for closing in the park's band pavilion - a job that hasn't been completed. People, naturally, expect the city to do these things. Unfortunately, there's a limit to how much mileage the city can get from our money.

So once again the question: Is this a job for businessmen, philanthropists, the city... or (most likely), all three?

HOPE YOU'RE IN no hurry to leave the park, because before we do, Erber Auto Co. (Ford and Mercury) should be commended for the new white picket fence around its used car lot across the street.

The fence, though not directly related, adds to the park's charm, and makes the new siding on Irv Drost's tavern look even more attractive.

With Max Novak planning to put a new front on his building across the street - Staley's Hardware, the Arcade and Bergen's - summer visitors should find the view behind the park considerably improved.

CAN'T MENTION Ford cars without a word about Chevy. The Chevrolet highway billboards with the little girl in her colorful slacks curled up on the back seat with her dog, is about the cutest road sign advertising we've seen in a long time. Makes Mrs. Shep and I smile every time we see one.

Which reminds me, the smart people in promotion seem to have great faith in highway billboards... coupled, of course with newspaper advertising.

The Courier has done some checking and we find that a full size billboard costs about $750, or less, a year. The billboard companies even do the art work and maintain a staff to come up with ideas and drawings that meet your approval.

Wouldn't this be a pretty cheap way to deliver Charlevoix's message - especially about our spring and fall attractions - to millions upon millions of travelers?

IT NEEDS SAYING - County Michigan Week chairman Wally Loder did a tremendous job.

You can't help but suspect there are people in the county who figure Wally for something of a pest. He kept picking away at editors, and others to get on the ball and put together a Michigan Week program.

Wally's sold on Michigan. And more important, he figures the immediate Charlevoix area is the finest part of this grand state.

Much to his surprise, Wally found many of the people he contacted uninformed, and disinterested in their state. This came as a bit of a shock to Wally. Being an immigrant Hoosier, he just naturally thought everyone would be as enthused as he is with our wonderful state.

Firm Expects $400,000 in Building Here

A Grand Rapids developer last week announced the firm will do $400,000 worth of building in the Charlevoix area this summer.

William G. Stoner, local representative for R. D. Brooks, Custom Building of Grand Rapids, made the announcement.

STONER SAID THE firm is developing a resort community on Lake Charlevoix at Horton Bay. Called the "Charlevoix Club," it is located on the west side of Horton Bay, at the end of Van Hosen Rd.

Twenty-four of the 33 lots in the resort have already been sold, Stoner said. The Charlevoix Club's board of directors must approve all purchases and the design of all homes to be built on the lots.

A complete water system is now being installed on the club property to serve all lots, he reports. The cost of homes will range from $15,000 to $30,000.

IN ADDITION TO THE ten homes Stoner expects to have constructed at the club this summer, he foresees building ten others for permanent Charlevoix residents on their own lots.

In addition to building custom-designed new homes, Stoner said his firm will do remodeling commercial and industrial building in the area.

Stoner, his wife Mary, and two children are visiting Sheriff Glenn Brock's home at Northpoint.

He has established an office at 221 S. Lake St., Boyne City.

The Boss Fetes J. Boss

Several hundred thousands - of gallons of milk and 25 years ago, John E. Boss started working for John Maxbauer.

Monday night John Boss got one of the biggest surprises of his life. The "boss" (Maxbauer) was up from Traverse City and the sizeable Boss clan turned out to fete him on his 25th anniversary as the manager of Maxbauer Dairy in Charlevoix.

THEY GATHERED at the Westervane Inn. The party was on Maxbauer. The surprise was on John Boss.

Actually, the head of the Boss family has been selling dairy products in Charlevoix since 1929, when it was the Northern Creamery.

When Maxbauer bought the creamery 25 years ago he kept Boss on as manager.

Today Maxbauer's Charlevoix plant - under Boss - is considered one of the most modern in northern Michigan. It is the only dairy this far north in the Lower Peninsula equipped to bottle milk in plastic containers. It does the packaging for Maxbauer's Traverse City operation and is the company's main plant.

THIS GIVES Charlevoix area dairy farmers a major market for their products, as all milk, Boss explains, is purchased locally. On hand to help honor their Dad with Maxbauer at the Westervane Inn Monday were his children: Dale Boss, Dean Boss of Battle Creek, Mr. and Mrs. E. Dale Fall (Marlene Boss) and Dwight Boss. John E. Boss was born 58 years ago on a farm in Marion township. His father, Edd Boss, lives on Wright St.

Mrs. John Boss is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. K. Chow. She was born on their farm in Hayes Township.

THEY WERE married in 1939, one year after he went in the dairy business.

To Preside Over Election

The Board of Education Monday appointed officials to preside at the June 8 election and canvass the vote.

Mrs. Blanche Smith, Republican, and Mrs. M. Hilda Gibson, Democrat, were appointed to four year terms on the board of canvassers. Fran Martin, Democrat, and Florence Elliott, Republican were named to two year terms.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lungkly, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Stough have returned to their Ironton area summer homes, and Mrs. R. E. Canfield has opened her lakefront

Still Seeking Grant

The Tri-County vocational school committee is still working on efforts to obtain a $225,000 grant to remodel and equip the unfinished community building in East Jordan, Walter Thorsen, chairman, reports.

The committee, in close cooperation with school districts in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties, has outlined plans to operate a vocational school for all area high school students.

COOPERATING SCHOOL districts would contribute to the school's operation. Before the program can be started, $225,000 must be obtained to prepare the building in downtown East Jordan that was started, but never finished, during the depression.

Thorsen reports the committee is still tussling efforts to get the $225,000 from a foundation.

If the school cannot be opened this year, Thorsen definitely feels this year, Thorsen definitely feels ELLSWORTH — High School principal Nelson Spoelman this summer will participate in an institute for teachers of mathematics at Western Michigan University, Supt. Jerry Albright reports.

Spoelman was selected to attend the institute for high school math teachers and will receive a grant to cover all of his personal and family expenses.

THE JUNE 15 through July 21 program is supported by the National Science Foundation and is renewable over a three-year period. Before becoming principal of Ellsworth Community High School last fall, Spoelman was a science and math teacher at Boyne City High School.

His wife, Karen, is enrolled at Northern Central Michigan College in Petoskey. They have a daughter, Derrick, in kindergarten, and a son, Derrick, 3. Mrs. Spoelman will do some course work at Western while he is attending the institute.

Teachers Urge Help for Slow Reading Students

A heartfelt appeal for special classes to help children with reading problems was made by two elementary school teachers.

"It must be awful hard for slow learners to sit in the classroom when they do not comprehend," Arlyle Roberts said. "I think I would throw spitballs or something, too," she added.

MISS ROBERTS AND Mrs. Charles Bleha, Elementary School teachers, presented a program on reading at the Board of Education meeting.

"They said children who cannot keep up with others must spend hours in class when they do not understand, and cannot participate in what is going on.

Special reading help can make a difference for the child throughout his life, Miss Roberts told the board.

Elementary principal Glenn Snider said of all children who have trouble, probably 90 percent started school about four months too young. "If they had waited another four months they could have breezed through, instead of always struggling to keep up," Snider said.

SUPT. REX MILLIGAN told board members it doesn't do any good to hold a child in the same grade a second year unless parents approve support such a move. Mrs. Bleha pointed out teachers break classrooms down into three groups — fast learners, average and slow.

"Teaching is the only job, except the circus, where you have three rings going at once," she said.

Each ability group, Mrs. Bleha said, requires different kinds of instruction and attention.

"WE ALL LOVE OUR children, and think they are just about perfect; so it comes as a blow for a parent to learn their boy or girl is a bit slow."

Elementary teachers feel it is important to create a classroom environment that inspires children to want to learn. "A child that isn't happy and relaxed," Mrs. Bleha said, won't learn to the extent he should.

Both teachers lauded new techniques to teach grade school reading. "First grade students will live in a world totally different from ours. The job they will fill doesn't even exist now," Mrs. Bleha said.

CHS Grad Honored As Hero

IRONTON — A 1959 Charlevoix High School graduate was recently honored by more than 400 Los Angeles, Calif., citizens for his daring capture of a suspected burglar.

DOUGLAS BURGESS

Douglas Burgess, 23, received a plaque, check and birthday cake — it was his 23rd birthday — from residents of a Los Angeles neighborhood that had been terrorized by the alleged thief he captured.

BURGESS WAS OFF duty when he arrested the suspect. Before subduing the young rookie officer was stabbed several times in the face, arms and shoulders.

A list of 400 names was signed to a commendation presented to Burgess. Among other things, it said, "... His injuries did serve a purpose: shocking the people once more with the reality that in the performance of carrying out their duties, our police officers are laying their lives right on the line."

The $105 check was presented to the Police Dept.'s retirement fund. Burgess is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Kanoff of Ironton.

Mustang leads the stampede the big Ford started. This has been the hottest sales year in Ford Division history. We have a winner in the Super Torque Ford, a car so well built, so predictably tough, that competition-modified Fords took eleven of the last twelve NASCAR 500-mile races. Ford sales are up 17% this year. We have a luxury car that's taken off like a skyrocket: Thunderbird, with sales up 68%. Falcon is selling almost as many cars as Valiant and Chevy II combined. Fairlane continues to be a favorite in its own field. Now comes Mustang . . . turning the trend to Ford into a downright stampede. Mustang, by any measure of sales or excitement, is the most successful new car ever introduced in America—ever. When you see a stampede, it makes sense to find out what started it. That's something only your Ford Dealer can tell you about.

Garden Club Proposal for Downtown Rates Support

THE CHARLEVOIX Garden Club this week warrants and gets the Charlevoix Courier's wholehearted support. Our hope is that everyone else along Charlevoix's business and main streets joins us in supporting the women of the Garden Club.

The club's proposal that all businesses decorate the front of their shops with plants and flowers is a marvelously wonderful idea. The suggestion is almost stunningly simple. Maybe that's why so many of us missed it.

PERHAPS ONE OF THE wonders of the proposal is the ease with which it can be accomplished. The cost can be measured in cents, for those interested in economy. The effort is, likewise, minimal.

And yet the potential is unlimited and the finished result can be unequalled. No town could ask for a better bargain.

It doesn't tax the imagination much to picture the breathtaking impression we would leave on visitors . . . and ourselves. The prospects of seeing the entire length of Bridge St., from the Airport to the other side of the industrial zone north of town, bursting with colorful flowers is enough to make you gasp with anticipation.

Peace Depends On Strength

SATURDAY OUR CALENDAR says, is Memorial Day. That's the day of the big race in Indianapolis, isn't it? And, in Charlevoix, we mustn't forget, it's the first day we can expect a flood of summer tourists.

But, if you jog your memory a bit, you will recall it is also a day set aside to honor those thousands of young Americans who marched, crawled, floated, flew and grieved into battle when their nation called.

MOST POIGNANTLY, WE honor those who died on our battlefields fighting our battles. This we consider the ultimate sacrifice . . . and, perhaps, it is. Yet, let us not forget those who lived through the hell of prison camps, death marches, long nights of shelling, horrible wounds and the miserable hours awaiting an order to attack.

And let us thank God for every doughboy who ever lay in the mud, with dirt caking his body, hunger gnawing at his belly, sleep crying to be satisfied and loneliness for home and loved ones tearing at his soul.

We don't even know most of them. Though we see them on the street every day, we quickly forget—as we should—that they once endured this torture, because their country called. However, Saturday is the day to remember. We needn't harp on their sacrifice year-round . . . but we should on Saturday.

Let us bring to mind that they didn't say "H—, there's a Democrat in office—I'll not fight for him." They didn't want to go, no matter who was in office. But instead of balking—as they would in other lands they marched off to preserve our right to decide who will be in office next.

THERE WERE, AND STILL ARE, a few who employ every maneuver possible to avoid their obligation. Fortunately, they are in the minority. Most Americans continue to feel liberty and home is worth a few years of their life . . . and maybe, their life.

And, while we're at it, let's not forget our Cold War servicemen. Men of the Army's Special Forces units today are fighting the most frustrating, hopeless war in our history. Their sacrifices are as great, or greater, than any our nation has ever asked of its fighting men.

For them there is no glory. There are no songs, band drives or other public displays of support. There isn't even a logical explanation for why their country has asked them to die with death and the horrors of a communist brain washing session.

Today our politicians are overcome with the need for complete and permanent world peace. They talk of peaceful coexistence. They would compromise. We can have peace and liberty, they like to tell us, by simply negotiating with the enemy.

BUT THE NEGOTIATING will end when the enemy (and we never had a more determined enemy) decides we have lost our strength. And to them our strength is represented in airpower, missiles, ships, and, ultimately, the dirty, tired, American Infantryman who has never called it quits when the issue had to be settled.

BLEND THIS WITH Charlevoix's unparalleled natural beauty and setting!

Words are not ample to describe the result. The Courier has already started plans to landscape its front on Clinton St. We may be off Bridge St., but the Garden Club has inspired us so that we cannot resist the opportunity.

The newspaper is also making another contribution to the project, in addition to publicity and editorial support. We will purchase a large plaque to be awarded each year to the business place judged by the Garden Club to have the handsomest flower display.

We certainly join Garden Club members in hoping other businesses are as enthusiastic about their idea as we are. If they are, Charlevoix will have unquestioned claim to the title of Michigan's most beautiful city this summer. The boasts of other towns will seem even more absurd than ever when they try to sell themselves as more attractive than Charlevoix.

WHEN THE GARDEN CLUB'S goal is accomplished, the Chamber of Commerce has only to place publicity and advertising in metropolitan newspapers. With the story told we foresee it inspiring outsiders as much as it does those of us who love Charlevoix.

Ellsworth is Worthy Partner

ELLSWORTH COMMUNITY School District's decision to join Charlevoix in the Charlevoix - Emmet School District is a progressive move.

The annexation makes good sense for more reasons than its geographic location. Perhaps the most obvious is the outstanding reputation gained by the Charlevoix - Emmet Intermediate School District.

THE INTERMEDIATE district, under Supt. Charles Robinson, has pioneered many facets of education in northern Michigan. Its current proposal to establish a special education district will be another feather in its cap. There should be little doubt this was the primary consideration of the Ellsworth Board of Education in deciding to join Charlevoix.

But there are other factors which helped sway its judgment. That Charlevoix County schools, municipalities and the County itself, are financially and emotionally stable must have been among them. Another may have been the fact that the Intermediate School District's office is in the City of Charlevoix, where many Ellsworth people have social and economic attachments.

The annexation isn't one-sided, all in favor of Ellsworth. The Ellsworth Community School District is worthy of partnership with Charlevoix. The added enrollment, for one thing, will make it possible for the Intermediate District to offer a better program, at less cost per pupil.

CHARLEVOIX PARENTS should also take time to contemplate the willingness of Ellsworth parents to put cash on the line to see that their children get a topnotch education. Ellsworth school taxpayers have approved paying 22 mills to support their education program.

There is still some question whether Charlevoix parents will concede that their children are worth a 14.1 mill tax levy when they go to the polls to vote on a millage proposition June 8.

The Courier is favorably impressed with the Ellsworth Community School District. It's able young administrators impart a feeling of enthusiasm for education and the community's future.

However, all of this leaves the Courier in a somewhat delicate position. Ellsworth—its people and beauty—just naturally appeal to us. Because it is in another county, we expected one of Antrim County's newspapers to begin fulfilling its responsibility to cover Ellsworth news.

SINCE NO NEWSPAPER has stepped forward to assume this responsibility—and due to the school merger—we feel we can no longer shirk our obligation. As soon as the Courier can hire a correspondent in Ellsworth to write local, school, village, civic and personal news, we will begin running a page devoted to Ellsworth.

Our Living Heritage

ALL CHARLEVOIX CITIZENS should join in applauding the Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church's congregation on its recent recognition as one of Michigan's outstanding historical landmarks.

Unlike most historical sites, Greensky Hill is a living part of our heritage. It stands as a dramatic reminder of enduring religious faith in spite of almost unimaginable suffering.

IT WOULD BE dishonest of us—though perhaps discreet—not to admit that even today our Indian citizens live with a handicap. It would be wholly untrue, however, to contend that this is because they are not given a chance by their neighbors. At least partially, it is because they do not meet the white man on his terms, and begin the competition from there.

Those who have learned to compete with the tactics employed in our modern world, have done equally as well, or better, than white men. But the inspiration must be there.

Greensky Hill can provide this kind of inspiration. It should also provide a humbling reminder for all of us that we owe a debt to Charlevoix's first citizens that has never been paid.

Odds 'N' Ends

By FRAN MARTIN

Like everyone, I've known for a long time that the Colonial Club property on Meech St. was to be offered for sale, but I guess I hadn't really given it much thought 'til the deadline for bids was set by the council last week . . . Then all of a sudden, I realized that the 'finis' was about to be written to another era in Charlevoix's illustrious history.

It's hard for today's residents to realize what a fabulous place that was in its heyday . . . It was started back in the so-called 'roaring 20's' which also marked the early days of prohibition . . . The original building was once the Meech home . . . Mr. Meech, whose first name I think, was Darwin, was one of this community's early mayors . . . John Koch bought the Meech property and where there had also been a greenhouse at one time and built what was to become the Colonial Club . . . Mr. Koch lived in a new home he built next door (now occupied by the Thorp family) . . .

YOU CAN BELIEVE this or not, but one of the pastimes of kids at those days was to park in the field across the street from the main entrance to the club . . . covered by a green and white striped marquee which extended from the door of the club, to the street . . . and watch the arrival of the guests . . . the women dressed in evening gowns and wearing a fortune in real jewels, and the men in tux or white tie and tails . . . arriving for dinner and an evening at the game tables . . .

There are people in the community who boast that they once visited the club, but I'll say money is nothing but a boast, for you just weren't allowed there unless it was known you could afford it. Anyone in the 'know' will verify this statement . . . for at the entry were doormen whose business it was to know who you were before you gained entry . . . I'm sure that Sam King, for instance, could tell you many tales about those days . . . there are probably others but his name comes to my mind at the moment.

SOMEONE ASKED if gambling was legal in these days . . . I suppose it wasn't, but everyone took the Colonial Club for granted and never questioned its activities . . . After all, it was quite a place and meant a lot to the economy, and anyway, I don't think it ever occurred to anyone to question its legality.

Then came the war and later the State Police . . . and the padlock on the door . . . and that was that. Wonder what ever happened to all the gambling equipment? . . . If the walls of that place could talk, one would have a best seller on his hands . . . But that was long ago and far away . . . to those who remember, another page in Charlevoix's colorful summer history . . . and to those who weren't here, a story too fantastic to believe . . .

From the far north a eardrum from one of my 'adopted' nephews, Jim Shapton, telling me that he's made it . . . to Alaska, that is . . . 'I've been wanting to for a long, long time.' Sure is nice country up here . . . I would love to stay but there are no jobs . . . and it costs a lot to live here . . . Money or no, those kids sure get around . . . And don't you envy them a little?

IT'S THAT TIME of the year when time is running out for the June graduates . . . when everything they do takes on added meaning, for all of a sudden they become aware of the fact that things they've been doing together since they started kindergarten will be different, come June 3 . . .

And as each class graduates, you say goodbye to them with a tear in your eye, for whether those kids realize it or not, they've all come to mean something to you, if you've spent any time with them at all . . . So, to this class, I'd like to wish everything good for them.

smooth cruises, whether by highway, ship or jet . . . to wonder what tomorrow . . . far more wonderful than you can now realize, where I hope all your dreams will come true . . .

And to all you other wonderful people, won't you please, please, please, be careful on the highways over the forthcoming weekend and the early days of summer . . . You're real nice people and I'd hate for you to become a weekend fatality statistic . . .

AND ANOTHER thing . . . Before Memorial Day is here, won't you please review the flag etiquette you've always known, and give your youngsters a lesson on what to do when the flag goes by on parade and is raised and lowered on the flag staff during the holiday weekend . . . and at all other times for that matter . . . I feel it's most disrespectful to do anything but stand at attention when the flag passes or is run up on the pole, or when the National Anthem is being played . . . for that flag represents our very way of life and certainly that should be precious to you all . . .

From Charlevoix's Past . . .

This awkward drawbridge over Charlevoix's Pine River at the entrance to Round Lake has long since disappeared from the local scene. Today's bridge is much trimmer and mechanically better able to handle the ever-swelling volume of boat traffic. Several other landmarks in this picture are also gone. The Argo Milling Co. building on the left, has been replaced by the renovated Weyburn Inn, an out-standing tourist attraction, which maintains some of the mill's flavor.

Of course, today's automobile hardly seems related to the chugging, independable, jarring machines in this picture.

In spite of all these changes, the bridge remains one of our community's most vital assets.

Special Education Will Provide Vital Service

By DR. WM. RATIGAN

In establishing a program of special education, two of the key services are provided by the school diagnostician and the visiting teacher.

In order to qualify for state reimbursement, the diagnostician must serve a school population of at least 5,000 and the visiting teacher must serve a minimum of 2,500. This is because their services are so specialized that they must draw from a large school population in order to select an adequate number of children who need their professional skills.

THE SCHOOL diagnostician plays a vital role in special education. His individual tests and evaluations provide the means whereby children may be selected for eligibility in an educational program for the mentally handicapped. He serves the mentally handicapped program full time.

The diagnostician also assists teachers and other school personnel in understanding the problems and the behavior characteristics of mentally handicapped children so that they can identify and differentiate children of this kind, and therefore work more effectively with them.

The diagnostician may be of assistance to the teacher in planning for an individual instructional program through describing the learning potential and ways in which the child may achieve.

The diagnostician will re-evaluate all children in the mentally handicapped program periodically: at least every two to three years is recommended. He may make supplementary evaluations when a child is not achieving or adjusting as expected. He may work with parents who find it difficult to accept their child's limitations, and assist them in achieving realistic social, educational, and vocational goals.

THE STATE VISITING Teacher Program was started in Michigan 20 years ago. In its two decades of growth, the program's contribution in the school systems toward understanding and planning for individual children and its role as a liaison between school, home, and community has been accepted.

Essentially, the visiting teacher program is concerned with those pupils who are having difficulty in school—social adjustment in school and at home. It offers assistance to the pupil, the school staff, and parents with these pupils who present problems in social and emotional growth which interfere with school adjustment.

The visiting teacher concerns herself in the following areas of special education responsibility:

• School Adjustment Problems: Poor attendance, unsuitable classroom attitudes, unsuitable courses of study, poor scholarship, lack of interest in school.

• Home Adjustment Problems: Cultural conflicts, lack of supervision, burdensome house duties, parental delinquency.

• Social Adjustment Problems: Inexpressibility, cheating, stealing, over-suggestibility, defiance, lack of friends.

• Personal Adjustment Problems: Aggressive tendencies, daydreaming, emotional immaturity, fears, nervousness, unhappiness, withdrawing behavior.

• Social Adjustment Related to Physical Problems: Physical peculiarities causing a feeling of rejection or ridicule.

AS MENTIONED, state aid is paid on the basis of one visiting teacher for 2,500 pupils in public school membership. On an average, about 20 percent of the school population will require assistance from a visiting teacher program. Consequently, her active case load may average between 40 and 70 children per month.

Thanks to the fact that the Charlevoix - Emmet Intermediate School District has been established, the children of this area are now able to qualify, because of the combined school membership, for the vital services of both the visiting teacher and the school diagnostician program.

Student Defends Teachers

TO THE EDITOR:

Perhaps being several miles from Charlevoix leads one to be objective with regard to your "Rambling" column and perhaps not, but may I be allowed to raise a distant protest about last week's issue.

You have stated that several teachers seem to feel freedom in text books is warranted, but not in application to a local level. Then you went on to say that you do not feel you can control or limit disagreement. But you do this very thing when you decide which letters you publish in your newspaper.

MANY TIMES letters should be published in the sincere interest of the good of a community, but other times it is better to let an individual opinion go unnoticed. This is especially true when the person whose opinion it is does not even have the courage or positive conviction to let himself be known!

Another item in your column disturbs me also. Why should it be the teachers problem alone to raise their salaries? You would be astonished to know the number of qualified people who do not go into the teaching profession simply because of the comparative low wage scale.

It is said that a teacher should be content with the spiritual aspects of the profession: the knowledge of a child progressing, the delight in mental and emotional growth. But did you ever try to get a child's promiser, or live in a child's growth?

In a materialistic society one must be materialistic to survive. And let us be honest in this. It is everyone's problem—yours, mine and theirs—to see to it that the young people of our nation have the best teachers, the best schools and the best programs for study. Public apathy in this respect will, I feel, be disastrous in the long run.

Fall-Out to Honor Fallen

TO THE EDITOR:

An open letter to the residents of the Charlevoix area:

The 30th of May is the one day we have set aside to honor and pay our respects to those service men and women and veterans who have passed on.

THE AMERICAN Legion and the V.F.W. would like to invite all servicemen and veterans to fall out at 9:30 a.m. Saturday to pay homage to these war dead by participating in Memorial Day services. The meeting place is Park Ave., between Bridge St. and State St.

We are planning to make ears available for veterans, auxiliary members and Gold Star Mothers who are unable to march in the parade.

We also have invited members of the U.S. Air Force and Coast Guard to join in the parade.

So let's make this a parade we, as servicemen, veterans and citizens of the community, will be EVEN IN A TOWN the size of Charlevoix each and every one of us has a duty not only to ourselves, schools and children, but to our teachers as well. To have the best one must give the most time, effort, and yet—even money!

Sincerely yours, proud to remember. Let us consider this a privilege to do this for those whose place, but for the grace of God, we might have taken.

Because this is a serious occasion, there are certain rules we all should observe. Among these is the consideration for the flag.

AS THE COLORS pass men should bare their heads; those in parked cars should dismount and stand and everyone, whether spectator or bicycle rider, should stop and stand quietly out of respect to the flag and what it represents.

We hope you will accept our invitation to participate in this observance of Memorial Day, either as an active participant or as a spectator.

Life's Climate More Important Than It's Weather

By REV. H. E. KOHN

The difference between weather and climate is mostly a matter of time. Weather is momentary. Climate endures. Weather may fluctuate wildly, as it does in springtime throughout much of North America. One day is humid, followed by rain. Then comes a high wind that dries off the earth, and we enjoy several days of bright sunshine. Soon clouds return: the high temperature drops and more silvery rain slants down from leaden heavens. Weather is a temporary occurrence of any of its various components such as humidity, cloudiness, precipitation, rising or dropping pressure, temperature or wind.

Climate, on the other hand, is not an instantaneous occurrence, but a long, enduring, prevailing characteristic of any of these components. It is a pattern of design of conditions that have existed in an area for a long time. It is climate rather than weather that determines which plants, insects, birds and mammals can grow in a region. Climate, more than weather, has helped mold civilizations. Although the Temperate Zone of the world, in which we live, is often affected by the worst possible weather such as tornadoes or hurricanes and tempests of stupendous force, the world's most highly developed civilizations are found in the Temperate Zone because here the climate is neither too hot nor too cold to do the work that makes for progress and because here there is enough variation of weather components to invigorate the body and stimulate the mind.

THE BEST CLIMATE can occasionally be assaulted with the worst weather. Even the sunny, beautiful Bahamas are sometimes assailed by hurricanes.

The soul, too, experiences both climate and weather. There is a sum total of the soul's condition—its convictions, courage and hopes, its moral purposes, its sense of justice and mercy. These make for a "good climate." Or the soul may suffer from "poor climate," where prevailing conditions consist of hostilities, deceitfulness, ingratitude, immorality, anxiety.

Then, again, there is the condition that predominates at any given moment of time, the soul's weather, its moods.

In the Forty-Second Psalm a comparison is made between spiritual weather and climate: "Why art thou cast down, O my soul? And why art thou disquieted in me? Hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise Him." For the time being the Psalmist is depressed. He experiences heavy skies and stormy spiritual weather. Nevertheless, he lives in a climate of trust, hope and joy. He knows bad weather will pass and good climate will remain. Depression and disquietude are his weather. Hope and joy are his climate. He reuses to confuse the two. How can we best handle life's changing weather, its fluctuating moods?

FIRST, REMEMBER that troublesomeness moods are universal. Glandular, metabolic or blood pressure changes make emotional differences in everyone. So do the influences of good fortune, the allure or success, life brings to us. Everyone everywhere normally experiences moods, as every spot on earth undergoes some changes in the weather.

Second, keep in mind that the mood will not last forever. Moods come and go as do rainy days. While we are in the midst of a sultry mood it appears to us to be permanent. But so did the last mood, as did the one before that, and all of its countless predecessors. This one will soon be gone, too. In his youth and middle years Abraham Lincoln frequently became so depressed that his friends feared for his sanity and of his life. One way he learned to handle his low moods was by expecting them to arrive before they came, and by expecting them to pass soon after they overtook him. He was often heard to quote from a poem, the last line of which read "This will pass away." A mood, as a transient as a sun-shine-filled day or a rain storm. Our elation and depression appear permanent. But we have passed from happiness to disconsolation and back to happiness again, repeatedly. And it will happen again. Expect a change in moods; then, when it comes, it will be less disturbing.

Third, do something worthwhile in the meantime, until the mood passes. One woman says she goes shopping for a hat when a stubborn gloom refuses to move away. A new red hat in particular dispels depression, she declares. Probably the mood would pass as quickly without purchasing a hat, but looking for a suitable hat gives her something to do in the meantime.

A HOUSEWIFE testifies that baking bread helps her moods. She feels she is performing a fundamental task and putting her competence to work. By the time the bread is a fragrant brown, her spirits are refreshed.

Take a walk. Hoe the garden in summer or shovel a path in winter. Visit a friend. Do something while the mood passes.

Fourth, refuse to give your moods more importance than they deserve. Many things matter more than whether we feel "blue" or "sunny, irritable or patient, upset or serene." The happiness of those around us is of more account than our moods. Why should we vent our irritability on children who may be innocent of wrongdoing, or make the family miserable with our inner distress—spreading suffering with our inconsideration, quarrelsomeness.

Lift for Living

criticism or sullenness. Hitler, who almost worshipped his own moods, declared, "I think with my blood." Indeed he did, and thus precipitated the bloodiest era in history. Whenever emotions run amuck they cause anguish. No matter how we feel, the happiness and welfare of others still counts. Show it.

WHEN WE TREAT our moods as important, then they become far too important. Attach little importance to how you feel at the moment.

Fifth, bear in mind that moods are untrustworthy guides to reality or to conduct. We do not see the world as it is, but we see it through what we are. Moods stain clear enough windows through which to view the world, and only the best principles make worthy guides of conduct. The Psalmist knew he could trust his convictions concerning God's goodness, but not his changeable feelings.

Moreover, if followed, bad moods would misguide us into wrong conduct. If everyone acted exactly the way he felt, the number of desertions, assaults, killings and suicides would multiply immeasurably. Besides, if everyone worked only when he was in the mood the world's work would grind to a halt in quick order. Only the highest ideals are clear enough windows through which to view the world, and only own. Good works help bad moods. Tell your excess emotions where to go—into good deeds.

Finally, a healthy measure of emotional control can be gained by attaching one's feelings to appropriate objects. Misspent emotions represent one of the world's most tragic wastes. "Good emotions" should not be spent on soggy sentimentalism. Pity, sympathy and love should find a fitting expression. William James once told of a Russian coachman who was compelled to remain in his coach, freezing, while his wealthy employer sat at the opera weeping at the tragic fate of the operatic hero. She delighted in causing fictional sorrows while ignoring real hardships she was causing and which she would alleviate. Dr. James declared we should do something with our good feelings which are aroused through drama, poetry, art, music or religion; tip the waiter a bit extra; buy your wife that longed-for hat; say a kind word to your mother-in-law. Hate what is really hateful—disease, poverty, wars that destroy men's bodies, and all the influences that destroy men's souls. Love the lovely, in nature in man, in the fine arts. Especially, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."

Then put the emotion into an appropriate action. Destroy the destructive. Give support to the good. Help the helpless. Work for the reign of God in all human affairs. Emotions and motions go together.

It's Spring, and you know what that means!

Poverty Gets Attention on Local Level

By CLARE BROWN
Home Economist

BOYNE CITY — Michigan's disadvantaged families will be the focus of the annual conference of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service home economics family living staff May 25-28 at MSU.

Extension agents and specialists will hear state and national leaders discuss such topics as "Poverty—A Myth or Reality?" and "Problems of People Who Are Poor."

WORKING WITH low-income families is nothing new for the extension staff. For several years in the all-out war against poverty, families have to use U.S.D.A. donated foods or revamp houses to meet urban renewal standards. A number of home agents have conducted classes for mothers on public assistance to help them create home environments in which their children can develop to their greatest potential.

Next week's conference is aimed at strengthening the extension home economists' educational role in the all-out war against poverty. Even if President Johnson had not declared such a war, the home economics family living staff would still be involved in this area. Late in 1963, it named working with disadvantaged families as a top-priority job for 1964-65.

The conference is designed to clarify the "poverty" situation in Michigan and across the country and to show extension staff members how they can complement the efforts of other agencies also working with disadvantaged families.

U-M Graduates

By ED REBMAN
County Extension Director

BOYNE CITY — Inadequate weed control will limit yields in some Charlevoix corn fields this year.

"Annual weeds, both broadleaved weeds and grasses, are the number one problem in corn," says Mill Erdmann, crops science specialist at Michigan State University. "Fortunately, herbicides are available which give excellent control of these weeds in corn."

A PRE-EMERGENCE application of two pounds of actual atrazine per acre (2 1/2 pounds of an 80 per cent wettable powder) controls annual broadleaved weeds and grasses effectively on mineral soils. This can be applied broadcast or in a band over the row, although care must be taken in band applications to make sure rates are proportional to the area covered.

For example, if a 14-inch band is sprayed on 42 inch rows, the band spray equals one-third of an acre of each acre of corn. In this case, two-thirds of a pound of active atrazine should be applied per acre to equal the two pounds of atrazine per acre recommendation.

"If greater rates are applied, crops following corn next year may be damaged by the residue present in the soil," says Erdmann. "And even when only two pounds of active atrazine per acre are used, sugar beets or vegetable crops should not follow corn."

ALTHOUGH atrazine has generally given the most effective weed control in corn, 2,4-D ester or Roundup can also be used. However, the 2,4-D generally controls only broadleaved annuals.

DETAILED recommendation on weed control can be found in Extension Bulletin E-434, "Weed Control in Field Crops" which can be picked up at the county extension office.

Police Urge Boaters To Obey Water Safety

The State Police and Sheriff Glenn Rose are giving special emphasis to two safety slogans—"A Captain for Every Ship" and "A Lifeguard for Every Family"—as part of their contribution to Michigan's Water Safety Education Month during May, said Sgt. Jack Brouard, commander of the Petoskey post.

Though water safety is a year-round concern for the State Police, the special efforts are in conjunction with Governor George Romney's proclamation for the month which marks the start of increased outdoor water activities.

EXPLAINING THE slogans, Brouard and Rose said State Police analysis of Michigan's 540 water accidents last year which killed 244 persons and injured 216 others indicated more responsible supervision by boat operators, parents and other adults could have cut the toll appreciably in boating and nonboating accidents.

The study showed that some of the 88 lives lost in boating accidents could have been saved in at least 48 cases had there been life preservers for passengers.

In nonboating tragedies, investigation officers believed that adequate supervision could have saved 15 lives in 52 fatal accidents while in 15 other mishaps provision of a life guard on duty would have prevented some deaths.

Brouard pointed out that motorboat operators, as responsible "captains of their ships," should see to it that each passenger wears or has available a life preserver or jacket. Passengers should be cautioned against standing or changing places when underway. Operators should know and follow the safety rules and should not overload or overpower their boats.

HIGHTS OF OTHER water users—swimmers, waders, fishermen, water skiers and divers—must be respected too and this consideration applies as well to moored craft and waterfront properties which can be damaged by boat wakes. Motorboats should be properly equipped, including lights, anchor, fire extinguisher and one rescue device such as a ring buoy and line for emergencies.

The Petoskey Post commander and Charlevoix Sheriff emphasized that waders and teenage swimmers should always have capable supervision with provision for effecting rescue if trouble develops. Persons in that age group accounted for 63 per cent of the 156 drownings in Michigan nonboating accidents in 1963.

Because accidents may happen despite the best of safety intentions, Brouard urged that boat operators and at least one family member know how to apply some method of resuscitation. Sixteen lives were reported saved in state water accidents last year because someone was able to revive the victims.

"BY TAKING sensible precautions before taking part in any outdoor water activities, we can help make Michigan a water safety wonderland," Rose and Brouard stressed.

Mackinaw Indians on Warpath for History

MACKINAW CITY — Knives will flash and warwhoops again resound around the walls of Fort Michilimackinac May 29 and 30 as citizens reenact the great massacre of 201 years ago.

The fort in Mackinaw City has been rebuilt exactly as it appeared in 1763.

IN THAT YEAR the great Chief Pontiac plotted with the leaders of many tribes to wrest the entire Great Lakes area from the British. The plan: a simultaneous attack on British strongholds from Fort Niagara on the east to Green Bay on the West.

At Fort Michilimackinac a diabolical scheme was used to gain entrance to the fort. Two tribes announced their intention to play a series of games of lacrosse, the popular Indian sport played with balls and sticks somewhat resembling small clipped racquets on long handles. As the game was played the tribes moved closer to the open gates of the fort. Squaws, dressed in long blankets were near the gates. The soldiers and officers watched them from the gates or the parapets inside the walls.

At a signal the ball was "accidentally" knocked toward the open gates. The braves swarmed after it, past their squaws—who passed knives and tomahawks to them from beneath their blankets. The surprised soldiers had little chance.

SIXTY-SIX British subjects were killed and twenty taken captive at Michilimackinac. Nine other British posts were captured at about the same time.

The massacre enactment, including the lacrosse game which preceded it, will be staged at the authentic location just outside the stockade walls.

Local Office Prepares 55 New Fishing Sites

Though it won't directly benefit Charlevoix County is playing a key role in the Conservation Dept.'s plan to build 55 new fishing sites, costing $194,000.

Gregory Shadko, department surveyor, whose office is located on the second floor of the Charlevoix County Building, will do most, or all, surveying for the sites.

SHADKO SAID 30 of the new sites will be located in the northern Lower Peninsula. But none of them will be in Charlevoix County.

The nearest new fishing sites will be one on Crooked Lake in Emmet County and one on Intermediate Lake in Antrim County.

The 30 fishing sites in the northern Lower will cost approximately $119,000. Six new sites planned for the southern Lower Peninsula will cost $22,000. The 19 sites slated for the Upper will cost $53,000. The federal government is paying $106,000 of the total cost.

UNTIL A YEAR ago, Shadko was responsible for surveying and developing all Michigan Conservation Dept. fishing sites. Due to department reorganization, his office no longer handles the development phase of new fishing sites, only surveying. His staff has been cut from 13 to 3.

Unemployed local men will be hired to do the actual construction work on the sites, he said.

Gas Co. To Fight For Rails

Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. has contributed $500 to help keep rail service in Northern Michigan. James C. Preston, general manager of Michigan Consolidated's Northern District, said the utility presented the check to the Committee for Retention of Rail and Ferry Service.

Preston also offered use of company sponsored radio and television commercial time to help inform the public on the rail-ferry issue.

"MICHIGAN CONSOLIDATED believes that Northern Michigan is on the verge of great economic expansion," Preston said, "and it is essential that the area have adequate rail transportation to fully realize its potential growth."

He pointed out the railroads' proposal to abandon service would discourage new industry from locating in Northern Michigan "and defeat much of the good work that has been done by Chambers of Commerce, industrial development groups and others who are working tirelessly to bring more industry here."

Preston said Michigan Consolidated is investing some $15 million to extend natural gas service to 55 communities in the northern half of the Lower Peninsula this year and has added 70 communities to its Northern District in the past eight years.

In Memoriam

They have not died in vain...those who paid with their lives the last full measure. Today, Memorial Day, is the day to remember Lexington, Gettysburg, Santiago Bay, Chateau Thierry, Coral Sea, Okinawa, Palermo, Normandy and Korea. We need only to look at the cemeteries of the world to realize the supreme sacrifice that was called for, that we might be secure. It called for the giving of life itself for many a man; for untold sorrow and heartache for friends and loved ones. As they bravely died, so we must bravely live. God has a destiny for us, for America, and only eyes of faith can read that destiny. Each drop of blood spilled from Bunker Hill to Iwo Jima, is a deposit in the bank of our country. One hundred sixty-five million Americans can do no less than dedicate ourselves anew. With our Alabaster Ointment of thankfulness, let us nobly remember those who laid themselves between our country and her foes. This is Memorial Day.

School Vote Fact Sheet

A CONFUSING BALLOT faces Charlevoix Public School District voters June 8. Two proposals to raise school taxes, plus candidates for the Board of Education will be voted on.

In Ellsworth the ballot will be much easier to understand, as only one millage proposal and board of education candidates are to be voted on.

WHO CAN VOTE When and Where

Any citizen registered to vote in their political subdivision (city, village or township) can cast a ballot Monday in their school district. They need not be property owners.

Polls will be open at the Ellsworth Community School and Charlevoix High School from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Charlevoix Millage Increase Proposition

The Charlevoix district's "Tax Increase Proposition" as it is labeled on the ballot asks voters for permission to levy 2.5 mills for school operation from 1964 to 1966 (three years). If approved, it will be used for operation — not construction work.

Though the request is for 2.5 mills, it only means three-quarters of a mill (.75 mill) increase over last year's tax rate.

This is possible because the district last year had permission from voters (which expired this year) to levy 1.5 of the 2.5 mills. This means 1.5 of the total request is a "renewal." Another one-quarter (.25 mill) was levied for building bond retirement last year, but will not be levied this year because it is not needed to meet bond obligations on the new high school.

This means 1.75 mills of the 2.5 mills sought, was levied last year, leaving an increase over last year of only .75 mill, if the request wins.

In total dollars it will mean the schools get approximately $20,000 more to operate on this year than last. If the millage is defeated, the district will have about $30,000 less than last year, and $50,000 less than it seeks.

Each mill in taxes costs a taxpayer $1 on every thousand dollars his property is valued at by the tax assessor. Figuring the average taxpayer's property is valued at $5,000 on the taxroll, their bill for local school taxes last year was $69.

If the millage is approved the average taxpayer's school taxes will increase $4 a year, to $73 annually.

If the millage is defeated, the average school tax bill will decrease $9 a year, to $60 annually.

So, if the millage is approved our "average" homeowner will actually be giving the school district permission to charge him $13 more a year than it now has authority to levy. But only $4 more than he was charged last year.

Special Education Proposition

The Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District is asking all voters — including Charlevoix and Ellsworth school districts — to approve a half-mill (.5 mill) levy for special education.

If all of the millage is levied (which intermediate district officials say is doubtful) it will mean a 50c increase on every $1,000 your property is valued at. Or $2.50 on the "average" $5,000 valuation.

Most of the special education program will be paid for by the state. All school districts in the intermediate district will enter students who need special attention and training in the program. Parochial school students will also be eligible at no additional cost.

This is the only millage issue facing Ellsworth voters.

Charlevoix Board Candidates

*Incumbents Darrell Dinwiddie and Burr Blanchard will appear on the ballot in Charlevoix as candidates for four year terms on the Charlevoix Public School District Board of Education. They are unopposed in their bid for re-election.

Ellsworth Board Candidates

Incumbent Ellsworth Board of Education candidates Arthur Drenth, Jack McPherson and Doug Way are also unopposed in their bid for re-election.

Quality Education Has it's Rewards

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of two articles written by Charlevoix school administrators to tell why they are asking for a tax hike at Monday's school election.)

By DR. WM. RATIGAN

With the regular school election just around the corner, it would seem appropriate to take stock of our tax investment and see what we are getting for our money.

In line with this thinking, we conducted a survey of the rewards of quality education and we came up with the following facts that stand out, not as routine dividends, but as bonuses resulting from the educational program in our Charlevoix Public Schools.

IN THE AREA of academic excellence, our schools and community produced a Finalist in the National Merit testing program. There is no higher honor that can be given a school system. As an indication that quality education does not flower overnight, but is nurtured along the way, the potential talent of this National Merit Finalist was pointed out by a third grade teacher who put the following comment in the child's permanent file for later teachers to notice:

"A child of outstanding ability here."

As a result of the National Educational Development Test this year, it was discovered that eleven

Unveil Plans for $1 Million Hotel

Plans were disclosed Tuesday for a $1 million-plus luxury hotel in downtown Charlevoix.

A syndicate of Detroit area professional and businessmen revealed details of a nine story hotel overlooking Lake Michigan, where the old Beach Hotel now stands at the west end of Dixon Ave.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT was made at a meeting in the Westhavan Inn Tuesday noon. Charlevoix business, government and civic leaders were invited to the meeting.

Jack Begrow, architect of Belaire, outlined plans for the hotel. He showed colored sketches of the proposed building. It will have 12 sides (polygon). The ninth floor will be a cocktail bar that rotates a complete circle every 15 minutes.

According to Begrow, the hotel will be key to attracting spring and fall conventions to Charlevoix. This, he said, will bring off-season business to all Charlevoix motels, restaurants, bars, etc.

Recognizing the persistent complaint of resort area businessmen, Begrow said summer and winter season business is no problem; it is spring and fall business that must be obtained.

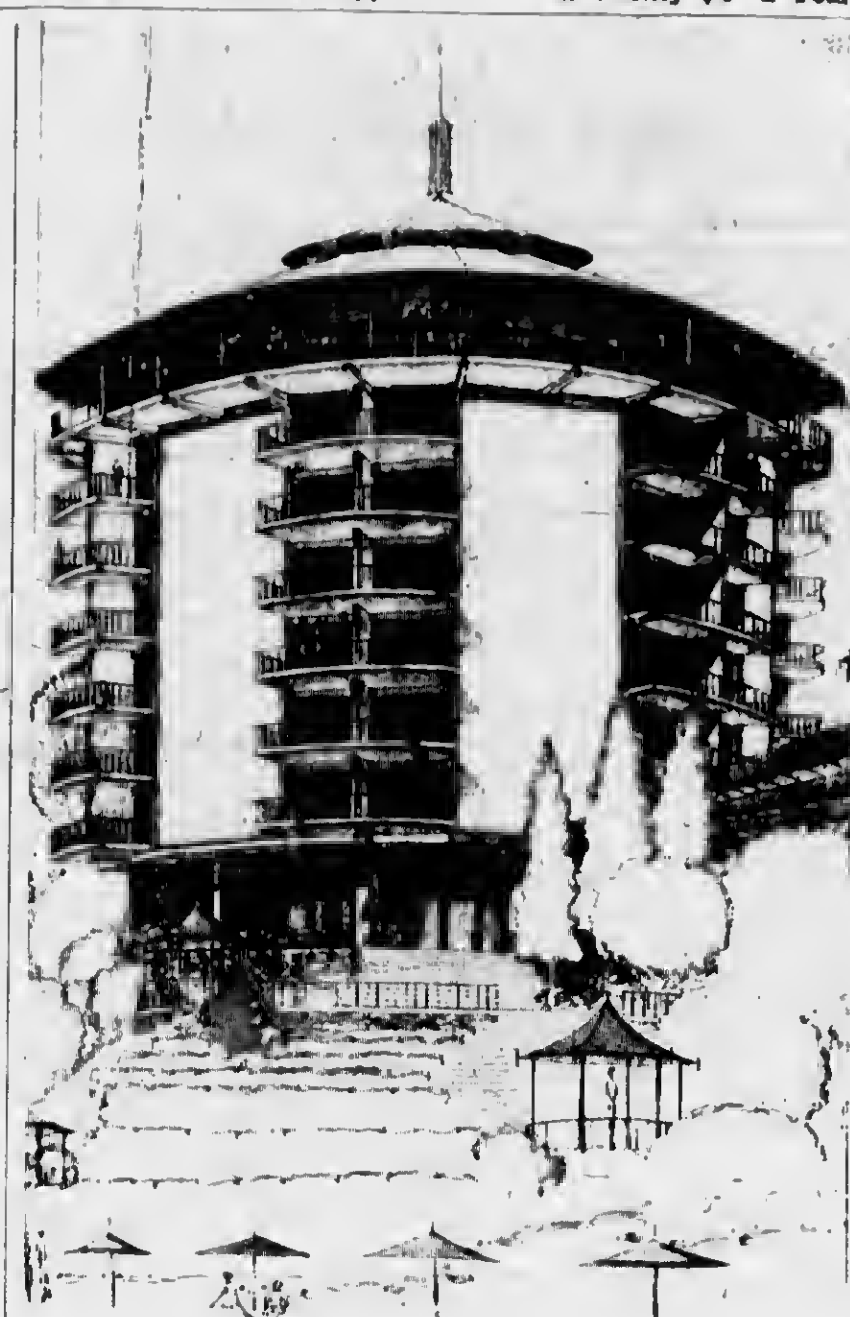

CONSTRUCTION of the hotel hinges on Charlevoix raising $140,000 of the approximately $1,100,000 cost Begrow told the group.

The 25 or 30 Charlevoix people at the meeting committed themselves to make an effort to raise the $140,000 through the Charlevoix Development Corp. To do this, it is expected, Charlevoix citizens will be asked to purchase stock in the Development Corp.

Those at the meeting were unanimous in pledging their enthusiastic support to the project. As an indication of this they gave the syndicate representatives a standing ovation.

The local $140,000 investment is necessary before the developers can qualify for a loan from the

Township Eying Water Business

Charlevoix Township is studying the possibility of establishing its own water system.

Township Supervisor Clarence Rabach reports an engineering firm has been employed to determine the most feasible way for the township to go in to the water business.

INCREASING residential development, and well problems, were cited by Rabach as reasons for establishing a municipal water system.

The consulting engineer firm of Uorton - Gourdie, Miller and Bazzar of Traverse City has been hired to make the study. The firm did the architectural work on the corner of Bridge and Antrim Streets.

Paul H. Jones, engineer, who is doing the work here for the Traverse City consultants, said his study will determine three fundamental factors:

Obscene Tabloids Blasted

Obscene newspaper and magazines on the local news stand were attacked verbally Monday by City Councilmen who could find no way to get rid of them.

Councilman Bill Fochtmann described tabloid newspapers displayed at the Williams News Stand and Cigar Store on Bridge St. as "terrible for 10 and 15 year olds."

MAYOR E. D. HAWLEY said the Charlevoix Ministerial Association has written him asking that the city take steps to outlaw the newspapers and magazines. The mayor said he has asked the ministers to recommend how the city can police smut reading material

Teen Center Planned Here

A teen recreation center is in the offing for Charlevoix, this summer.

City Council Monday evening gave tentative ok to operation of the teen center on the east side of Bridge St. in the second building north of Clinton. However, it tacked on several "ifs."

ALBERT ARVILLA, a Central Michigan University student, requested the Council's permission to open the teen center from late-June through August.

Councilmen gave their approval, if Arvilla meets "limitations and restrictions" on hours, type of activity and adult supervision. City Attorney John Mich-Biance said.

Other Democrat candidates have not announced they will run, La-Biance said.

Education Showdown For Voters Monday

Nearly 2,400 taxpayers are eligible to vote Monday on a Charlevoix Board of Education request to increase millage for school operation.

Voters in all Charlevoix County school districts and Ellsworth are also eligible to vote in Monday's annual school election on a proposal to levy a half-mill to create a special education district in the two-county Intermediate School District.

IN CHARLEVOIX the special proposition asks voters to approve a 2.5 millage levy. This will equal a three-quarters of a mill (.75c on every $1,000 of property valuation) increase over last year's local school taxes, Supt. Rex Milligan explains.

Milligan, and the Board of Education, contend the added millage is necessary to eliminate the $54,000 deficit from school operations prior to 1963 and to maintain the current "quality" education.

The 2.5 millage request, if approved, will be levied for three years. This, the board explains, will eliminate the uncertainty the school always faces on its next year's budget and will give continuity to the program.

THE BOARD of Education points out the millage will not mean a change in the program, but only pay for continuing the

No Audit Yet

The complete Charlevoix City audit report was not ready for Councilmen at their Monday meeting.

Mayor E. D. Hawley said Darrell Dinwiddie, auditor, had not had time to complete the report, as expected. At the May 18 council meeting it was announced the full report would be ready for this week's meeting. A partial report on the utilities was presented two weeks ago.

In Bid for Sheriff

A primary election contest for the Republican nomination for Sheriff is taking shape.

Charlevoix Councilman - grocer Robert Neff announced he will oppose Sheriff Glenn Rose in the Sept. 1 primary election. Neff is a former State Policeman.

THE COURIER also learned this week that all incumbent Charlevoix County officers will run for re-election. Incumbents announcing they will seek another term were F. R. Bulow, clerk; Rose, sheriff; Harvey Varnum, prosecuting attorney; Lillis Flanders, treasurer; Grover Gencil, register of deeds and John Makel, probate judge.

Inaction and last minute action by the State Legislature still has county politicians guessing at just what the election schedule is this year.

A sudden move by the legislature last week moved the primary election deadline from August 4 to September 1. The deadline for candidates to file their petitions to get on the primary election ballot was simultaneously moved, from June 16 to mid-July.

BECAUSE THE legislature failed to act on a schedule to implement the new constitution, it still is unknown if county officers will be running for the usual two year terms or the new four year terms demanded by the constitution.

County officers will be elected in November, on the ballot with governor and president. Voters will pick their party's candidates at the Sept. 1 primary election.

Unless others come forward to challenge the present county officers, the only primary battle will be between Neff and Rose. Neff said he will resign his first ward alderman post if elected Sheriff.

It is generally conceded that the Republican candidates who win the primary election will beat any Democrat challengers in November.

However, Charlevoix County Democrat party chairman, George LaBiance said he expects a full slate of Democrats to compete Want to be Editor?

If you were editor of the Charlevoix Courier what would you do?

This is an honest question, and one to which the editor is soliciting answers.

SEND US YOUR ideas of what you would do if you were the editor. We'll print them for other readers to see, and try to take as much of your advice as possible.

We sometimes hear statements like, "If I were editor, I sure would straighten out this town!" Or "If I were editor, I know what I'd do to that guy Sheppard." (What's left unsaid sort of curdles our blood.)

The Courier editor knows better than any of us that no newspaper — including Charlevoix's — is perfect. If you'll write out your suggestions for making it better, the Courier will be that much closer to the impossible "perfect."

If you have any complaints about public affairs, or the newspaper, this is your chance to do something constructive about them.

SO START THEM coming. Try your hand at being editor. It's lots of fun.

NOTE—A penny will be paid to all readers who send in convincing arguments on why the editor should have three days off a week to fish—Shep.

RICHARD DONALDSON
"Look Before Sitting"

Dear Dick: We left our two small children with a 16 year old baby-sitter. When we returned she was smooching with a boy friend. The refrigerator was almost empty and the kids were put to bed with their clothes on. I am a MAD MOM.

DEAR MAD MOM: Check out the sister before she sits. Ask close friends and relatives for highly recommended girls, then lay down the law as to what they can do BEFORE the deal is made. When you trade at PUFF'S APPLIANCE CENTER, you know what you're getting. The quality of our famous appliance lines is well known, as is our reputation for honest dealings.

Hotel

Federal Area Redevelopment Administration (ARA), Begrow said.

THE ARA WILL be asked this week to loan the syndicate approximately a half-million dollars, the architect added.

Begrow said the syndicate hopes to open the Holiday Towers Hotel by July, 1965.

The hotel will have 72 individual rooms, with an average size of 17 by 18 feet. It will include a convention hall, tennis courts, sauna, two bars, dining room and heated swimming pool. There will be an outdoor terrace outside each room.

The hotel will employ 76 persons on a year-round basis.

BEGROW SAID the decision to locate the hotel here was made due to Charlevoix's unique natural beauty and reputation as an area for gracious resort living.

Tourists have become "disenchanted" with the heat and humidity of southern and western climates and are rediscovering the beauty and attractive weather of northern Michigan.

Tourists, Begrow said, prefer to patronize "new, unique establishments which surround them with an aura of luxury and attention."

Members of the syndicate developing and promoting the hotel are: Allen Tucker, Birmingham attorney; Robert Lambert, Birmingham real estate broker; Jim Monahan, Bloomfield Hills municipal engineering consultant; Tom Hopper, Detroit industrialist, and Dr. Don Schubert, Birmingham investor.

A 600 lot resort subdivision is planned on Lake Marion (Lake 26) in the southeast corner of Marion Township.

and who will decide what is decent and what isn't.

Councilman Dr. Walter Hoffmann quoted a tabloid newspaper headline "How I Worked Myself Through College with Sex."

Tuesday morning's tabloid headlines included one that read "Vampire Killer Rapes Five Girls — Drinks Victims Blood," and another, "Sybil Barton Says, 'I Still Love Richard'."

"There is probably worse stuff on the shelves we don't even see," Fochtman said at the council meeting.

The tabloid newspapers are displayed on a separate shelf by the front door of the Williams News Stand. Magazines are on other racks.

FOCHTMAN PREDICTED censoring the magazines and newspapers would be difficult, even if an ordinance outlawing them was adopted by the council.

He suggested Joe Williams, news stand owner, be asked to remove the "objectionable" news papers and magazines.

How big should water lines be to supply township water systems users and where should they go?

Quality Education

en members of our sophomore class rank with the top ten percent in the nation in scholastic achievement.

We also had a national runner-up in the National Council of Teachers of English Awards Program.

PERFORMANCE in school already has begun to pay off for several members of our graduating class. Seniors have been awarded a number of scholarships including the National Upsilon Scholarship and the Regents Alumni Scholarship of the University of Michigan.

In the crucial arena of mathematics and science, Charlevoix students have demonstrated that they rank with the best. One of our seniors received a Certificate of Merit in recognition of outstanding achievement in the Seventh Annual Mathematics Prize Competition held in the State of Michigan. In scientific achievement, two Charlevoix seniors were awarded the Bousch and Lomb medal for outstanding work.

In the overall picture of academic excellence, the story is told in the fact that approximately 75% of the graduating class has plans for further education, either in technical training schools or in college.

GETTING BACK to particulars, our debate team qualified in the district tournament to enter the state meet and our forensics contestants won both district and regional honors this year.

At the Regional Industrial Education Fair in Boyne City this year, Charlevoix boys took 41 awards in mechanical drawings, metal work, and woodwork. At the State Awards Fair in Muskegon, the skillful craftsmen from our shop took a first in drafting, a first in wrought iron, a third in wrought iron, and two honorable mentions in drawing and woodwork, bringing home three trophies plus certificates and ribbons.

In the area of Home Economics, we had future homemakers who were chosen as regional officers and on 4-H Achievement Day this spring, when the eleven outstanding seamstresses in Charlevoix Public Schools, including a young lady in the fifth grade.

A boy in our eleventh grade entered the Farm Bureau Citizenship Program and won the right to spend a seminar at the State Camp this summer.

AS FOR OUR MUSIC program, the Reserve and Senior Bands both took First Division ratings in the District, and the Senior Band went on to take First Division rating in the State.

A District Solo and Ensemble Festival, there were 46 Charlevoix entries. They walked away with 27 First Division awards, 19 seconds.

and a third. In the State Solo and Ensemble Festival, three of our bandmen were rated in the 80's in proficiency, and one boy received a score in the 90's.

Six Charlevoix musicians were invited to become members of the donors Band at Central Michigan University. One of our boys was asked to participate in the All-State Honors Band, a group of 80 chosen from 2,000 in the state, and he went on to win first chair in his specialty.

Excellence in athletics and training for good sportsmanship are traditional in Charlevoix schools. This year was no exception. The football team shared the trophy to win the title, adding another trophy to our collection. Not to be outdone, the basketball team also shared the conference title and added another trophy.

The track team won the Oscoda Relays in Class C, took the Conference Title, went on to win the Regional, placed fourth in the Central Michigan Relays, and was fifth in the state among a total of 62 Class C high schools.

WITH RESULTS such as these in areas ranging from academic to athletic, from industrial arts to Home Economics, from music to forestry, we can be assured that when we vote for the school millage on June 8 we are making a sound investment in our community. The results, the REWARDS of quality education as listed here, show that we can bank on our boys and girls.

present program, which Milligan points out, is recognized as one of the state's best.

Of the 2.5 mills, 1.5 is renewal of millage the school levied last year. If it is defeated, approximately $30,000 will have to be trimmed from the budget, making cuts in the program necessary.

Charlevoix School District will also vote on two Board of Education members. Because incumbents Darrell Dinwiddie and Burr L'Anchard are unopposed they are virtually assured of re-election.

The school district has 2,380 registered voters. Of these 700 are in rural areas and 1,680 in the City of Charlevoix.

ALL CHARLEVOIX School District voting will be at the high school from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday, June 8.

Ellsworth Community School District voters will cast ballots in the high school from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Since Ellsworth Board of Education incumbents are also without opposition, the only issue on the Ellsworth ballot will be the Intermediate School District special education proposal.

The special education request for a half-mill levy will be voted on throughout Emmet and Charlevoix counties.

Intermediate Supt. Charlevoix Robinson, points out all of the half-mill probably won't be levied the first year.

The special education program, he said, will serve all children in the district who need special consideration.

THERE WILL BE no tuition, or extra charge, for parochial or rural school students needing special education help. As much as 75 per cent of the program will be paid for by the state.

All Will Benefit From Special Education Plan

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second of two articles by Intermediate School District Supt. Charles Robinson.)

By CHARLES ROBINSON

Next Monday, June 8, school directors in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District will decide whether or not special education programs will be made available to the district's exceptional and handicapped children.

They will be asked the following question: "Shall the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, State of Michigan, come under the provisions of sections 307a to 324a of the school code of 1953, which are designed to encourage the education of handicapped children if any annual property tax levied for administration is limited to one-half (1/2) mill?"

More than three dozen lay and professional groups have formally endorsed the proposal and many have expressed that "provisions for our handicapped children are long overdue." These include Farm Bureau Groups, Board of Education, P.T.A.'s, Granges, Church Organizations, Educational Organizations and Service Clubs.

Many persons ask "How will it work?" All special education classes will be part of and located in the existing local school districts. These special classroom teachers will be members of the faculty of the local district employed by the local district, and will be subject to the local district administration.

The intermediate school district will serve as coordinator and will reimburse local districts totally for the cost of their special education programs.

Obviously classes such as those for the mentally handicapped will have to be placed in present school centers where transportation will be most convenient to the surrounding rural areas. All students who live anywhere in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District will be served by special education programs tuition free.

Only teachers, such as speech therapists, and visiting teachers who work in more than one district and who are not classroom teachers, will be employed by the Intermediate School District. All others will be employed by the local districts.

Others ask, "Will students from parochial and private schools be served?" The answer is "Yes." Every child who lives in the Intermediate District will be entitled to the benefits of special education. Such students would meet in the public school for those special programs.

Will other students benefit? Yes. As an example, when students who have been properly diagnosed as being emotionally disturbed or mentally handicapped have been placed in special classes in their own local school districts the regular classroom teacher will be relieved of those special responsibilities and will have greater opportunity to enrich the curriculum for normal and gifted children.

Reports from teachers confirm that even two or three students who cannot function in the normal classroom require an unusual amount of assistance from the teacher. Neither the exceptional children nor the normal members of the class progress as well as they do when they are separated.

One of the significant advantages of the newly consolidated Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District is that the total of 9,000 students in the district is adequate to assure that numbers of students in the most urgent areas of need including speech defects, mentally and physically handicapped, emotionally disturbed and those having special health problems will be sufficient to establish approved programs that will qualify for state aid reimbursement. The provisions for establishing a special education district on the intermediate level was enacted by the legislature because relatively few individual school districts (almost none in outside Michigan) are large enough in school membership to have enough numbers needing special education programs to qualify for state aid. Certain pre-requisites for eligibility for state aid reimbursement were necessary to assure economic and wise use of state provided funds.

Hence the purposes of special education in Intermediate district becomes the logical coordinating unit. It serves to complement the work of local districts and takes nothing from them.

What Will It Cost? It will cost each property owner not to exceed 1/2 mill to be levied on his property valuation as equalized by the State Board of Equalization. 1/2 mill equals 50 cents per $1,000 valuation.

State aid reimbursements for approved programs amount to approximately 75 percent of their cost with prescribed maximum limits.

Locally raised funds may also be used to underwrite the costs of building and equipping needed room in local school districts.

These are the last segment of our school-age population to be provided for in the public program.

A minimum of local effort, when working collectively, can provide the skills of specially trained persons and give our exceptional children the benefits of the progress that has been achieved in these special areas.

City Orders Boards on Building in 45 Days

City Councilmen Monday evening deemed an abandoned dwelling a "public nuisance" and ordered action taken.

Councilmen demanded that steps be taken in 45 days to board shut and cleanup the grounds at the property on the northwest corner of May and Lincoln streets.

THE ACTION WAS recommended by City Attorney John Michael. "It is an attractive nuisance, particularly attractive to children," Michael said.

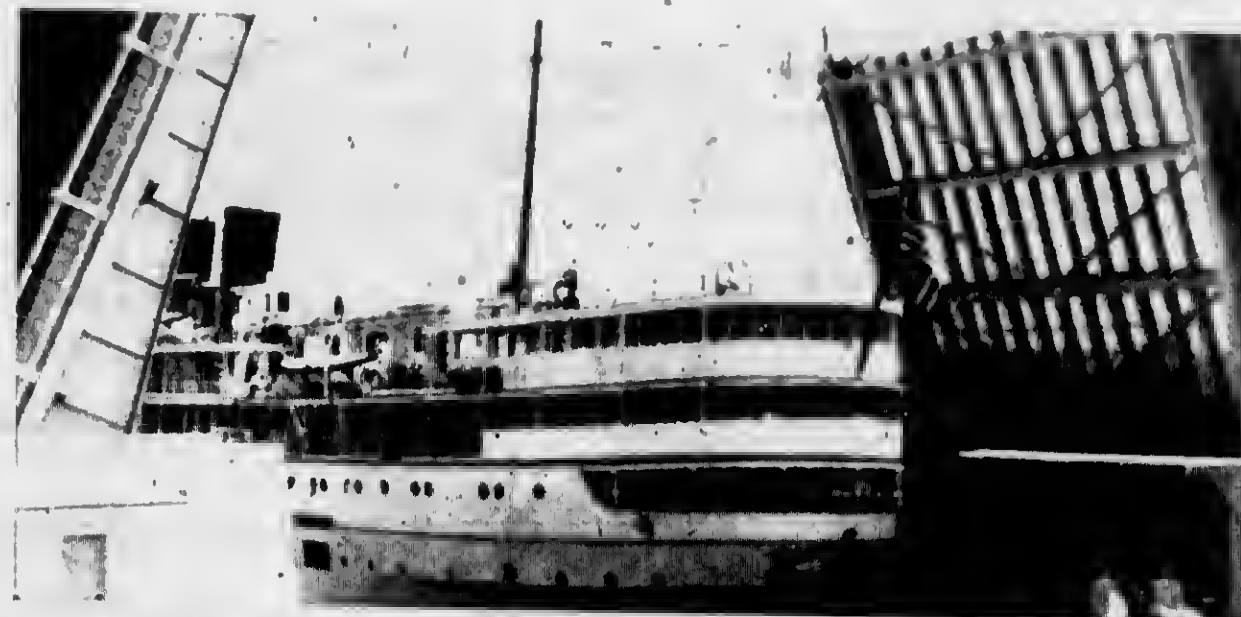

The attorney told councilmen school and juvenile officials have told him young people enter the building during their school lunch hour and in the evening. They are known to drink and smoke inside, Michael said.

He told councilman Nancy Wood, county juvenile officer, is "extremely upset about it."

The building has no doors or windows on the first floor and is not worth the cost of fixing, Michael said. According to city records it is owned by Rebecca Adamson of Jackson, Michigan.

IF THE BUILDING is not completely boarded shut, so no one can enter it, and the laws cleaned up in 45 days the City will do the work and bill Mrs. Adamson for it. If she does not pay, Michael said, the city could put the cost on her tax bill.

Kiwanis Golf Tourney June 13

The Seventh Annual Kiwanis International Golf Tournament will be held at the 27-hole Golf Course here Saturday, June 13. Archie Livingston, Kiwanis special events chairman, reports.

The local club is inviting Kiwanians and their wives to all areas of the state and country to participate. Play starts at 1 p.m. Reservations must be in by June 6.

TROPHIES WILL BE awarded winners and an informal luncheon will be held. The greens fee is $5.50.

Al David Gets Pistol Award

Bernie Ward, Jr., placed Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club pistol shooters at last Thursday's shoot with a 232 score, out of a 300 possible.

Ten club members participated in the shoot. This week the shoot will be Friday, due to the club's regular meeting tonight (Thursday).

AL DAVID was awarded a belt buckle last week for being the high shooter ever average for a five week period.

Scores for the evening were Ward, 232; Frank Zednick, 274; Bill Blissett, 232; Harold Lang, 231; Ken Boss, 241; Herb Boss, 227; Lesley Brown, 225; Al David, 190; Al Scheid, 189 and Dick Smith, 123.

OCEAN CABLES

International law allows nations at war to cut the ocean cables of their enemies but a cable from a neutral country to a warring country cannot be cut in neutral territory. Ocean cables were cut in both World War I and World War II.

Sea Scouts Trim Ship For Summer Cruising

Eight years ago Chief Bosun Robert Somerville retired after 22 years in the U.S. Coast Guard.

His retirement did not last long. He was soon back on active duty, as skipper of Charlevoix's Sea Scouts.

IT'S BEEN AN exciting time for a small group of Charlevoix boys since Skipper Somerville took charge of the Sea Scout program.

They are now getting their 30 foot ship "Our Son" ready for the summer's cruising. The ship is a former Coast Guard "rescue boat" that was given to the local scouts.

Through the efforts of Somerville and other local volunteers the Coast Guard made the ship available for the boys. After three days of towing "Our Son" to Charlevoix from the Sault Ste. Marie Coast Guard Station, the scouts spent months repairing engine and general re-conditioning. Technical advice and equipment were made available by local marinas and others.

THE SHIP WAS named "Our Son" after the schooner of that name which was the last of its kind on the Great Lakes.

There are 14 boys and two mates in the Charlevoix Sea Scout Ship this year. The mates are Ron Geer and John McSweeney.

In addition to cruises on "Our Son," the Sea Scouts learn water safety, general seamanship, small boat handling, boat maintenance, navigation, lifesaving and rescue work.

Two Rayders in Kalamazoo Meet

Two Charlevoix Rayder track team members accepted an invitation to participate in a special track and field day held at Western Michigan University Saturday.

They are Gary Stutzman, hurdler, and Larry McBride, pole vaulter.

THE EVENT WAS sponsored by the Kalamazoo JayCees.

The pair are members of the Charlevoix Rayder squad which closed out a successful season last week by placing fifth in State Class C competition.

Earlier the Rayders, number 63 participants who reported regularly, captured the Oscoda Relays title, the Northern Michigan Class C title and the Regional Class C title at Traverse City; placed second in the Petoskey Relays and fourth in the Central Michigan Relays.

Predict Record Season For City Golf Course

By FRAN MARTIN

"We're expecting this to be the best season we've had since coming here 11 years ago," Keith Carey, manager and pro at the municipal golf course, said last weekend as he discussed the prospects for this summer and talked of the decade he had been in charge of the nine-hole golf course operated by the city.

By "we," he meant not only himself but his wife, Lois, who assists him in the operation of the course and the clubhouse, now two years old.

If the number of season tickets sold between Apr. 25 and the weekend of May 24, a bad one for the weather was rainy, is any indication of things to come, then the summer of 1964 will be the best in the club's history.

"We're not turning anyone away but neither are we beating the bushes for golfers," the former basketball scoring ace of the M.I. A.A. while at Alma College, said in announcing that a total of $1,387 worth of season tickets were sold, as of May 24.

Mr. and Mrs. Carey, accompanied by their daughters, Kitt, Nancy and Amy, will arrive late June 5 to officially open the course for the season. Since Apr. 25, Walt Henley, greenskeeper, has handled tickets during the week and the Careys have come from Midland for the weekends.

KEITH IS PROUD, and rightfully so, of the progress the golfing program at the municipal course has made over the past decade. During his first season in 1953, the sale of season tickets netted $558 and the course grossed $4,812.

During the 1963 season, the sale of season tickets brought in $3,921 and the operation grossed $12,285.

The best day at the course last year was July 5 when 133 day tickets were sold, he added.

The condition of the 3,171 yd. course, also promises to attract golfers, he continued.

"YOU KNOW WALT, he has practically "hand-nursed" every blade of grass on the entire course and as a result it is in perfect condition. The rain combined with the warm weather has given the greens, tees and fairways an excellent start for the beatings they will take, once the season gets underway," he commented.

Mr. Henley is marking his 13th year at the course. He has been assisted during recent weeks by Lloyd Kuebler and Rick Grunch.

Breakfast For Pistol Shooters

All area pistol shooters have been invited to the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club's June 14 (Sunday) breakfast pistol shoot, the club announced this week.

Pancakes and sausage will be served from 8 to 11 a.m. Shooters will be registered from 8 to 10 a.m.

THE SHOOT WILL be with 22 pistols at 25 yards. The winner in each group of five shooters will get a prize.

There is a $1 registration fee.

Grunch will be at the course all summer.

Day tickets at the course are $1.50 for nine holes and $2.50 for all day. However, there are season tickets available for both residents and non-residents if the golfers plan to spend any time at all at the course, Mr. Carey explained.

The prices follow: Resident: single, $20; double, $35; family, $40 and student (which includes 1964 high school graduates) $12.

NON-RESIDENTS tickets follow: single, $25; double, $40; family, $45 and student, $20.

Tickets may be purchased at the club house anytime.

Great Opportunity Offered By 'Yes' Vote on Millage

CHARLEVOIX AND Ellsworth school district voters go to the polls Monday with important decisions facing them. They are decisions which should not be weighed merely with dollar signs. Yet, they inevitably, will be.

In Charlevoix, voters have two major issues facing them. Ellsworth voters have only one.

THE QUESTION FACING Ellsworth, and one of the two on the ballot in Charlevoix are the same: Shall a special education district be established at a cost of a half-mill? To our notion this is one of the greatest opportunities that has been presented in years to the people of Charlevoix and Emmet counties and the Ellsworth school district.

The cost of the special education program will be $2.50 a year to the "average" taxpayer, and less to the majority. Let's, briefly, look at what this less-than-a-nickel-a-week will buy.

For years, for want of a better solution, society has tolerated its less fortunate members. They have become town jokes, though often kindly treated. Some were locked in closets and dark rooms by mothers. Others became emotional wrecks, leading themselves and families through a life of torture, simply because a speech defect couldn't be coped with.

Now, through progress in education and human understanding, these people can be trained—and often completely cured—so they can lead normal, responsible lives.

SPEECH DEFECTS and emotional problems can often be completely overcome by understanding teachers trained in new techniques and properly equipped. Students who have appeared to be "retarded" often catch up with the rest of their age-group after a few years, or months in special education programs.

Others, with definite physical handicaps soon learn they can compete with students who have no such problems.

And the others, who can never be completely "average", learn they have skills in certain areas and develop these so they can take their place in society at honorable jobs and live with dignity.

All of this adds up to a giant step toward ultimate democracy and equality. We will be the first school districts in northern Michigan with such a program . . . if voters go to the polls Monday and vote yes on the Special Education District proposal.

IT SHOULD BE remembered that all students, in all schools in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District will be eligible to participate in this program. This includes parochial students.

Charlevoix Tax Issue

In the Charlevoix School District voters are being asked to approve a 2.5 mill tax hike for operation. Because most of this is renewal of millage levied last year, the actual increase will only be three-quarters of a mill.

By approving the proposal, voters will be accepting a tax increase of $4 a year over last year, "average" homeowner's valuation . . . and less on the majority of homes. If the increase is defeated, this year's "average" local school tax bill will be $9 less than last year, and $13 less than it will be if the hike is approved.

Quite to their credit, school officials aren't promising to bring about any miracles if the millage is approved. Instead, they frankly admit the millage increase will do little more than allow the district to maintain its present high standards—and they are high. The additional millage—over last year—will make it possible for the district to eliminate a $54,000 deficit that was built up prior to the 1963-64 school year.

Though schoolmen have refused to come out and say so, if the millage does lose, some major reductions will appear necessary in the education program. Defeat of the 2.5-mill request would mean $50,000 less in the 1964-65 budget than the Board of Education has planned on.

THIS IS NEARLY one-eighth of the total budget. Cutting one-eighth out of the total school program could be a terrible blow to the future of our students. The Board of Education has promised the deficit will be eliminated in three years if the millage hike gets voter ok. We feel, the board should be held to this promise.

The board has also said it will do no further deficit spending . . . unless faced by a "crisis." Board members, queried by the Courier, could not define what would constitute a "crisis." The Courier does not foresee any crisis that would make it necessary for the Board of Education to spend more money on education than local taxpayers are willing to provide.

We do not feel a good education program can be weighed by dollars. And we would strongly disagree with voters if they failed to approve enough money for education. But we do feel the voter is the ultimate decision-maker. If voters want second-rate education, the Board of Education is obligated to abide by their decision.

With the Board of Education holding almost-regular "closed," executive, meetings, the Courier and the public can never be absolutely sure of what is going on. However, we are inclined to believe the board will keep faith with the voters.

Voters must keep in mind that the cost of education will continue to climb. Our society is bound to become more and more complex. As it does, our children require better and more involved training. This plain truth cannot be avoided.

However, it continues to gnaw at our conscience that taxpayers appear to be more willing to support government than schools. We complain about local school taxes but do little, or nothing, to effectively cut confiscatory federal and state taxes. This, to us, hardly appears consistent with our national goals. The nearer we move toward a completely literate, responsible society, the less need we should have for government—not more.

WITH THESE THOUGHTS in mind, the Courier urges an unqualified yes vote on both millage proposals that will appear on the ballot in the Charlevoix school district election Monday.

Romney Topples GOP Deadwood

(From the Arenac Independent)

DEMOCRATS . . . and we are afraid a good number of Republicans . . . seem to be hoping that Gov. George Romney will have become so sick of Michigan politics in 18 months that he will refuse to run for governor next year.

Democrats have good reason to hope he won't run. This businessman-turned politician has turned into one of the finest governors this state has ever been privileged to have. Through his intense desire to do right and accomplish good things he has been in the thinking of the professional, a bad politician at times. But the people like him and Democrats know they'll have a tough time beating him.

MOSS BACK Republicans want him out of the way, too. He is a thorn to their conscience. During 14 years they bucked everything without offering anything through party loyalty. They were voting against a Democratic governor.

Now they have a man of their own party in the governor's chair and they have to vote against him just because they are moss backs. They're voting but they don't like the position in which they are being placed.

IT HAS LONG BEEN our fear that these Senate Neanderthals preferred a Democratic governor. They liked being king of the walk in their own private club without having a leader over them. These followers of the chief moss back, Sen. Joe Smeeckens, have harmed Michigan as much as did the labor controlled Democratic administration that gave Michigan a black eye as an industrial state across the nation.

We have been proud that Rep. Walter Nakkula backed the governor. And we have been sorry that our Sen. Harold Hughes has stepped aside and let the tuckers smear the boss every time Romney needed a blocker.

DESPITE THE opposition of his own party and the Democrats, who for political reasons don't want Romney to accomplish much, George Romney has accomplished miracles for Michigan. A leading industrial recruiter has told us that his job has been made much easier. Instead of spending the first 15 to 30 minutes of an interview defending Michigan and attempting to erase the attitude that Michigan government hated business, doors are opened to him immediately and the first thing the industrialist wants to know is "What about this car, Romney?"

Romney has not done this through being a patsey to business. He has simply shown that Michigan government wants business. He has been as good for the laboring man. His tax program, which moss back Republicans and party-line Democrats succeeded in destroying, included the fairest tax break ever offered working men in Michigan.

We hope the Governor does not become discouraged. We hope he'll come back for another term which we're sure Michigan people will give him. We hope he gives us another two years of this fine service and possibly, just possibly, we'll have the sense to send people to the legislature who will give him some help.

'Our Beautiful Michigan'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This moving article, about a newcomer's impressions of Michigan, may be a bit late for Michigan Week, but Patti Penn, Charlevoix High School student, did such an outstanding job of writing it for the school paper, we felt it should be printed.)

BY PATTI PENN

Miss Avery leaned back in her chair and sighed. It was already 4:30 and she still had to put up the Michigan Week posters. It seemed this Friday, she'd never get away!

She tucked up a few pictures, mostly of fat robins with stick-like legs, and then decided to call it quits. She'd have to come in earlier Monday morning and finish the job.

WHY HAVE MICHIGAN WEEK anyway? In Canada, where she had lived before, they didn't have Ontario Week. Why was Michigan so special?

She picked up her purse and walked down the corridor, waving to Mr. Owens, the janitor, as she left the building.

The soft spring breeze refreshed her and she walked slowly, drinking in all of its fragrance. After a long winter it was good to see birds, leaves and grass again.

A bold robin hopped on the lawn, only a few feet from her, looking for worms. She stopped to watch. The bird glanced at her but didn't hesitate in his search. A chuckle escaped her when she recalled he was fat and his legs did look like sticks. Though the children had exaggerated a bit, they did have a basis for their work.

SHE WALKED ON, and then down to the shore of Lake Michigan. The lake was a roaring spectacle that day and a strong wind whipped at her hair and clothes.

The breakers charged in, their white manes flowing and then reared and leaped over the ems of the shore. Spray flew into the air as the wave met its death and the whole panorama began again.

The sight was moving and it took all Miss Avery's strength to tear herself away.

As she walked up her street, it seemed as if each thing were trying to outdo the other in beauty and fairly burst in pride that they were a part of Michigan. They sang it from the trees, bloomed it from the gardens, and roared it from the shore.

YES, MICHIGAN deserved her own week. Look around and see if you don't agree.

IT'S YOUR OPINION THAT COUNTS

CHS Students Express Views On Smoking's Health Threat

The staff of the Charlevoix High School newspaper, "Crimson Flush," asked students if they were smokers would they give up cigarettes because of the threat of cancer.

MIKE GALLAGHER — "I think that I would give them up eventually. It has been proven that this is harmful. It shortens your breath, and actually you are physically handicapped."

STEVE AGER — "Yes, because Mr. Ferrill would tell me to."

TERRY STEWART — "No. The danger of cancer doesn't bother me. If I've got it now, more won't hurt. If I were to quit (that is if I were a smoker) it would be because of the cost involved and to make "moochers" buy their own for once."

MARY GALLAGHER — "If I were a smoker, I'd give it up because it endangers your life and also shortens it. Besides, people who smoke are crazy anyway."

KAREN HEERES — "If I were a smoker, and I'm not, I would give up cigarettes because of the danger of cancer. I want to live as long as I can, and if there was a threat of cancer, I would give up smoking. Smoking is a filthy, costly habit and it encourages death quicker."

CHIP ALLISON — "I am not a smoker, so I can not say how hard it is to break the habit of smoking. I think I would stop. What's the use of living a short life when you could live a longer one? The $35 you would save would add up over the years for other things."

TED WIEDMAN — "Yes, because smoking is both a waste of money and health. It causes cancer, this is a fact!"

DARCY OLSEN — "No, I wouldn't give up cigarettes because if I were smoker, I'd smoke a pipe."

STEVE KROLL — "If I were a smoker, I'd know how to answer that question. But I'm not, so I won't.

BRUCE KROKEN (as quoted to Patti Penn) "I wouldn't smoke because I'm an athlete, but if I did, I'd give it up because I want to live as long as I can."

TERRY NEILSEN — "I would definitely give up smoking because I feel life is more important than wasting money on cigarettes and risking the danger involved."

Smoking Isn't A Sin?

TO THE EDITOR:

Our pastor asked us if we were smoking more and enjoying it less. That started an argument between my wife and me and I thought I better pass it along to you for your considerations.

I claim smoking isn't any sin because the Lord put everything here for a purpose and I can't think of anything tobacco is good for except smoking and chewing.

MY WIFE SAYS it is a sin and that if the Lord put everything here for a purpose a man's nose wasn't put here for a smoke stick.

While we were on religion, I put in a word for evolution, claiming that at one time we were all monkeys and just kept getting bigger and better till we turned into humans.

Mable said she wasn't sure we sprang from monkeys, but she thought we were sure going back there. She says God made man a pretty decent sort but he's going backward and getting worse all the time.

She says she knows some men, that if they had a few fleas, you couldn't tell the difference right now.

TO THE EDITOR:

We would like to tell you how much we appreciated the fine coverage of the Oral Polio Program which was held on May 17. Without your help in letting the public know we would not have had the success we did.

We were able to pay 8,604 in Charlevoix County on the 17th, and we had a make-up on the 21st so our County is almost 100 percent.

Kids . . . they do the darnedest things . . . Mrs. Gerald Gibbons was telling about the antics of her grandson, Nathan, the son of the Tom Gibbons. The family, earlier this spring, acquired a dog and, with him a sizable dog house . . . Recently the young man turned up missing; his mother and all the neighbors scoured the area and were about to call the police when someone thought to look in the doghouse . . . and there they found young Nathan and said pouch curled up to gether enjoying an afternoon siesta . . .

Did you get to the band concert last week? You missed a real treat if you didn't make it everyone will agree . . . The seventh grade band was making its initial appearance and, I'm sure, amazed everyone by their performance . . . We are fortunate to have someone like our own C. A. How he can teach youngsters with no music background to extract music from all those instruments I'll never quite understand . . . Then when you hear the Reserve outfit this week itself a top rating in the district (junior high division, that is, and the "big" band, as everyone calls them, you are left speechless . . . 'cause they can play like professionals . . . And when they appear before a packed house of doing, parents, grandparents, et al. they are at their best, and that best is terrific! . . . and to those people who ask what kids get out of this program I'd like to say, the joy of working and playing together and an appreciation of good music they'll carry with the rest of their days . . . plus all the things that go with such a program . . . like learning to share, to take orders, sharing knowledge by helping the newcomers . . . all sorts of things that will make these youngsters better citizens in the years ahead . . .

In the mail the other day a card from Gardiner, Mont., with news of the travels of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Morne Jr. . . . "Having a wonderful time . . . lots of sights . . . In case you don't remember, they're the couple who decided to take a covered wagon trip (modern styled) through the west with no specific route in mind . . .

EARLIER I HAD a card from the George Dringets who'd been in the west and were planning to spend the rest of the winter in Florida . . . I assume they're back in Milwaukee and will soon be traipsing north where George will be spending all his waking hours on the golf course, accompanied by a few other retired football coaches and athletic directors who spend their time in the north country . . .

Maybe my memory's too good . . . but not too long ago I tried to get the powers that be to invite former Gov. Williams to do the honors on this special occasion and was told repeatedly that it just wouldn't be the thing to do . . . "We must not make this a political rally" I believe was the answer I got . . . and I'd just like to add "My, how times have changed!" . . . and if my calendar serves me correctly, this is an election year, too! . . .

If you're thinking of going to the New York World's Fair, don't be in a hurry to the advice given by the Carl Kohlers who just returned from there . . . There are scads of buildings under construction . . . many exhibits are not completed . . . the fair people are still getting their bearings and most people are as confused as the visitors . . . However, there are many exhibits, especially those from foreign countries and some of the industrial exhibits that are fantastic . . . beyond belief . . . And this bit from several people who've been there . . . Don't go on a weekend if you can help it . . . And wear walking shoes . . . And, if you have a choice, wait till later in the year if you hope to see everything the fair has to offer . . .

SUMMER'S coming, and you're all going to be mighty busy . . . I know . . . but won't you call me with your news . . . One of the penalties you pay for living in Charlevoix in the summer is scads of company. So won't you share your news with Courier readers . . .

Take care, mind your manners and watch out for the youngsters now that school's to be out . . .

Cycle Rider Mows 'Em Down

Who ever expected anyone to fill their deer tag quota for six years all in one swat with a motorcycle?

Through a small miracle a Harlequin man is thanking his lucky stars these days that he isn't seeing them.

RIDING A MOTORCYCLE north of Boon, Mich., late one night two weeks ago, he slammed into two adult does and a buck. All three deer came out of the crash dead.

The motorcycle rider? Not much more than a scratch.

The moral: Watch out for deer on the highways, you might not be as lucky. Or, maybe, better yet deer better watch out for motorcycles.

Conservation officers later found three unborn fawns were also claimed by the accident.

The Self Destroying Emotion--Hatred Hurts the Hater

By Rev. H. E. Kohn

Luther Burbank, the American naturalist and experimenter with fruits, vegetables and flowers, was once conversing with a friend concerning observations Burbank had made of the outstanding characteristics of plants, animals and children. He said that the chief trait of monkeys is their inability to tear things to pieces. They have a deep-seated impulse to destroy and will pull apart anything they are strong enough to demolish—food, magazines, books. They are blind to worth; they cannot distinguish the value of one thing from another. Then the naturalist went on to liken gossips and critics to these creatures, declaring that they possess this monkey characteristic; they enjoy tearing people and reputations apart. And, like monkeys performing at a zoo, the gossips and critics usually have an audience who are bemused at their antics.

HATRED IS AN emotion that makes a monkey of man. The object of hatred is destruction. Whether we consider the tiny seeds of hostility that are found in feelings of irritation and revulsion, or we think of the full-blown malevolence expressed through murderous rage or in a wholesale war, hatred spreads ruin. In its most spectacular form it kills people, and in more subtle ways it ruins reputations, erects barriers between individuals and nations, destroys co-operation and worthwhile social interaction. But especially, hatred harms the person who harbors it.

The New Testament First Epistle of John declares: "He who hates his brother is in the darkness, and does not know where he is going, because the darkness has blinded his eyes." Hatred is blindness, self-imposed.

Reformed Church National Meet

The annual meeting of the Reformed Church in America is being held at the Inn at Black Hill Falls, Penn., June 3-10.

One of the issues facing the meeting will be the church's proposed union with the Presbyterian Church in the United States. A joint committee of the two churches has been studying the merger proposal.

IN 1963 THE Reformed Church's 521 congregations contributed $27,067,778 to benevolent and congregational causes.

would destroy another's hand would shatter his own heart.

IT IS ALWAYS SO. Hate hurts the hater as well as the hated, but it keeps a person so intent upon seeing and punishing the evil in another that one is oblivious to what is happening to oneself.

Every schoolteacher has encountered a student who stubbornly refuses to prepare his lessons because he dislikes the teacher or hates school. He believes that he is defeating the teacher and the school administration if he refuses to study. He may have some subjective effect upon the classroom and the school, but the effect upon the pupil is positively ruinous. He cuts himself off from all manner of appreciations and opportunities that only a sound education can afford him. Thus he punishes himself, defeats himself and becomes his own victim.

The hostile person kills his marriage by belittling, disparaging, nagging his partner, but it is his marriage as well as his mate's that he is hurting. The employee or employer who is ready to take offense and to exaggerate little disputes, quick to sulk, and hasty to retaliate pollutes the atmosphere of his own daily work with his attitude. He then must live in that suffocating influence. But he will blame others, not seeing himself as being at fault. Hatred blinds us to how much we hurt ourselves.

HATRED RESTRICTS our outreach. This blinding sickness makes shut-ins of all who contract it. They become isolated from all the good that is in the lives of those they intensely dislike. If we moderately dislike a person we may be almost indifferent to him, but if we dislike him intensely enough we begin to take a perverse interest in him, in his faults, failures, and downfall. But at the same time we do not like to learn of his virtues, successes and triumphs. We ignore them if we can. Thus a whole range of experience with others is closed to us, that of seeing, admiring and emulating the best in another person.

Rudyard Kipling had a brother-in-law who was a most likable man, and Kipling and this in-law were good friends. But they became life-long enemies when the brother-in-law drove his wagon in such a way as to cause Kipling to fall off his bicycle. Both became shut off from the good in the life of the other.

Gilbert and Sullivan of light opera fame, first had a falling out over the price of a carpet and were never on friendly terms again although they continued to collaborate on the composition of operas. They were shut-ins, isolated from the great good in each other by their malice.

Two of the greatest baseball heroes of all time, who played on the same team, had a misunderstanding over a remark made by one concerning the dress the other's daughter was wearing. For years they did not speak to each other excepting in the performance of duty. Only near the end of their careers, when one of them was taken critically ill, did they reconcile. In the meantime they suffered a hate-blindness that kept each from seeing the other for the great man he was.

HOW MANY adventures in friendship and appreciation we miss because we are restricted by a hostility-induced blindness.

Hatred impairs health. Clinical findings have long since proved that inner tensions, as well as organic diseases, precipitate serious health crises. Malice, grudges, dwelling on past slights, cruelties and injustices, are among the tensions that often cause or worsen high blood pressure, heart disorders and ulcers. (It is isn't what you do, it's what you feel that causes ulcers; it's what you think that causes ulcers.) This is because man is neither a body nor a soul, but a soul that is using a body. And a soul can abuse as well as use the body God has given it. When we entertain evil attitudes for a long enough period, they at last annoy and distress the body. Hatred is one of these evil attitudes. Hatred is a vicious boomerang that, when thrown, gathers momentum and returns to injure the person who uses it, destroying his health and happiness.

Hatred may start as an occasional impulse, BUT IT EASILY BECOMES AN EMOTIONAL HABIT. This hostile person seldom gives such thought to the significance of his feelings, his thoughts, his utterances. He has practiced the art of harsh faultfinding so long that expressions of violent dislike become automatic ways of releasing his own inner tensions and unhappiness. When his hostility is through with one target it so's up another, because hatred simply must express itself on something.

Hatred has been likened to alcoholism. When alcoholism seizes a man he will drink whiskey if it's available, or gin, or rum, and if nothing else is on hand even wood alcohol will be consumed. So, when a person gets the hatred habit, he will hate his real enemies, and then when his hateful impulses remain unsatisfied, he reaches for other objects of hostility. He may become hypercritical of those near him, his wife, children, employers, employees, public servants. He belittles his neighbors and disparages the successes of his acquaintances. He reads wrong motives into the behavior of his associates and is slow to forgive them. He intimidates those he can and humiliates others. Those of other races, religions, nations and political parties supply him with hate objects. First he has the hate habit, then the hate habit has him. Hatred begins in little ways, but how it grows!

TWO THOUSAND YEARS ago Jesus taught that the world can be redeemed only through love. Twenty centuries have not erected that truth. They have illustrated it and magnified it. An age of nuclear weapons, conceived in hate and born in war, makes Christ's truth more apparent and imperative than ever. Once our Teacher was the kindly, loving Nazarene. Now our instructors are Nagasaki and Hiroshima. The clouds of atomic dust have faded over obliterated cities, but the lesson remains: hatred destroys individuals and nations; it ruins ourselves and others.

Love or perish.

ONLY THE BEGINNING

For all those who truly seek wisdom this is "Only The Beginning" time. It's time for rewards but also time for setting the sails to cope with the high winds ahead. Commencement to serious minds can be little less than frightening. Have these young people learned well to do their duty? Are they qualified to accept prosperity? Are they fortified for adversity? Have they learned about God? If they have not learned these things well, then they have learned but little. Opportunities are in abundance for those who are determined. Commencement is only the first round on a ladder that reaches to the stars for all who will but apply themselves. Then, young graduates, be of great faith and unlimited perseverance. For He said you have only "to seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you."

Where Bass Hit On Every Cast

BY GLEN SHEPPARD
Courier Editor

Smallmouth bass fishing in the Beaver Island group can be fast-paced as perch fishing used to be in Round Lake.

You run into schools where you get a take just about every cast. These are trophy smallmouth bass... prized by many as North America's fightingest fresh water game fish.

Rambling with sheep

THERE IS, of course, more to a trip to the Beaver Islands than fishing.

The ride from Charlevoix to St. James in Ken Staley's 19-foot outboard is a real experience for someone who has refused to get in a boat bigger than he can nuzzle or row since he stumbled off his last troop ship.

When Beaver Island comes in view the barren beaches of sandy bay present a dramatic panorama that spurs your imagination into high gear. The island group's history almost comes alive as you churn north on the east shore and into St. James harbor.

The beautiful natural harbor, like almost all others on Lake Michigan—except Charlevoix—is feeling the effects of record low water. There was only one pleasure craft at the public dock when Ken tied up his boat and went hunting for someone to sell him some gasoline.

However, there is water in the harbor, and it should be enough for power boats and most sailing ships.

Once you're actually on land, the old date tradition that grips the island in winter forces itself on your mind and makes you shudder.

If you're a golfer, a chat with Matt Melville at the Beaver Island nine hole golf course will be in order. Matt tells us he was (Continued on Page 2)

Congressman Victor A. Knox reports $15,000 has been appropriated for a study of improving the wharves in the Pine River channel.

City council several months ago asked Knox to arrange such a study. Councilmen feel the north pier should be longer and needs considerable repairs.

THE ARMY CORPS OF Engineers is now studying the pier and channel.

City, Island Welcome Outdoor Writers

Will Sample State's Best Bass Fishing

The men who keep tabs on Michigan's north country for thousands of city-bound sportsmen will make Charlevoix and Beaver Island their headquarters this weekend.

An estimated 60 members of the Michigan Outdoor Writers Assn. (MOWA) start arriving in Charlevoix this morning (Thursday) for their annual summer meeting.

It is the MOWA's 20th anniversary. Charles Welch, regional Conservation Dept. director, reports this, plus the romance of Beaver Island will make it the best attended meeting in MOWA history.

Though the MOWA meeting really belongs to Beaver Island, Charlevoix is doing its best to make the outdoor writers know they are welcome and that their efforts on behalf of the north country are appreciated. Chamber of Commerce Secretary Dean Davenport said.

The Charlevoix Chamber will host the outdoor writers at a cocktail party on the island Friday evening. Sheriff Glenn Rose will travel across the lake with the writers and make them all honorary deputies.

The Beaver Island Boat Co. is transporting the outdoor writers from Charlevoix to Beaver Island, and back, free. The first, and probably largest, contingent of MOWA'ers will leave Charlevoix for the island at 1:30 p.m. today.

MOWA MEMBERS will stay at Central Michigan University's facility on the island.

Len Barnes, MOWA president, and editor of the Automobile Club's magazine "Motor News" reports the four-day program will be highlighted by bass fishing on Garden Island.

In addition to exploring the angling possibilities and history of Beaver Island, the outdoor writers will elect new officers and dispose of other club affairs at a brief business meeting.

New Conservation Dept. director Ralph McMullan will address the group. Harry H. Whitley, publisher of the Presque Isle County Advocate (Rogers City) and new Conservation Commission chairman, will attend the meeting as a MOWA member.

ARCHIE LAFRENIERE, of the Beaver Island Civic Assn., official MOWA host, reports arrangements have been made to transport the writers to bass hot spots on Garden Island.

Eldon Robbins of Evinrude Outboard Motors will provide three boats to carry the writers to Garden Island, Welch reports. The three boats will cross Lake Michigan from Charlevoix Friday morning.

LaFreniere also reports guides will be provided writers who want to fish Lake Genesareth for pike and Fox Lake for brook trout.

A Bit of Daring For Festival

The Army's "Golden Knights" parachute jumping team will perform at the Venetian Festival Saturday afternoon, July 25. Chamber of Commerce Secretary Dean Davenport reports.

The daring stunt parachutists will perform before the Venetian Festival crowd, Davenport said. The hopes they will make their jumps into Round Lake, where most of the festival's activity will be centered.

Special Education Assured

Charlevoix Gets Ok on 2.5 Mills

Charlevoix and area voters turned out Monday to solidly support increased school taxes.

In the Charlevoix Public School District voters approved a 2.5 operating millage levy by 329 votes to 175. Approval of the millage for three years will mean a three-quarters mill increase in school taxes over last year.

THE MOST resounding support for school taxes came from throughout Charlevoix and Emmet counties on the .5 mill request for special education. It was approved by 1,872 voters. Voting against the special education proposal were 902 voters.

The special education tax received more support from Charlevoix voters than the local operating request. In Charlevoix 384 persons voted for the half-mill levy and 139 against it.

On Beaver Island 47 voted for the special education plan and none against it.

Potosky school district does not vote on the special education proposal until July 6. However, Intermediate School District Superintendent Robinson said he is confident Potosky voters will support the proposition.

ROBINSON SAID approval of the proposal means the Intermediate district is the first in northern Michigan to establish a special education program.

City Softball Leagues Plan For Summer

Organization of City Softball leagues begins tonight (Thursday). Deano Davenport, recreation director, reports.

Between today and Monday the Men's League, Peanut League, Junior League and Bopper League will hold organization meetings and draft players.

DAVENPORT SAID again this year all persons wanting to play will be put on a team.

He also issued a call for umpires and managers. Several men are needed as managers in the Junior League. Umpires are needed in all leagues. Umpires are paid.

Persons interested in managing teams, or umpiring should contact Davenport at 2389.

The Men's League holds its first meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in City Hall. Managers and league officials will draft players. Men who have not been on a team in the past can sign up by calling 2833 before the meeting.

THE PEANUT LEAGUE, for boys 8 through 12, holds tryouts tomorrow at the City Softball field starting at 7 p.m. All boys who did not play last year are to report for the tryouts, Davenport said. Plans are for six Peanut League teams, with three or four teams for younger players in the minor leagues. Managers of the Cardinals, Dodgers, Tigers, Cubs, Braves and Pirates will be on hand to draft players.

Boys 13 through high school will try out for Junior League teams Saturday, 7 p.m., at the City Softball field. All new players, and those who graduated from the Peanut League last year should report.

Bopper League managers meet Monday at 7 p.m. in City Hall. Men interested in joining a team should call 2389. Davenport reports the Bopper League is becoming one of the most popular in the city.

Softball leagues will begin play June 18.

Charlevoix Businessmen Hail Olsen's Food Store

Olsen's Food Store and Shopping Center on Antrim St. will turn the tide for Charlevoix's downtown business district, the Chamber of Commerce retail committee predicted this week.

Chairman Dan Genett, after polling committee members, said they foresee Jerry Olsen's $300,000-plus investment cementing together the business district and giving it new vigor.

GENETT FRANKLY pointed out there has been considerable concern in recent years about businesses scattering out of town and local people shopping outside.

Now the committee feels Olsen's has eliminated this threat.

The Olsen Food Store and Shopping Center, Genett said, will attract more outsiders to shop in Charlevoix. It will also give local merchants confidence in the future of the downtown district and inspire them to improve their facilities and inventory.

All of this, in turn, will bring more local shoppers back to Charlevoix and attract attention from neighboring communities, leading to their residents shopping here, he added.

JERRY OLSEN Monday said he expects to have the 10,000 square foot store open in July. It will not only be one of the largest super markets in northern Michigan, but also the most unique, he added.

The feature Olsen feels will make the store stand out from all others is a stone fireplace, complete with oven and spit. A cook is being sought to barbecue, bake and roast on the fireplace during store hours.

Olsen's block and a half development will include several smaller stores in a shopping center complex. The smaller shops will be along the retaining wall of the mill. A beauty shop and King's Burger restaurant are tentatively planned up to use some of the space. Negotiations are continuing with others.

The former Army Reserve building is being converted into a laundry and dry cleaners. The remaining portions of the Hooker Garage will be used for warehouse and storage.

ALL STORE AND shopping center employees, Olsen said, will park on the top of the hill at the corner of State and Hurhut. He added that employees of other downtown businesses will be welcome to use the State St. Hurhut lot to make more space available for customer parking.

A 100 car customer parking lot will be located on the corner of Bridge and Antrim streets.

Olsen, who next week celebrates his 38th year as a Traverse City businessman, said his Charlevoix store promotion will include a line saying "Shop Downtown Charlevoix."

For Charlevoix Booster

Adventure at Work or Play

Whether he's sailing his schooner on Lake Michigan or drawing a comic strip for U. S. and overseas newspapers, Keith Collins thrives on adventure.

And to artist - writer - sailor Collins, Charlevoix is the finest harbor on the Great Lakes.

COLLINS SPENT most of the past week at the municipal docks on Round Lake. His 45 foot schooner was the only sailing ship at the docks.

While he's here Collins sketched panels for his internationally syndicated comic strip "Kevin the Bold." Kevin is a 16th Century European adventurer who is constantly involved in daring combat or intrigue.

A large man, with bronzed face and sun bleached chin whiskers, Collins might be cast as a swash-buckling character in his own comic strip.

HOWEVER, SINCE the romantic life of Kevin the Bold is out of vogue in the 20th Century, Collins gets his inspiration for the comic strip by sailing the Great Lakes.

Adventure on the inland seas is a family affair for the Collins clan.

Early this week Mrs. (Theresa) Collins and 13 year old twin sons Kevin and Glenn came aboard the schooner to set sail for New York.

With Mrs. Collins and the two boys was grandson Brett, 2. The Collins make their home in Ada, near Grand Rapids. Collins, with the aid of two temporary crewmen sailed the schooner to Charlevoix before the boys could leave school.

In the March issue of "Yachting" magazine Collins wrote a story giving high praise to Charlevoix's harbor. The section of the story on Charlevoix was reprinted in the Courier. He is a regular contributor to Yachting.

CHARLEVOIX GETS Collins' blessing as the best harbor on the big lakes because it has plenty of water (a real rarity this year), stores and recreation facilities are near the docks and marinas offer unequalled services for facilities.

Other harbors, lacking these natural and service advantages lure boatsmen by offering "extras" Charlevoix does not have, he points out.

★ Bass on Every Cast

likely place on Garder or Hog Island.

Then the bass start hitting! It happened to Ken and I about 4 p.m. We were wading in thigh deep water of a small Garden Island Bay. A bass took my metal spoon.

FOR SOME REASON Ken instinctively knew, "You've found a school of 'em!" The rest is just a matter of time.

In the next hour, or 90 minutes, bass—ranging from 11½ to 16 inches—virtually took every cast we made. When you didn't at least get a strike on a cast it was so unusual you remarked, "Hey, I didn't get a hit that time."

With his rod almost constantly throbbing as a bass tried to take his spoon, Ken's face wore a grin there could be no mistaking for anything but heaven on earth.

The best way to describe it is that it was about like catching a fish when the run is at its peak. Each time it didn't seem for years, only these were hard-baiting smallmouth bass.

OUR FIRST COUPLE hours at Garden Island almost had me convinced I was mixed up in another one of those fairy tale fishing stories. We poked around in bays, with Ken rather disinterestedly casting into likely looking spots.

Now I understand why Ken didn't get worked up until we hit a school of fish.

To find water that looks like it should have fish in it and stay with it is a waste of time. Look for the schools. Keep moving around until you find one.

When you do, you've reached a fisherman's heaven.

Ken requires a sworn oath from a local newspaper editor not to reveal the exact location of the best bays and spoons. But if you get out a Michigan Conservation Department of Charlevoix County you ought to be able to pick out, a likely place on Garder or Hog Island.

AS TO TACKLE, spinning outfits are the most practical. I made a mistake in not taking by ultralight Garcia-Mitchell spinning rig. But its larger brother served nobly... given if the lighter tackle would have been more exciting.

If you have good quality tackle, two to six pound test monofilament line is plenty adequate. Anything heavier would be out of place.

Spoons and plugs were the ticket last weekend. Ken reports worms and spinners are often better.

Waders are also needed. You'll want to wade the shoreline in the bays, casting into shallow water.

A FLY ROD would probably be satisfactory. However, it would be a bit cumbersome to handle when the bass were taking every cast. And you might not be able to handle large enough lures on it.

Getting to the islands is the number one problem... which is probably why the fishing is so good.

Until taking the trip with Ken I wasn't very prone to heed warnings about not using boats smaller than 19 foot. But even in last weekend's "calm" Lake Michigan weather it didn't take long to convince a canoeist that crossing the big lake should be left to stout boats, manned by able men.

CMU To Award Degree to Ten From County

Ten Charlevoix county students are among 717 expected to receive degrees Friday from Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

Marilyn J. Novak of Charlevoix, is one of 71 to graduate with honors. The county's other CMU grads are:

From Boyne City: Agnes M. Darbee, Robert W. Healey, Patricia A. LaLone and Linda L. Northup.

From Boyne Falls, Frank M. Skop.

From Charlevoix, Vicki A. Perkins.

From East Jordan, Richard J. Kraemer, Judith A. Wycoff and Loren L. Wycoff.

a pro at the Chicago Club course in Charlevoix 54 years ago.

The right-at-home atmosphere of Grace Coles' dining room will make your first meal after the boat ride one of the best tasting in months.

Because Ken couldn't find any one to man the waterfront gas pumps, he tied two six gallon tanks up to Dick LaFreniere's general store. The vision of carrying them back the block-and-a-half to the docks was plainly a gruesome one. Apparently LaFreniere understood the pained expression. He loaned us a truck.

The two-hour trip back across the lake from Garden Island to Charlevoix after dark is a full-fledged adventure in Ken's outboard boat. When the first beam of light from Charlevoix is sighted you owe a word of thanks to the Michigan Aeronautics Dept. for it is the new airport beacon.

From the seat of Ken's boat, a fully-lit freighter in the middle of Lake Michigan at 10:30 p.m. looks to a novice like the Petoskey waterfront.

YOU MIGHT FIND it interesting to stop at the shop of the Gulls in the Weather-vane Inn and visit with Mrs. Larry Wallace (pictured above). If she viding some kind of privacy for yachtsmen. The boats, he explains, are literally homes for those aboard. Because there is no provision for keeping non-boaters off the docks, yachtsmen commonly find their privacy rudely interrupted by curious onlookers who peep in the windows.

He also says the City Council's plan to build showers should be a real inducement to lure more yachtsmen to Charlevoix. However, he feels a moderate fee should be charged for the showers. This would prevent public bathing.

Have you ever seen 7,000 grown men cry? You'd think success would make them happy, but ever since Mustang came out, seven thousand Ford Dealers all over the country have been weeping and wringing their hands. They can't get as many Mustangs as they would like. All this would upset us, too, except it's happened to us before. You see, this was the hottest sales year in Ford Division history even before Mustang came out. At the beginning of the model-year, dealers couldn't get enough of our big, hot Super Torque Ford Hardtops (sales up 54%)... or luxurious Thunderbirds (sales up 68%). Falcon sales are almost as big as Chevy II and Valiant combined. Fairlane continues to be a leader in its field. So, even though some people would like us to put all our plants to work on Mustang, we can't let down our hundreds of thousands of Ford, Thunderbird, Falcon and Fairlane lovers. Why don't you come see what all the shouting's about? Ask your Ford Dealer for a test drive. (You might even get him to smile.)

Can a tire dealer be honest with you and still stay in business?

Competition in the tire business is murder. It makes a lot of tire dealers resort to almost any tactics just to get you into the store.

Tactics like "come-on" advertising.

They'll advertise a great-sounding tire for under ten dollars. And then tell you what's the matter with it. Once they've got you where they want you. On the premises. Then they proceed to sell you a more expensive tire. Which was the whole idea in the first place.

All of which is very legal. But not very nice. Are we any better?

We also advertise an under-ten-dollar tire. (As good as any. A little better than most.)

But we tell you what it's for right in our ads.

It's for cars that are used only for in-town activities. Such as going to church. Shopping. Visiting neighbors. Dropping husbands off at railroad stations. And the like.

We don't insinuate in our advertising that our under-ten-dollar tires are great buys for everyone. (They're not.) For the average driver who now and again drives at turnpike speeds, for hours at a time, ten-dollar tires can prove to be a dead loss. That's the truth.

Further, should you come into our store with one of our ads in your hand, there won't be any unpleasant surprises waiting for you. We'll tell you the same thing in person that we've told you in our ads. Even more.

We'll fill you in on the differences between 1st line, 2nd line and 3rd line tires. We'll explain the differences between first quality and second quality. We'll tell you how to use original equipment tires as the standard to help you judge tire quality for yourself without the help of a salesman. (Even our own.)

And we'll tell you to stop falling for tire ads that seem to promise you the moon. (You're not going to get it. Especially for ten dollars.)

Yes, a tire dealer can be honest with you—and still stay in business.

(We're doing OK. Without bait advertising.) Take care of yourself.

Danger from Pesticides Over-Rated

By ED REBMAN
Extension Agent

BOYNE CITY — Be careful with pesticides, especially around children. But don't overlook the 1,000 other dangerous chemicals that are available around the home long before DDT and other sprays came on the market.

Pesticides rank well below such potent "killers" as aspirin, bleach, disinfectants, certain patent medicines, drain cleaners, kerosene, and others. Total deaths from pesticides have been running between 80 and 150 a year—all from improper application or handling of compounds containing insecticides.

NONE OF THESE deaths can be attributed to the consumption of pesticides — contaminated food.

Extreme care should be taken with all poisons, especially those that are so familiar that some folks forget their danger, says Rebman.

The Michigan Department of Health says most of the injury or death cases among children coming in contact with pesticides can be avoided simply by keeping the chemicals under lock and key. Care should also be taken to keep children out of reach of the poisons while being used, empty containers should be disposed of safely.

Gordon Guver, chairman of the Michigan State University's entomology department adds this note:

"RESEARCH HAS virtually eliminated the danger of residues from correctly applied pesticides. About $2 million is spent screening each material to make sure it's safe before it is used. Less than one out of every 2,000 insecticides that are ever developed ever reaches the market.

"But all of this effort is wasted if the farmer or homeowner is not careful in his use of these chemicals."

Legion To Pick Officers

The annual election of Leslie T. Shapton American Legion Post officers was postponed from June 2 to June 16, due to lack of attendance. Commander Harry Pearsall reports.

Pearsall urged members to attend the 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 16 meeting at the Legion Hall on Garfield Ave. near the high school.

Belvedere Changes Chiefs, Rues Lack of Spring Rains

With the 1964 golfing season underway, and the Michigan Amateur Golf Tourney scheduled at the Belvedere Golf course June 24, the grounds crew is completing changes in the course and keeping it in shape.

"Right now our problem is lack of moisture," Max Gennett, superintendent of the course, explained. Gennett is beginning his first year as superintendent.

Gennett REPLACES Frank Supernaw, veteran superintendent, who retired last fall after overseeing the course since a part of it was built on his former farm in 1926.

"Most people feel that we've had a lot of rain but it hasn't been enough to make up for all the dry weather last year and the lack of snow last winter," Gennett explained. "We've been sprinkling since last week because dry spots are appearing almost daily on the course."

This is just one of the headaches of maintaining a 6,615 yard golf course constructed on rolling hills located in Charlevoix and Marion townships just south of the city limits.

The course, which overlooks both Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix, is one of the most beautiful in the Midwest. Already a favorite with all golfers who visit Charlevoix, several changes were made this spring to make it even more of a challenge, Gennett said.

IN THE PAST, tees were wide and shallow, he explained. However the trend in recent years has been to make them narrower and longer thus adding a little yardage to the holes. This has been done on the fourth, sixth, tenth, thirteenth and sixteenth tees.

He went on to explain that though golfers may tee off from any place on the tee, in tournament play they must shoot from the back of the tee. This change has added approximately 60 yards to the overall yardage of the course.

Other changes include a new sand trap on the No. 10 fairway in front of the green which Gennett predicts golfers will find a real hazard and tricky to play; a new sand trap about midway in the No. 5 fairway and the enlargement of traps on No. 8 and No. 14 fairways. The latter two have been enlarged and extended to the areas in front of the greens. Golfers should find these changes real hazards," he commented.

Par for the course is 72 or 36 on both the front and back nine. The longest holes are the 9th (542 yards) and the 10th (514 yards) with each having a par of five as to the shorter 9th (454 yards) and the 15th (472 yards). Shortest are the 8th which is 136 yards and the 14th which is 151 yards. Both have a par of three.

TOURNAMENT PLAY means a long day for the workmen, Gennett said. "We usually work from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. but while the tournament is on we're out at 5 a.m. in order to have everything ready. They play until dark during the first days of the tournament so everything has to be done early in the morning before the day's play begins," he said.

A crew of six keeps the course in shape from early spring until late fall. Dean of the workmen is Clifford Gennett who has been at the course since it was started in 1926. He is the father of the new superintendent.

Others are Richard Gennett, Doyle Warner, Gary Brodin and Larry Brodin. Warren Schools is in charge of night sprinkling.

Maintenance of the course includes a variety of chores including an operation of a four-inch well and pump/leg station for the club provides all its own water which must be enough to keep 30 sprinklers going during the dry season plus several types of mowers. Among these are three greens mowers, one tee machine, a whirlwind for the roughs and a 5-gang fairway mower. Most of the equipment must be returned to the new shop nightly. The shop is a 24x36 ft. structure built last fall.

A "JACK OF ALL TRADES" best describes not only Gennett but all his workers, for their duties are many and varied. "But everyone has his own 'specialty' and together we make up a team that attempts to keep the course in top

Frank Supernaw (left) who had served as superintendent of the Belvedere Golf course from the time it was constructed in the mid-1920's until he retired last fall, discusses the problems of maintaining the course with his successor, Max Gennett.

EDITOR'S NOTES

It's Time for Public To Evaluate Goldwater

YOU WON'T FIND any mention of it in the daily press, or news wire services, but Sen. Barry Goldwater has them stumped.

The big city papers have done their darndest to make Goldwater look like a madman and scoundrel. Whenever possible they tore his statements apart to make him look like a monster. When they couldn't find some way to twist his words, they either ignored him or buried him on the inside pages.

YET, IN SPITE of this, the U. S. public refused to be led a subtle line of hogwash about Goldwater. They dug into the text of his statements and found he wasn't a brute.

Enough of them did their homework so that last week it appeared certain Goldwater will be the GOP's candidate for president.

If you are one who checked the facts on Goldwater's position, it is likely you've noticed an undercurrent that indicates he has doubts about his ability and desire to be president.

My research points in this direction: Goldwater doesn't really think he is capable of filling the presidential job . . . and he doesn't really want to. So ask yourself, could any honest man really feel qualified to be President of the United States. Wouldn't it take a fool or blat-ed egotist to think he would do all the right things in the world's most responsible position?

SUPPRESSING HIS personal doubts and fears, Goldwater was pressed into seeking the nomination because thousands of loyal Americans demanded that he do so. This speaks well of him.

The number one question now is can he be elected president? All the odds say, no.

The same odds were against him getting out of the woods in bidding for the nomination. The newspapers did their best to make him out a threat to America. Yet he continues to pile up followers.

There are those who will sneer. His "followers", they suggest, are radicals who want to starve little children. Nuts!

IS DONALD E. HOLBROOK, Jr. a radical? No. Holbrook is a circuit court judge in Clare County and was the GOP's nominee for State Supreme Court justice in 1962. Holbrook is district chairman of the Michigan Draft Goldwater Committee.

You can get on the Goldwater team by writing him at 109 W. Fifth St., Clare.

There are thousands of Goldwater boosters — who like their idol — are sane, deep feeling, sensitive men. They have not been misled by attempts to confuse Goldwater's philosophy.

with those who would persecute Negroes, indiscriminately cut off social security and welfare benefits and incite nuclear havoc.

Instead they know Goldwater as a man deeply dedicated to individual dignity and freedom. One who believes democracy's strength rests with every man demanding his utmost quota of liberty and accepting full responsibility for himself and his country.

THEY DO NOT ACCEPT the idea that Goldwater is an "agent" because he is sick of seeing America pushed around by bearded frauds like Castro, doesn't believe in having American youths die in a hopeless jungle war and detests lazy people reaping government rewards paid for by others who are willing to work.

Now that millions of responsible Americans have shown they consider Goldwater a reasonable man whom they would like to see president, the only hurdle standing in his way is whether the big city press lords will call off their orders to twist his image and let the real Goldwater story go through.

Goldwater may not be elected president. He may not be the best man for the job. But let's hope voters are given a fair opportunity to evaluate him.

OUTDOOR RAMBLING

With GLEN SHEPPARD

THERE SEEMS to be a rash of complaints around Charlevoix about the fishing.

The trouble isn't so much that the fish aren't biting. It is that there isn't time enough to go fishing. You hear this complaint from Bob Winchester, Bill Fochtman, Irv Drost, John Michael and others a newspaper editor's path crosses.

ACTUALLY, THEY haven't missed much since the bass season opened June 1. Due to cold weather, bass fishing has generally been slow in the immediate Charlevoix area. This is confirmed by Julius O'Brien, Conservation officer, and Don Peterson, district fisheries biologist.

As soon as the water warms up a bit (which could be by the time this is printed) the bass and bluegill fishing should get real good. Chances are bass started spawning in shallow water before the cold weather struck. The cold spell ran them off their beds.

So, with a few hot days, bass should really swarm back onto spawning pockets. The fishing could be as good as ever and far better than usual.

MEARLE SCOTT at Ironton reports bass are being taken in the South Arm on crawlers just over the dropoff and on trolled spinners. But, during the cold weather, the shallow water, shoreline, bass fishing has been poor.

Peterson says this should be an outstanding year for bass fishing in the South Arm and all of Lake Charlevoix. Conservation Dept. studies show the lake's legal-size bass population is at a peak this year.

With warmer weather, Peterson recommends fishermen try casting into shoal water and on to rocky ledges. Live bait or artificials will do the trick. Evening fly and popper fishing should also be exciting.

Cold weather, Peterson explains, slows down fish activity and curbs their appetite. But as the water gets warmer, reaching its daily high temperature in the evening, the bass will demand more food and go looking for it.

HE ALSO POINTS out Wulloon Lake remains one of Michigan's outstanding bass lakes, though it has gained recent fame as a trout lake.

The most neglected bass fishing in the area, Peterson feels, is along the Lake Michigan shoreline in both directions from Charlevoix. There are literally dozens of places along the big lake that are loaded with lunker smallmouths. Peterson suggests fishermen look for areas that have a lot of big boulders in six or eight feet of water. To cash in on the untapped Lake Michigan smallmouth fishing, Peterson says, anglers must get out and do some exploring.

O'Brien, area conservation officer, reports bass are spawning on small lakes ahead of those on Lake Charlevoix. He says most of the county's many little lakes should be good. Nightcrawlers and floating plugs are O'Brien's choice of lures.

Bass fishing on small lakes will reach its peak this or next weekend, if O'Brien's guess is accurate.

OF COURSE, some of the best bass catches will continue to come from the Pine River channel into Round Lake and off the Railroad Bridge into Lake Charlevoix.

LAKE TROUT BONANZA — Richard Bergmann of Charlevoix with two 10-pound lake trout taken from Torch Lake near Alden. They are the 12th and 13th lake trout Bergmann has taken from Torch Lake this year. He trolls with a wire line. The Conservation Dept. reports frequent catches of from three to 10 pound lake trout from Torch Lake, and some angling up to 15 pounds. The department says there are 20 pound, and possibly bigger, lake trout in the lake. Trolling in from 150 to 200 feet of water with heavy tackle has been the most successful technique. Torch Lake has a maximum depth of about 270 feet. Some nice rainbows are also taken. (Courier Photo)

State Farmers Outline Tour

By ED REBMAN
Extension Director

BOYNE CITY—Charlevoix County farmers are urged to attend Michigan's annual State Farm Management Tour, which will pay a return visit to Branch county where the event originated 16 years ago.

The full-day tour and program will be held Wednesday, August 5.

RURAL PEOPLE attending the first statewide tour sponsored by the Michigan Cooperative Extension Service in 1949, saw farming operations in Lenawee, Hillsdale, and Branch counties during a two-day whirlwind trip.

One of the two farms on this year's tour was also a Branch county farm featured during the 1949 event. This was the farm on Glen Fridgeon, located in the southeastern corner of the county. But it is now operated by his son.

Anglers Neglect Pike In Lake Charlevoix

Though fishermen have turned their attention to bass biologist

Don Peterson reports there are plenty of pike to be caught.

Limit Brook Trout Catches

Area fishermen are overlooking some dandy trout fishing in small creeks, Conservation Officer Julius O'Brien of East Jordan contends.

Anglers who get into the small creeks with spinners and worms are taking nice catches of brook trout, and some browns, O'Brien says. However, few fishermen are trying the creeks.

MONROE CREEK, between Ironton and East Jordan is producing limit brook trout and brown trout catches for the few people who fish it, he reports.

O'Brien reminds anglers spearfishing of suckers is no longer legal on creeks.

He predicts pike fishing should be exceptional in the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix for another two weeks. Pike catches have been improving steadily for the last two years, he points out.

IN THE SOUTH ARM, the Conservation Dept. fisheries biologist, recommends fishermen try their luck near the mouth of the Jordan River.

There are pike of almost unbelievable size in Lake Charlevoix, but few are taken due to lack of fishing pressure.

For good results Peterson suggests trolling in eight or ten feet of water near the dropoff beside weedbeds. Casting into weedbeds should also be good.

HIS THIRD CADILLAC... HIS FIRST NEW ONE

This man is enjoying his first brand-new Cadillac—after becoming acquainted with the car's unsurpassed value by twice buying used Cadillacs.

He learned that a late model used Cadillac gave him more standard equipment and engineering advancements than most new cars.

First of all, while Cadillac's styling was continually refined, it never lost the clean, dignified look that says Cadillac and Cadillac alone. The smooth, quiet performance and complete reliability of his used Cadillac was a constant source of enjoyment. Then, too, he and his family enjoyed luxury and comfort to a degree reserved exclusively for Cadillac owners.

The pride of ownership of so distinctive a car was a never-ending pleasure, for he had the satisfaction—always—of knowing he drove the finest.

When it came time to trade his previously owned Cadillac for a later model, he found its value had held remarkably high... and returned a substantial part of his original investment.

So what could be more natural—or wise—than to make the eventual move to a new Cadillac?

New or used, there is no finer motoring investment than a Cadillac. And new or used, your authorized dealer has one to fit any budget. There's never been a better time to invest in the finest of them all.

Hotel Stirs Possibilities Never Before Dreamed of

LAST WEEK'S NEWS was big news. Perhaps the biggest in years for many Charlevoix people. That a swank million-dollar-plus hotel is planned for the downtown area reaffirms Charlevoix's reputation as number one in northwest Lower Michigan.

At first glance it is almost impossible to imagine what the impact will be of 300, 400, or even 500, conventioners visiting Charlevoix in April, May, June, September, October and November. This is something we have never had. What will it do to the overall economy and appearance of Charlevoix is anyone's guess. But guess big.

AND IN THE SUMMER and winter? The Holiday Towers Resort Hotel's facilities and renowned could easily do things to our "in-season" picture that are beyond belief. With adequate promotion and facilities, Charlevoix's successful resort executives have long contended they could double or triple their winter business. And, in comparison to some other resort areas, Charlevoix doesn't even make a showing in promoting summer business.

Last week's meeting with the men behind the proposed nine story hotel leads us to believe they will not be content to sit back and depend on outdated promotion. They will enter competition with the best to see that the Midwest knows of Charlevoix's attractions.

The mere fact that these men are able to propose a 12-sided, 9 story, convention-type hotel with rotating bar on top is enough to convince skeptics that they are bold, imaginative men. Men with radical ideas, and the daring to pursue them, are the breed that create an atmosphere of prosperity and progress.

THE NON-COMMITTAL declaration of support given by a small group of Charlevoix citizens of last week's meeting should leave no doubt in anyone's mind but what the community is behind the project... and the men promoting it.

Welcome Race For Sheriff

ROBERT NEFF'S announcement last week that he will challenge Sheriff Glenn Rose for the Republican nomination to run for sheriff this November is welcomed by the Courier.

It's not that we've decided Neff would make a better sheriff than Rose. This isn't the time to make that decision. And when it is time, we will find it difficult to make.

OUR OBSERVATIONS of Neff at the City Council table and at Neff Brothers Food Store tell us he is a capable, sincere, honest person, who would, probably, make Charlevoix a good sheriff.

On the other hand, from what we have seen, we feel Rose is a good sheriff. He does a splendid job of running a jail that needs considerable improvement, and he is certainly an honest public servant.

So why should we welcome a battle between Neff and Rose? Simple. Good government cannot flourish without competition between qualified candidates. When politicians become entrenched and face no serious challengers government begins to stagnate and turn stale, or worse.

This is not the Courier's opinion. It is the undeniable lesson of history.

WE GENERALLY FEEL Charlevoix County's government is one of northern Michigan's finest, and county officers some of the state's best.

However, this does not blind us to the fact that deeply entrenched and secure politicians are a threat to our democratic ideals.

The Democrat party may surprise us—more power to it if it does. Yet we feel confident Republicans will still hold all major offices in the County Building when the ballots are counted in November.

Consequently, in the interest of good government, we hope more men of Bob Neff's caliber step forward to challenge incumbent Republicans in the September primary election.

WHEN THE PEOPLE are no longer interested enough in their government to participate in it by running for office, democracy has become the domain of the professional politicians. Are Republicans going to let this happen in Charlevoix County?

Subscriptions: $4 a year in Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet Counties; $5.50 a year elsewhere; Single copy 15c.
Published by the Charlevoix Courier Corp., every Thursday at 101 Clinton St., Charlevoix, Mich., county seat and trading center for Charlevoix County and northern portions of Antrim County.

Whether this means Charlevoix will raise the $140,000 required by the federal government before it will loan the developer money, is a question yet to be answered. However, if local investors cannot raise the money, the company that hopes to build the hotel has indicated it will not let its plans fail for that reason.

So, it would appear, the hotel is a sure thing. Perhaps by July 1965 it will be welcoming guests to Charlevoix. If so, it will be one of the most important events in Charlevoix history.

Let's Discard Allocation Board

UNDER MICHIGAN'S new constitution the County Tax Allocation Board can be eliminated. The County Board of Supervisors, or the people, by petition, can modernize the system for apportioning taxes.

The antiquated tax allocation board system essentially is a technique established to give politicians control over who gets what portion of the basic 15 mill tax levy.

FORTUNATELY, CHARLEVOIX'S Allocation Board does an admirable job of doling out the taxes so the county, schools and townships get a reasonable share of the 15 mills. However, because we are fortunate this year, and have been in the past few years, to have an Allocation Board that is above petty politics is no reason to maintain the system.

In Lapeer County recently, the Board of Supervisors threatened to cut the probate judge's budget if he did not appoint an allocation board member who would put more money in the county treasury and less in the school's. The probate judge bowed to this pressure and education lost thousands of dollars while the political plums grew richer.

This isn't an isolated, rare case. It has happened time and again under the allocation board system.

Our nationally-acclaimed, model new constitution gives the people the power to eliminate this threat. It authorizes establishment of a set allocation that would not be changed from year to year at the whim of politicians.

THIS IS DONE BY asking the people to vote on how they want a basic 18 mill property tax split up between schools and municipalities. The Board of Supervisors can place such a proposition on the ballot, or it can be done by petitions signed by registered voters.

County Clerk F. R. Bulow can obtain the proper petitions for anyone interested. The Courier will be glad to help in any way it can.

Let Users Pay for Off-Street Parking

CHARLEVOIX'S CITY Council has been mulling over whether it should put meters in city-owned downtown parking lots.

The issue comes up for several reasons. It seems parking space is often dominated throughout the day by people who work downtown. This cuts out space for people who patronize the stores where these all-day parkers work. Another reason is that there is need for more off-street parking and councilmen would like to raise revenue from the lots to make them self-supporting.

THE COURIER WAS somewhat befuddled as to the city's justification for building non-revenue parking lots. Mayor E. D. Hawley tells us the lots were constructed to soothe businessmen who might have moved out of town if parking was not provided by the city.

This explanation sort of confuses us. We do not question Hawley's sincerity, but we cannot believe businessmen are serious if they indicate they are so disloyal to Charlevoix they would abandon it for this reason.

Off-street, downtown parking, we feel, should pay for itself. Either the city should install parking meters or businessmen should band together to pay for the city's expense in building and maintaining the lots. Both of these methods are employed in other progressive communities.

In some towns, where the city has the money to build the lots, but businessmen do not have the ready cash, merchants pay off the city on an installment plan. This works well. Maybe it should be tried here.

HOWEVER, WHATEVER method is employed by Charlevoix councilmen, we cannot see any more justification for providing free parking than we can for giving away electricity and water.

If the parking lots are for the benefit of businessmen, then let them pay. If they are primarily constructed as a service to the public, then install parking meters. And if the answer is a little bit of both, put in the meters and bill businessmen a percentage of the cost. When the city has recouped the expense of building the lots another formula can be found.

Odds 'N' Ends

By FRAN MARTIN

How about that news that broke last week... about the beautiful new hotel to be built on the site of the present Beach Hotel... If you are like I am, you can hardly believe it because it's the thing that dreams are made of... It will be fabulous... I know everyone is keeping their fingers crossed that it will become a reality... I think we can all be grateful that we have what it takes to attract such a facility...

Mrs. Kenneth Forbes who lives out on May St. sent us this tidbit... which I'm sure you'll find hard to believe... She was awakened by her dog pacing the floor. She got up to investigate, and in the moonlight, saw three beautiful deer between her place and the nearby Dvorak property... They wandered through the field to her house and nibbled on the forsythia bush before slowly loping away to the south... As Mrs. F. put it: "It was a thrilling sight. I'll bet few places can boast a midnight show like this one."... I swear deer have calendars comparable to ours... They seem to know when it is safe to venture out like this... But come Nov. 15, they're no place to be found... Haven't heard of any woodchucks, porcupines or other wild beasts making their way into town recently as usually happens during the spring.

DON'T KNOW IF you've been aware of it or not but Northern Michigan has been selected as the background for the national advertising pictures for the new Fordes that will make their appearance come fall... The sand dunes down near Sleeping Bear point is the real site... But some of the people serving as models have been local people... like Ronie Erber, who is just home from Michigan, Brian Seymour, who's been taking time out from his duties at the Lodge to sandwich this into his busy day, and the Jack Erber's young son... Seems that the publicity sings the praises of the various types of cars as ideal for various type families... the young couple, the young marrieds, the family, the grandparents... with are people serving as the models... So next fall when the new pictures make their appearance you'll be recognizing the models (the live ones) that is, if not the background... This is reminiscent of the time that Dodge used our little old railroad station as a background for national advertising...

Earlier this year I mentioned Linda Newman, who'd practically grown up here since she's been a summer resident always... In the May issue of "Show," the magazine of the arts, is a picture and outline story about her... At the time I mentioned her she had appeared in the title role of "Lucia di Lammermoor" presented by the CBS Opera Company... In "Show" she is mentioned in an article entitled "Showcase: End of a season, beginning of a career" in which those hopefuls who have made it during the year are discussed... by "Show" editors... Linda Newman is listed as one of those and Show's prediction: surefire career, with international fame... What more can one wish for a lovely young woman who has worked mighty hard to reach this point in her career... I know that everyone here joins in "wishing" her to the top... My thanks to Mrs. Julius (Edith) Gilbert, who's now enjoying a trip to the newest of the 50 at the moment, for calling this to my attention...

I'D LIKE TO TAKE

this opportunity to call attention to this year's annual, the Rayder... perhaps not many of you know that it was dedicated to Stewart E. "Irish" Coleman... To my way of thinking, the dedication was letter perfect because it said so beautifully what those who loved him felt: "Stewart E. Coleman for 36 years a teacher at Charlevoix High School who shared with us his enthusiasm for learning, his love of literature, his wonder at the beauties and mysteries of the natural world, his treasure of lively and memorable stories, whose inspired coaching spurred our track teams to victory. Whose friendship honored us and whose memory blessed us, we respectfully dedicate this bow... To the class of 1964 I'd like to say thank you for putting all our thoughts into such fitting words... Like the rest of us, you, too, can be grateful that you rubbed shoulders with such a great guy...

This was called to our attention the other day following the Memorial Day parade which was, incidentally, the finest I've years... That of the 14 V.F.W. Auxiliary members who marched in the parade, eight were former residents... Quite a record...

Your Story

The Courier is inviting local organizations to put their displays in the newspaper office window at 101 Clinton St.

The first group to take advantage of this offer is the VFW. The VFW Auxiliary's display is seen above, before it was put in the Courier's window. The picture on the right shows the display in the front window.

Any other group—adult or youth—with an attractive display it would like the public to see is invited to bring it to the Courier, where it will be seen by all who pass by.

"Fun" Can Lead to Tragedy

Dear Editor,

You're on the way home late in the evening or night. You notice a car driving very close behind you—so close, it seems to almost touch your bumper.

You speed up—it stays close. You slow down—it slows down.

From the shadowy figures you determine the car has 4 or 5 youthful figures inside.

There are no other cars on the road. You're not near town. You stop at the nearest place with lights. The car stops and backs away up the road and you can't see the license.

YOU HAVE a sudden brave moment and get the car from, shake it and swear at them to "Come, get out of the blankety-blank car," but gain nothing.

Shaken now, you call the police. They come. The car is gone. You have no information that is of real help to them.

Reactions to the situation will vary as much as people themselves.

Panic or violent anger could lead to tragedy, for the harassed driver and for those in the other car. All because of what probably started out as an escapade of "Fun."

Many impulsive acts ruin the lives of old and young alike. Think! Before you lose your temper, it could be you. The fire you may be your own. The safety slogans you hear and read are serious.

Reds Gain Members Exploiting Troubles

TO THE EDITOR:

The FBI has uncovered an American Communist Party plot to exploit what the Party has described as a "drift toward the left," among some of the youth of our nation. Delegates of the American Communist Party met in Chicago last fall to lay the groundwork for a new national youth organization, and a national founding convention is to be held soon.

In his year-end report to the Attorney General, J. Edgar Hoover said that the party's general secretary, Gus Hall, stipulated that the youth movement "should avoid the appearance of a 'Soviet-style' organization; however, it would tolerate anti-Soviet or anti-communist thinking."

The Communists use methods of deceit and propaganda in trying

The Bible Is Accurate

TO THE EDITOR:

Many people reject the Bible on the assumption that it is an unscientific book.

It is true, of course, that the Bible is not a textbook on the physical sciences; but in the instances in which matters of science are incidentally mentioned, the statements are accurate.

Genesis 1:3, 4 declares that light existed before the creation of the sun. Infidels for many years made great sport of this passage; but now scientists are universally agreed that the sun is not the only source of light.

The fact that the earth is round was rejected by most scientists until the 16th century A.D., but 700 years before the birth of Christ, Isaiah referred to "the circle of the earth." (Isaiah 40:22; see also Proverbs 8:27.)

Job referred to the fact that the earth is poised in space (Job 26:7) many hundred years before Copernicus discovered in 1530 that it is in reality hanging "upon nothing." Truly, "we cannot account for this advance information in any other way than that the writers were not speaking from their own knowledge but were giving a revelation from God." (W. L. Oliphant) G. F. The Courier editor knows better than any of us that no newspaper—including Charlevoix's—is perfect. If you'll write out your suggestions for making it better, the Courier will be that much closer to the impossible "perfect."

Life's Great Glory is in Fulfillment

By REV. H. E. KOHN

Our region suffered a heavy wind and rain storm. Great gusts of wind blew fitfully, angrily, bending the trees that line our trail, rattling our doors fiercely and pelting our windows with giant raindrops.

The next day when I visited our family's woodland retreat, I came upon a fledgling bird lying dead below its nest. Perhaps the fall from the nest injured it and the cold night rain finished it. It was well feathered out, this baby phoenix, and about ready to fly if it had been spared. Plump, it was, too, from many a rich meal of insects and worms. But its brief life was already spent before its talent for flying could be tested. The mother bird had invested weeks of incubating the eggs and warming and feeding that birdling. All that care and nurture, and nothing would come of it now. That nestling was nestling was meant to stroke the sky with wind-loving wings, but now it would never know the meaning of flight. The fledgling had missed the mark of becoming a bird.

SEVERAL YEARS ago, while on a walk through the woods in the springtime, I came upon a stillborn whitetail deer fawn. The bottom of its hoofs were clean. It had never stood upon its feet. Through some unknown defect the fawn had been born lifeless, breathless and had missed fulfillment of its restlessness. It was meant to be a dappled, elfin shadow among other shadows on the forest floor, after it should have become a reddish-brown wood spirit, bounding through grassy glades, frequenting hidden, nearly forgotten forest trails, browsing on shoots of birches, sipping from tiny streams, mowing and bearing its young. But the fawn missed fulfillment. Its further development was blocked at birth.

Perhaps the pity we hold for the young that die is linked to our awareness that a lack of fulfillment is one of life's sorriest tragedies. In the death of young creatures there are tendencies that are thwarted before they reach their goals and capacities that are blocked and foiled forever.

But death is not the only way fulfillment of latent possibilities is frustrated. In human beings sin thwarts realization of life's highest goals. Indeed, this is one of the real meanings of moral evil: it is a foiling, blocking, or a misdirection of the good; a wrong aim; a missing of the mark. The word commonly translated "sin" in the New Testament is a Greek word used as a term of archery, and it means "to miss the mark." Any arrow which aimed his arrow toward a target and missed it was quite literally a "sinner." The word was carried over from that graphic original meaning to broader applications and used to describe any disharmony with the purpose of God. To sin meant to use any part of our nature in such a way as to stray from God's intentions for us. If God wills good toward all of His children, then sin is anything that thwarts the good in any of us. It is anything that hinders an individual or the whole social order from achieving the good God desires.

ARE NOT MANY OF our worst troubles caused by some good arrows that go astray and ruin or destroy someone's life, often our own? The old Roman proverb, "Optima corrupta pessima" expressed a deep insight — "The best things when corrupted become the worst." Of course they do. See, for instance, how a commendable service motive becomes self-service. Many young graduates of schools of business believe their career to be a vocation, a calling to answer some human need. Of course they hope to make money, but they aim to put service first and money second. But soon, for many of them, the ambition to make money at any cost begins to stir within them. The early high ideals become easily corrupted. First, with a twinge of conscience, a young businessman tolerates practices which seem only slightly shady. Then he may engage in exploitation of the public through unfair prices, small misrepresentations, a little adulteration of his product, a limited amount of misbranding. Bottles that look very large and hold very little, dummy bottoms in boxes, carelessly constructed buildings, advertisements that claim too much for products sold, these are only a few of the ways people let business principles miss the mark. Sex easily goes astray. Young people are too often told they should not indulge in sex relations because sex is unclean and ugly. The very opposite is true: the unmarried should not indulge because sex is a good and beautiful thing reserved for those who are wholly, unreservedly committed to each other in marriage and thus the relationship of sex is sacramental, having holy meanings. To use it outside of marriage is to profane a holy thing.

While the Victorians of a few generations past perverted the idea of sex by treating it as nasty, the present generation has debased and corrupted the meaning of sex by making a gimmick of it, trifling with it. We have used sex appeal as a sort of carrot to hang before people to lead them to buy toothpaste, tobacco, automobiles and almost any kind of gadget on the market. Moreover, we have made "sex" a synonym of the leer, of irresponsibility, of promiscuity and debauchery and then have labeled this wild confusion "love." But these things are not love and have nothing to do with unselfish love or with lasting happiness.

OUR PROBLEM IS not how to handle the bad thing, sex, but how to preserve the good thing from waywardness, how to make it reach its goals of being sacramental, expressing the good in human nature. Any other use of this function is sin, in the sense of "missing the mark."

Religion, too, often misses its goal. While the function of religion is to remind us of the God who is always near us and to prompt us to use His power and to obey His will, religion often goes astray. Religion can be misdirected so that it becomes a retreat from the real world, from life's ugly facts, a search for mental comfort and spiritual ease. Such religion becomes a substitute for intelligent thought, and it takes the place of an agonizing involvement in the woes of one's fellow men.

Some people find that contemplating God is so satisfying that they become indifferent to the hurts of human beings around them. Some use the faith that was meant to be armor to protect them in life's struggles, as a cloak to hide their real faults. Others use religion like a spare tire — only in emergencies.

RELIGION CAN stretch the mind or shrink it; it can make one narrowly bigoted or bigger and more understanding of others; it can confirm one's prejudices or expand one's compassions. Indeed religion's most popular feature is its flexibility: it can be adapted to whatever we wish to do. But such a limp religion is like a flimsy arrow, sure to miss its target. And a religion that doesn't serve its high purpose is sin. All the way from a dead nestling to a bird and a still-born fawn through business deals, sex and religion, tragedy is found in lack of fulfillment, missing the goal. Life's great glory is in fulfillment, hitting the target, being what God means us to be, doing what God wants us to do.

It's Spring, and you know what that means!

Safety Checks

Nearly 7,000 Michigan service stations, backed by affiliated oil companies, start offering a voluntary automobile safety check to motorists June 15.

The voluntary safety checks, the Associated Petroleum Industries of Michigan explains, are aimed at reducing traffic accidents.

GOV. GEORGE ROMNEY suggested the service stations initiate such a program.

Why can this 40-gallon heater give more hot water than this 80-gallon one?

Because it's a Gas water heater, that's why.

The 80-gallon heater is electric. And Gas heats so much faster than electricity you can actually get more hot water daily from a Gas heater than an electric one twice its size!

And Gas costs so much less, too—one more big reason why Gas water heaters are the overwhelming favorites of families in our area.

"THIS WORLD"

...what is it dad? To me it seems to be a multitude of jealous people, who have forgotten God, and are experimenting with scientific formulas that could tear us apart. What does it mean—"Am I my brother's keeper?"

What a thought for this age...for men who literally carry our lives in their hands. At best we are confused. The time-table is tipped in favor of total destruction. Why, oh why, will wise men "deaf-ear" God?

He said, "I am the way and the truth." He gave us His church where we could learn to love each other more, but many a man refuses to be called to worship.

God, have mercy on all those who stray, and help us explain the world through love.

JOHN LACHMAN was once evicted from Las Vegas Nevada, according to a yarn he told enroute to an evening's trout fishing last week. And it's about the darndest tale of the spring.

You've heard about the authorities booting people out of Las Vegas because they didn't adjust to the gambling rules. Well, John didn't have any problems like that.

Nope seems the family dog, Cookie, forced Mr. and Mrs. John Lachman to pack up and leave. And it wasn't that Cookie was a truant.

The Lachmans had rented a motel which suited them just dandy. But not Cookie. She couldn't even find a blade of grass on which to leave her calling card. And, doggone it, she wasn't going to bolster the moisture count of any old desert. It frustrated her so John had to pack up and move on to greener pastures before Cookie burst.

That was quite a while ago, though. Cookie's a good deal older than she was in the days when John was doing research and engineering for General Electric and Hoskins. There's plenty of grass for Cookie on Belvedere Ave. And the Lachmans are pretty settled, with John managing the Hoskins plant here.

CAN'T HELP BUT wonder if those doctors who urge men to turn in their cigarettes for pipe smoking aren't due for a fight with companies that produce mosquito dope.

If the anti-cigarette advice is being taken, men and more men are learning that a foul smelling pipe is the best mosquito repellent available. I discovered it by accident years ago, and ever since have been afraid to quit smoking the vilest smelling tobacco on the market. At the time I was too poor to smoke anything else . . . and

Test Interest In Teen Center

A commercial teen center to be operating in downtown Charlevoix this summer will be used by City Council to sample interest in such a facility.

Councilmen Monday tentatively authorized Albert Arvilla to operate a teen center at 226 Bridge St., next to Murrell's Fudge Shop on the northeast corner of Clinton and Bridge.

BEFORE HE can open June 20 Arvilla will have to formally agree to close no later than 12:30 a.m., have adequate adult supervision and meet fire and health department restrictions.

"We always hear these kids saying we should build a recreation building," Councilman Jerry Whitley said. "This might be a good way to test it and see if kids really will use it."

Councilman Bob Gill said similar projects have been tried here in the past and failed.

Salaries, Deficit to Benefit from Tax Hike

Last week's voter approval of increased taxes means the Charlevoix Public School District will have $28,000 more to spend in 1964-65 than last year.

With the go-ahead from voters to spend the added money, the Board of Education is able to stand pat on its tentative budget of $431,014, which is $28,231 more than last year's $402,783 budget.

THE REVENUE increase will come from higher local property taxes — three quarters of a mill more than 1963-64. Last year $211,527 was collected in local taxes. This year property owners will pay $239,229 to operate Charlevoix schools.

Most of the remaining $190,000 of the school's income is received from the state. The state returns $182,475 of the taxes it collects here to the school district.

The budget increase is swallowed by two major items—teacher salaries and deficit reduction.

Teachers salaries this year will consume an estimated $232,196. This is up $13,951 over last year's

City Audit Shows Expenses $32,000 Over 1963 Budget

Council Warned to Beware of General Fund Deficit Threat

The City of Charlevoix last year did a gross business of more than $558,000. A detailed 40-page audit of the city's half-million-dollar operation was presented to Councilmen Monday.

Auditor Darrell Dinwiddie warned Councilmen they should watch the general fund budget "awful close" this year to avoid deficit spending.

Name to Change On US-31

Next summer Charlevoix may be on the Michigan Trail, instead of US-31.

Approval has been received from the State Highway Commission to name the scenic Lake Michigan route from Benton Harbor to Mackinaw, the "Michigan Trail."

A TRAIL MARKER sign has been designed to designate the route along U.S.-31, M-22 and U.S.-131, as the Michigan Trail. The trail route and sign markers were promoted and developed by the Pentwater, Mich., Chamber of Commerce. Pentwater is located south of Ludington.

Pentwater Chamber Vice President H. R. Behr has asked Charlevoix Chamber Manager Dean Duvenport to obtain cooperation from the Road Commission on erecting the signs along the trail in the county.

In addition to getting the signs up here, Charlevoix is being asked to purchase and distribute some of the 50,000 special maps being printed on the scenic route.

OFFICIALLY THE highway will remain U.S.-31, but 1965 Michigan Highway Maps will show the route as the Michigan Trail.

Meat Firm to Expand Here

Plans for expanded year-round operation were announced this week by the Farmer Meat Co. of Charlevoix.

Dewey LeBeau, new company manager, said the firm will purchase a minimum of $200,000 worth of meat from local farmers in the next year.

ACCORDING TO LeBeau the firm will be able to purchase local livestock because it has constructed and equipped a modern abattoir on old M-66 near Ironton. Livestock will be slaughtered and butchered

ELLY PETERSON
At Breakfast Here

Top GOP Woman Due Here

The number one Republican woman in the nation will breakfast in Charlevoix Saturday on the campaign trail for the U. S. Senate.

Mrs. Elly M. Peterson, who is seeking the Republican nomination for Senate, in hopes of upsetting Democrat incumbent Philip A. Hart, will meet the public at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Wentworth Inn.

ALL CHARLEVOIX people are invited to attend and meet Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. George Lusk, local coordinator, reports. No details were released on what Mrs. Peterson will do or say at the Inn.

Mrs. Peterson rates as the nation's top Republican woman due to her position as Assistant Chairman of the Republican National Committee and director of women's activities for the Republican Party.

Though her office is now in Washington, she maintains her Charlevoix, Mich., home, where she has lived since 1951. She is the wife of Army Colonel W. Merritt Peterson.

Until going to the national GOP office, Mrs. Peterson was a leader in Michigan Republican women's circles.

IN ANSWERING THE Charlevoix Courier Candidate Questionnaire, Mrs. Peterson said she decided to seek the nomination as Republican candidate.

Deputy City Clerk Herb Campbell urged residents to be sure they are registered to vote in the Sept. 1 state and national primary election and Nov. 1 election of governor and president.

All new residents, or persons who haven't voted in two years, must register at the clerk's office in City Hall to be eligible to vote in September and November.

THE MOST unique of these proposals is installation of lights.

City Takes First Move On Eliminating Slums

GOLF COURSE PLANS — Keith Carey, standing, Municipal Golf Course manager, and Mrs. Carey and Walt Henley, groundskeeper, study various plans for enlarging the course or lighting it for night play. (Courier Photo)

City Explores Plan To Light Golf Links

Charlevoix's Municipal Golf Course someday may be the most unique in northern Michigan.

City officials are exploring three possibilities for improving the popular course:

- Install lights for night play.

- Add nine holes to make it an 18 hole course.

- Build a three-par course integrated into the regular nine hole course.

THE COURSE originally had 18 holes. However, when the city started operating it nine holes were abandoned because there was not enough interest from golfers. The old holes, 8, 9, 10 and 11 have been sold to industry.

Lighting the nine remaining holes would cost approximately $63,000. It costs approximately $7,000 to light each hole.

However, consultants have told

If the course is lighted, manager Keith Carey says it will be the only one in northern Michigan where after-dark play is possible.

Carey, and city officials, do not appear to favor either of the three possibilities. They point out not enough facts are yet available to decide which is the best.

The most expensive would be adding nine more holes. Estimates are this would cost approximately $100,000, due to the need to purchase land.

THE THREE additional greens needed could be constructed at low cost — approximately $1,000 each. They would be used only for night play.

The lights would give Charlevoix evening recreation for tourists, which it is now lacking. It would also give local adults a chance to play week-day golf after work.

And because it will be the only lighted course in northern Michigan, proponents of the plan point out it will attract more tourists. If the plans for the Holiday Towers Resort Hotel go through the lighted course would be a drawing card to convention groups, they add.

Construction of nine additional holes is desired by some local golfers. However, before making such a move the city has to consider that the Municipal Course would then be in direct competition with the Belvedere Club.

IF THE CITY decides to move on lighting or adding nine more holes, golfers will have to pay the bill. This would most likely be reflected in special fees for playing under the lights, or increased BEAVER ISLAND — Installation of bulk storage tanks here for gasoline and fuel oil has cut a three week job to one day, Jewell Gillespie reports.

Gillespie said he has erected the two 20,000 gallon tanks purchased from the City of Charlevoix's power plant at St. James Harbor. This gives him a total of 44,000 gallons storage. By winter he hopes to purchase other tanks to make it 70,000 gallons.

ACCORDING TO Gillespie, 70,000 gallons of oil and gasoline fuel the island's winter needs. He is owner of Gillespie Sales and Service.

In the past, Gillespie said, his maximum storage has been 4,000 gallons. Fuel was brought to the island in 1,000 gallon shipments by the mail boat.

With his increased storage, he is having fuel transported to St. James by barge, bringing 18,000 gallons each trip.

Gillespie said this will result in lower fuel prices on the island.

Will Order Owners to Clean-Up

Admit Action
Is Only Start

Children in Charlevoix's slum area have rats in their backyard.

Not a few rats. Dozens of rats that brashly run at large in broad daylight, not more than a few feet from the back door.

BUT THE RATS may be their own undoing. Charlevoix Councilman Bill Fochtman Monday pressed the Council into action to get rid of the rats, and other squalor in the slum area on the city's extreme southwest corner near the airport.

On Fochtman's urging, Councilmen ordered City Attorney John Michael to enforce a state law that gives the city authority to demand all elimination of "unwholesome, offensive or filthy" nuisances.

Fochtman said there are between eight and ten homes in the district that can be cleaned up by enforcing the law. Councilmen agreed that if the owner of the rental property does not eliminate objectionable matters the city will do it and bill the owner.

Fochtman said he was guided into the slum district last Friday evening by public health nurse Mrs. Jeanne Miles, sanitarian John Reynolds and Sheriff's Deputy Joe Etienne.

"WE RAN RIGHT into the inside of 200 rats," Fochtman told councilmen.

He said Etienne discovered the rats when answering a call to pick up a dog. The rats, Fochtman said, were in the backyard of a shack in which five children and their parents lived in "absolute squalor."

"I've sat up here three years now and we haven't done a thing about this," Fochtman said, in pressing other councilmen to act.

"I say go ahead," Mayor E. D. Hawley said.

FOCHTMAN said the council's action will not eliminate the slum area, but it is a start.

Michael told the council he feels the state law Fochtman cited can be enforced. But, the attorney added, "it was written in the 1880's or 1890's, so this section is not reliable and just not used."

Fochtman said the specific home in question is owned by Harry Martin.

Until Monday night, Councilmen have contended they have no power to force cleanup of the slum conditions. They have had Michael studying the possibility of adopting new ordinances to give them the power they need.

HOWEVER, BEFORE Fochtman cited the existing law in the Fourth Class Cities act no action was taken.

At an early council meeting Councilman Robert Gill said "It is unfortunate that one man should cause this reflection off the whole area." He pointed out Harry Martin owns several of the homes the health department has cited as unfit.

Probate Judge John Makel launched the public effort to eliminate the slum "ghetto" earlier this spring. Joining with him were the county health, juvenile, welfare and social bureaus.

Fochtman said many of the homes bordering on the slums are among the city's nicest, well kept and with high tax assessments.

NEW CAMP SITES — Conservation Dept. forestry aid Cliff Johnson cuts a clearing with the bulldozer into the woods along Lake Michigan south of Bella Bay for one of 11 new campsites being prepared for summer use. Bill Eby, standing, of Charlevoix is assisting Johnson. The department started work last week on 11 new campsites at the Bella Bay State Forest Campground. When they are all cleared there will be 20 rustic tent or trailer camps along the scenic shoreline. Bella Bay will be the only public campground on Lake Michigan between Traverse City and Wilderness State Park near Mackinaw City. (Courier Photo)

ANYONE WHO cannot attend the Sunday clinic must contact the Health Dept. at LI 7-2071 by June 26 to make reservations to get their vaccine later.

Mayor E. D. Hawley, at a recent Council meeting, suggested golfers should organize to decide which move the city should make and how it would be paid for.

The industrial, Whitley said, could be located near the airport.

Among her qualifications she points out, "I have a business, civic and governmental background of 29 years. Having just finished eight months in Washington, I have lived closely with the national scene."

Mrs. Peterson outlined her major campaign issue as:

• "Foreign affairs — The steady deterioration of our prestige and influence abroad. We are at war in Viet Nam, close to being involved elsewhere, and we should have long since realized foreign aid buys us neither respect nor friendship."

• "Integrity in the administration—ranging through the Estes, Korth, Otepka and Backer cases. LBJ's TV transactions and attempt to be all things to all people."

• "Steady increase of big government — with its chipping away at our liberties."

• "Roundabouting of the 'poverty' ideas, ARA and other schemes in an election year especially."

ART OSBORN was in the other day suggesting we start a column in which we let readers air their "pet peeves." It was a good thought. To get started, we had Art outline a few of his:

• When garage mechanics put a shiny, expensive hubcap on the concrete and fill it up with nuts, resulting in scratches, etc.

• When neighbors lose rocks from their yard into yours because their lawn mower runs over them. (The answer to that problem is let someone else mow the lawn.)

A new city directory for the Charlevoix Area will be co-published by Charlevoix Courier and the Mullin-Kille Company of Chillicothe, Ohio. The Directory will be published in co-operation with the Charlevoix and Boyne City Chambers of Commerce, will include Boyne City and perhaps East Jordan.

★ Council Gets Audit

fund expenses during the fiscal year.

THE INVOLVED audit also gave a detailed breakdown for the electric utility, water department and sewer department. All three departments showed a business increase and finished the year in sound financial condition.

Councilmen unanimously agreed that a summary of the audit will be printed in next week's Courier. The entire audit, Mayor E. D. Hawley explained, cannot be printed, due to its size.

"It's public information," Councilman William Fochtman said. "If there are any questions (not answered in the summary) people should come up to City Hall and look at the actual report."

COUNCILMAN Robert Neff said there are "many people who won't believe it (the audit)."

"Then they should come up here and look over the full report," Hawley said. "If will answer all their questions."

DINWIDDIE said the audit was conducted in the same manner as in previous years. This, he pointed out, makes it possible to show a realistic comparison to other years.

DINWIDDIE TOLD Councilmen the public should be cautioned to realize a thorough study of the audit is required before any concrete conclusions are drawn. News reports and summary statements are too condensed to reveal the complete picture, he explained.

The 1964-65 city budget, adopted last month, calls for total general fund expenditures of $248,800. This is $4,200 less than last year's $253,000 budget.

Not only did the city over-spend last year's general fund budget, it also received $17,872 more in revenue than anticipated. It was $6,690 more from surplus to balance the books at year's end.

A breakdown of major expense items for the year shows $4,137 was spent by the mayor and council on salaries ($1,520) and travel, telephones, contributions, etc. This is $462 less than budgeted.

THE CITY SPENT $6,731 more on the City Hall than budgeted, $6,451 more than budgeted for parking, $17,415 more than budgeted on the airport and $3,518 more than budgeted on docks and harbors.

Expenses at the municipal golf course totaled $8,091, but the course took in $12,325.

Income from the docks and harbors totaled $7,079, but $13,318 was spent on them.

The breakdown on the electric utility shows a profit of $41,688, which is $10,683 more than the 1962-63 profit of $31,005.

The section on the electric utility gives a detailed breakdown of assets, liabilities, cost per kilowatt hour and gross business and expenses. Persons interested in more information can study next week's summary in the Courier or read the complete audit at City Hall.

THE WATER SYSTEM took in $47,591 during the year and cost $34,999 to operate, resulting in a net earnings of $12,592.

The sewer system brought in $19,077 and spent $20,193, for a net loss of $3,367.

The Coast Guard requested the blacktop. The city owns the street.

Blacktop OK'd For Coast Guard

Hard surfacing the street at the east end of Dixon Ave. that runs into the Coast Guard Life Boat Station was approved Monday evening by City Council.

Total cost of blacktopping the 16 foot wide street was estimated at $1,500.

THE PROJECT WAS approved in spite of reported objections from members of the Chicago Club. Several Chicago Club members were reported to oppose improving the street because they feel traffic will speed up, creating a threat to children going to the beach.

"They (the Coast Guard) haven't asked for much in the past, and they certainly do a lot for the community," Mayor E. D. Hawley said in favor of blacktopping.

The Coast Guard requested the blacktop. The city owns the street.

Propose 16-Family Apartment Building

Realator Asks City for Indication on Rezoning

City Council Monday evening heard plans for a 16-family apartment house on W. Dixon Ave.

Don Heilig, of the Irma Scheid real estate firm, unveiled the plans. Heilig appeared before councilmen asking for an indication of their reaction to the project.

COUNCILMEN DID not tell Heilig they would favor or oppose the rezoning request. They said a public hearing would have to be held and the opinion of the neighborhood residents sampled before any official action could be taken.

Heilig was told to have apartment house developers formally present their request for rezoning so a public hearing can be called.

The apartment house, according to Heilig, would be constructed on property at 102 and 104 W. Dixon. This is on the south side of Dixon in the short block that ends at Lake Michigan.

It would have 16 two-bedroom apartments that will rent for from $125 to $175 a month, he said.

THE PROPERTY is 180 feet long and 132 feet deep. It is zoned Residential One. Heilig said it will have to be rezoned to Residential Two is an apartment house is go-

Set Limit on Parking Lot

A two-hour parking limit will be enforced on the City's un-metered Mason St. lot, Councilmen decided Monday evening.

The action was taken after discussion of businessmen abusing the parking lot by parking all day in it.

CARS AND TRUCKS belonging to people who work downtown are left in the lot all day long, Dr. Walter Hoffmann, second ward councilman said.

Councilman Robert Neff suggested the two hour limit, without meters. He said, and others agreed, that the limit should be rigidly enforced.

"I still say meters, period," Dr. Hoffmann said. "We should get some of our investment back."

"I WOULD THINK businessmen would be quite a bit alarmed about it," Councilman Robert Gill said.

"Maybe downtown businessmen should organize and realize they have a responsibility to regulate this," Mayor E. D. Hawley said.

Councilmen decided restrictions are not necessary on the large parking lot on the waterfront because there is no shortage of parking space in the area.

Harry E. Travis, of Gaylord, today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for State Representative from the 6th District.

HARRY TRAVIS
Tests Vote Appeal

He is challenging incumbents Clark Most of Alanson and Ross O. Stevens of Atlanta for the nomination at the Sept. 1 primary election.

IN MAKING HIS announcement Travis stated: "The fast-moving changes of our modern day mean that we, in Northern Michigan, must have an active and effective voice in helping shape the policies of our state. Our interests are tied closely to those of our entire state. It's extremely important at this time that everything possible be done to develop our potential in economic and social development."

Travis is director of community and public affairs for Fetzer Television stations.

He served in Washington as public relations aide to former Sen. Charles Potter, Republican, from Cheboygan. A life-long Republican, Travis served on the Kalamazoo County and Bay City Republican committees, and is past vice-chairman of the Osego County Republican committee.

In World War II, Travis served with the Army Air Force. A native of Kalamazoo and a graduate of Kalamazoo College, Travis, age 46, has lived in northern Michigan five years, residing in Gaylord with his wife, Sue, and four children.

HE IS A MEMBER of the Gaylord Club; Osego County Chamber of Commerce; Masonic Lodge; Shrine; Elks; and Michigan Outdoor Writer's Association. He is a past president of the Michigan Association of Broadcasters, and formerly was a member of the board of the Bay City YMCA, and vice chairman of the Kalamazoo Symphony Orchestra Society.

Although this is his initial try for office, he has followed the career of Governor George Romney with enthusiasm and believes in joining the Romney team to give the Governor support he deserves. Travis said his campaign would stress the need for active and effective representation in Lansing for the 6th district.

Businessmen Keenly Aware Of Need for Competition

SUCCESS AND PROSPERITY come to those who have the daring to risk hard work and major investment in change. What was good enough for our fathers, or even 10 years ago, seldom satisfies today's or tomorrow's needs.

It may sound fine and sophisticated to sit back and proclaim allegiance to the "good old days". But the good old days are no longer with us. America is learning this as it grovels before nation after nation in fear of offending. England learned it by losing an empire.

MORE IMPORTANT, and to the point, hundreds of Michigan communities have lost their business district and local identity because merchants didn't have the backbone to gamble on the cost of improvements and expansion.

Charlevoix businessmen should be congratulated for their evident awareness of this, as seen in last week's remarks by the retail committee of the Chamber of Commerce. The committee showed a dash of boldness in frankly admitting the fears of Charlevoix businessmen that the downtown area has been on the verge of disintegration due to lack of inducement to shoppers.

That our businessmen are not asleep, but instead are in tune with the times, is immediately proved by their welcoming the competition of the Olsen Food Store and Shopping Center. It has been positively shown that competition can only improve the retail business atmosphere. We hail Charlevoix businessmen for not overlooking this fact.

The retail committee's statement also indicates merchants realize Olsen alone cannot draw new shoppers to Charlevoix, or lure old ones into returning. Charlevoix must offer stores that fulfill the complete interests of area families.

The most difficult thing to find in advancing such a project is leadership and cooperation. The retail committee's statement already shows us Charlevoix merchants have the vision.

PLANNING FOR THE future and the ultimate cost appears overwhelming at this point. However, the experience of other communities, leaves no doubt but what the long-range benefits will make the initial investment one of the best in every businessman's life.

For all of this we should thank Jerry Olsen for breaking the ice. Olsen's move in spending more than $300,000 for his store and shopping center is dramatic proof Charlevoix is worth our investment in the future.

Gordon Will Be Big Loss

REDISTRICTING of Michigan Representative and Senate districts may have saved the day for the north county by preventing at-large election of an all-Wayne County delegation to Lansing. But it did cost Charlevoix County something we seriously doubt can be regained: State Representative Don Gordon.

During the one short term he represented us before he was cut off from the Charlevoix District by new boundary lines, Gordon proved himself one of northern Michigan's most able and successful legislators. Because Gordon did not bore into a time capsule like many outstate Republican solons, he helped give the GOP party and Gov. Romney some semblance of contact with the 1960's.

WE FOUND GORDON was always agreeable to give attention to the smallest or largest matter. His advice was sound, and if there was any possible way to act he found it. His immediate reaction to last fall's Great Lakes fish scare, and leadership in trying to calm it, is only one outstanding example.

It was impossible not to admire Gordon for his frankness and honesty. He demanded that his negative position on teacher tenure and raises for legislators be publicly recorded. In both instances his political future would have been more secure if he had remained silent. But no, he is a public servant and he insisted the people know how he is serving them.

Though Charlevoix County has been removed from Gordon's bailiwick, his term isn't officially over until January. Like many legislators in a similar position, he could be expected to ignore us and start concentrating on people who can vote for him in November.

And, of course, he is giving attention to the campaign for Senate in his new district. But he is also continuing to work for Charlevoix. At present, he is doing what he can to find a solution to the disgraceful slums on Charlevoix's southwest side.

WE COULD CONTINUE with our praise of Gordon, and we are tempted to do just that. But we will conclude with our thanks for his sincere interest that Charlevoix's next State Representative be a strong leader.

However, this has now become our problem, not Gordon's. The people of the new Charlevoix District can no longer look to Gordon for a powerful vice in Lansing. We must find someone to fill his shoes.

At this point the Courier is anything but impressed with the two front running candidates to replace Gordon — Clark Most of Alanson and Ross Stevens of Atlanta. The record, as we piece it together, does not indicate either of these men are able to outgun two or three Detroit Democrats, which is what they will have to do if the six northernmost counties in the Lower Peninsula are to have equal representation.

Odds 'N' Ends

By FRAN MARTIN

Not long ago I had a little squib about the hull of the old boat out along Lake Michigan that was being dismantled now that the water is so low. . . I had a call from Dick Farmer regarding its history which I'd like to share with you because I think it's pretty interesting.

Dick said when his family moved here from Chicago in 1922, he can remember Alfred Sutton telling them about the old Sawyer. Seems it was a tow barge that was used to tote grain through the Great Lakes.

ACCORDING TO THE story, it was loaded with corn which it broke loose in a storm and went aground south of Bell's Bay. The corn itself was washed ashore and farmers in the area as far south as Norwood picked it up by the wagon load and carried it home for their stock. . . That would have been more than 40 years ago that he heard about it and it happened years before that so heaven only knows how old the barge was. . . but certainly more than the 50 years I credited it with.

And speaking of Dick Farmer, he's only recently gotten out of the hospital where he had one of those delicate inner ear operations that one only reads about. . . Seems he'd been losing his sense of hearing on one ear, had been about this new breakthrough in repairing damage to the inner ear. . . After doing more than a little ground work he found that it could be done not only in Michigan but in northern Michigan, Traverse City, to be exact. . . The damage, after all these years, has been repaired and he's real hopeful that his sense of hearing will be almost like new. . . In checking into his history to find how it might have been damaged, he remembered having been struck in the side of the head with one of those old-fashioned swings that used to go halfway to the sky. . . How about that?

If you attended commencement I'm sure you got a chuckle out of the remark made by the speaker, Dr. Walter Johnson, who's in charge of graduate affairs at Michigan State and a pretty terrific guy in his own right when he said there was a time when he thought his name meant a little something in the world of education. . . now he has been relegated to a second place position where he's known as the father-in-law of the former Miss America, Nancy Fleming. . . Of course he was only kidding and had wonderful things to say about this charming young lady. . .

AND NOT SO incidentally, I was mighty impressed with the things Dr. Johnson had to say to the graduates. . . things like we're a family of nations and that no man can ever be an island unto himself. . . that our lives can never be restricted again. . . that there is not only a population explosion but an explosion of knowledge. . . that the automation revolution is every bit as profound as the industrial revolution of the last century. . . that there are dramatic changes in occupations and the nation's work force and chances are many of you (graduates) will soon be working at jobs unheard of at this time. . . He advised that we realize we are one of a family of nations and that we start looking for ways to help the less fortunate all over the world for by bettering their lot we are bettering our own. . .

This is a pretty optimistic world and you still have time to learn, he added in advising them to get as much education as possible. . . He said everyone has two responsibilities, to themselves and to the society in which they live. . . so keep both feet on the ground while developing the set of values you want to live by. . . The strength of our nation is founded on individuals who have something to give. . . and he then quoted the excerpt from the late President Kennedy's inaugural address: Ask not what your nation can do for you but what you can do for your nation. . . And in conclusion said "The world is your challenge. . . Are you going to be a sheep (a follower) or a lion (a leader)? . . . Certainly an inspiring message. . . not only to the graduates but to everyone who heard him. . . We hear so many pessimistic things it's good to hear something like this for a change. . .

And I still say it's a great big beautiful world and I wouldn't miss it on a bet. . .

BEFORE HISTORY—This painting by Robert A. Thom recreates a scene from 12,000 years ago in a Michigan swamp where mastodons ranged. More than 150 mastodon skeletons have been found in Michigan.

Strange Creatures Once Roamed Our Wilderness

The First of Six Articles and Pictures

The discovery of a mastodon skull in 1962 near Pontiac has provided scientists with information of what Michigan was like 12,000 years ago.

The painting of mastodons in "Before History—10,000 B.C." by artist Robert A. Thom is based almost entirely on findings derived from examination of plant and animal remains found imbedded in the mastodon skull and tusk.

HISTORIANS GAINED extensive knowledge of the mastodons from a plug of clay which had filled the right tusk socket about the time of the death of the creature whose skull was unearthed near Pontiac. The socket contained twigs, seeds, needles, cones, pollen, and other plant materials.

Mosses and mollusk shells found in the skull enabled scientists to reconstruct the environment of 12,000 years ago.

Dr. Warren P. Stoutamire and Dr. William S. Benninghoff have placed mastodons in this area on the basis of scientific dating processes. Dr. Stoutamire is a biologist at Cranbrook Institute of Science in Bloomfield Hills, and Dr. Benninghoff is an ecologist at the University of Michigan.

Spruce probably grew near the edges of the open water and pollen suggests the immediate proximity of a sedge marsh or marshy shore vegetation.

"THE MASTODON browsed on coniferous foliage (evergreens)," the doctors said. "The landscape was mantled by stands of spruce with intervening stands of larch, meadows, marshes and lakes."

Thom painted the mastodons from dioramas created by George Marchand at the University of Michigan. The cars conform to a suggestion by Dr. Robert Hatt, director of Cranbrook Institute of Science. Dr. Hatt pointed out that the cars of the cold-temperate mastodon, unlike those of the elephant which has adapted to a warm climate, were comparatively small and thick to obviate freezing.

According to Prof. F. Clever Bald, who has written a text to accompany each of Thom's paintings, more than 150 whole or partial mastodon skeletons have been found in Michigan. Dr. Bald is director of the Michigan Historical Collections at the U. of M.

Other animals of the period of the last glacier, which receded from Michigan about 10,000 years ago, were the mammoths, musk ox, giant beavers, caribou, elk, large razorback hogs, and whales.

BECAUSE MANY mastodons perished in swamps, their skeletons were preserved, Dr. Bald said.

From out of Our Past

The reconstruction of a mastodon found near Owosso now stands in the Hall of Evolution in the U. of M. Museums.

A scientific dating process indicates that mastodons lived in Michigan as recently as 7,000 years ago, or approximately 3,000 years after the last glacier receded from the state.

The glaciers left Michigan gifts of inestimable worth. They scooped out the basins of the Great Lakes which temper Michigan's weather and provide cheap transportation and miles of beaches. In land lakes add to the state's beauty and recreation.

The glaciers also left a low divide running north and south in the lower peninsula. Rivers, which rise near the divide and flow east and west, provided convenient navigation for Indians, early explorers, and tur trappers.

THE TOPOGRAPHY of the land favored loggers and lumbermen because pine forests were interlaced with streams. Logs were carried to the mouths of rivers where mills sawed them into lumber, which were shipped on the Great Lakes.

It is not known when man first came to Michigan. No human remains or artifacts, such as projectile points, have been found near skeletons of the prehistoric elephants. No exact date can be set, but current belief is that man was probably in Michigan some 8,000 years ago, Dr. Bald said.

Paints State History

Six events out of Michigan's past were brought dramatically to life with the unveiling of the first in a series of original paintings on the state's history.

The canvases are the work of artist Robert A. Thom of Birmingham who has been commissioned by the Michigan Bell Telephone Company to do the series on A History of Michigan in Paintings.

THE SERIES is intended to stimulate interest in the state's rich and colorful past.

The six paintings include:
— "Before History—10,000 B.C."
— "Michigan Indians"—An Algonquian Village."
— "LaSalle and the Griffon" showing the French explorer and his ill-fated Griffon, the first sailing vessel on the upper Great Lakes, which disappeared in 1673 on her maiden voyage.
— "Massacre at Michilimackinac."

— "AMERICANS TAKE Over Fort Mackinac."
— "Lewis Cass Expedition."

Artist Thom, a tireless researcher, was assisted in his efforts to insure the historical accuracy of the paintings by Dr. F. Clever Bald, director of the Michigan Historical Collections at the University of Michigan.

Dr. Bald, in collaborating with Thom, has written texts to accompany each painting, which will be run on the Charlevoix Courier editorial page.

MANY OF THE SCENES of Michigan history can no longer be seen or photographed—they must be reconstructed. And he hoped that, by uniting the ability of a talented artist with the work of a noted historian, the history of a great state could be dramatically and accurately portrayed.

The Michigan Historical Commission is making full-color reproductions of the paintings and is offering them to the public in sets of four for $1 a set. Requests for these and future reproductions should be submitted to the Michigan Historical Commission, Lewis Cass Building, Lansing, Michigan.

Keep Sunday Drivers off X-Ways

TO THE EDITOR:

Sunday we were out in the afternoon to visit Mother. Boy! We drove on the regular two-way hard roads and also on the multi-lane highways. We didn't see any accidents, but we did see many potential accidents.

One the 2-lane roads, the regular traffic flow was at about 50-55 mph—except for the occasional joker insisting on his right to drive 30-35 mph. You have one on every stretch of highway and you know the problem and hazard he creates.

ANOTHER TYPE was the driver that pulls onto the highway from a driveway in front of a fast-moving line of traffic and refuses to speed up so you have a chain reaction slamming of brakes.

On the multi-lane highway, fast and slow drivers were in all lanes; the faster cars constantly darting from one lane to the other, just one big mess of cars jockeying for position, making leisurely driving impossible.

It seems quite evident why accidents are so common lately. There are too many omissions in traffic direction and control for the number of cars the regular roads are carrying.

It is common to see cars traveling 10 and even 20 mph over the speed limit. In the short time we're on the way to work every morning, we see at least 2 accidents every week and hear of many more.

I BELIEVE much of the control and direction ideas would help our regular highway traffic problems. More speed limit signs, reminder signs about merging in existing traffic and keeping in right lane except for passing. Just to name a few to correct previously mentioned problems.

The day of "Sunday Drivers" is over on our highways. They'll have to take to country roads.

A Nine-Story High Chuckle

TO THE EDITOR:

I happened to be listening to one of our nearby radio stations last week. The newscaster was reading details of the proposed new hotel. After stating the main parts of the story he finished (with great emphasis) by saying, "And atop the modern structure will be a 'revolving' restaurant!"

I thought this to be too good to keep, so am sending it on for the chuckle. Enjoy reading the Courier. Think yours is great for a small community paper.

Predict Record Softball Program

"With the way things are shaping up, this looks like the best summer yet," was the consensus of Dean Davenport who returned last week from Northridge, Calif., to head up the city recreation program for the tenth season.

The city's summer recreation program which started out with two softball leagues now embraces six leagues, the swimming program plus tennis, track and field events, shuffleboard, and on occasion teen dances.

"AND ALL OF this over the past nine years," Davenport, who has been coaching freshman basketball at San Fernando State College during the past year added.

To give you an idea of the growth of the softball program, last summer a total of 417 people were actively involved in the program as players, managers and umpires. "Probably more active participation, population-wise than any community in the state," he commented.

The same can be said of the Red Cross swimming program where 208 youngsters completed a summer-long series of lessons to qualify in their classes and to receive Red Cross cards to prove it. Credit was given to only those children who completed the course, he added.

As for the 1964 program, it is shaping up well, he said. The response from all groups has been excellent with all teams anxious to open the season.

IT IS SCHEDULED to be launched at 8 p.m. tonight (Thursday) when Lake Michigan Beaches will have American Mold at the softball diamond on West Carpenter Ave. in the heart of Charlevoix's slum district.

At the Class A organizational meeting at City Hall Friday night, for instance, representatives of all five teams plus two representatives from the group of umpires, Gary Smith and Bill Supernaw, turned out. Representatives from the Air Force as well as those from the Coast Guard who will be playing with the City Merchants, were welcomed; practice sessions established.

ed and improvements at the park, including a practice field were discussed.

At the election of officers, Ken Balch was named president; Jim Alger, vice president and Dean Davenport, secretary - treasurer.

"I didn't know there were so many youngsters who weren't already assigned to teams as turned out for tryouts for the Peanut League Friday night and Class B or Junior League Saturday night," Dean said of the response to the notice for tryouts and drafts.

The tennis program will get underway later this month. Application blanks will be made available to those wishing to take lessons, he said.

"We have been asked to take on the responsibility of sporting events during the Venetian Festival and

"We've met with the three life-guarders to discuss this phase of the program," he said in speaking of the waterfront program. Guards will man the beaches as soon as the weather demands it, he said.

Gary Smith, a recent graduate of Northern Michigan University, with a major in physical education will be at the Depot Beach and handle the swimming program; Al Arvilla will return to the Lake Michigan Beach and Terry Stewart, a newcomer to the program, will be at the Ferry Ave. Beach from noon to 6 p.m. Life-guarders will be at the Depot Beach from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and the Lake Michigan Beach from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. with time out for lunch.

The rafting and diving platforms will be placed in Lake Charlevoix at the Depot Beach and the Lake Michigan Beach within the next 10 days.

Swimming lessons will begin in early July.

Swimming races will be held ADD Predict Record later in the summer after the youngsters have completed their lessons.

THE SHUFFLEBOARD courts will be in charge of two old-timers in the program, Reno Hamilton Carpenter Ave. tonight (Thursday).

and King Saunders, with a new-comer, Jim Flynn, taking over at the Lake Michigan Beach near the bathhouse. Shuffleboard continues to be popular recreation for people of all ages Davenport said. However an effort will be made this year to interest some of the oldersters in the tournament which last season attracted only young players.

"If the program is going to continue to grow as it has during the past few years, we're going to have to work hard and put in a lot of hours," Davenport said. "Usually people are interested in only one phase of the program and are not aware of its scope. Neither are they aware of the growth. Records

Gordon Backed 11 Bills That Became State Law

Eleven bills, written or cosponsored by Representative Don Gordon, Leland, became law during the legislative session just ended. The principal measure written by Gordon is Michigan's Minimum Wage Law, which becomes effective Jan. 1, 1965. Given top priority by Governor Romney, it will provide a minimum wage of $1 an hour in 1965, going to $1.15 in 1966 and reaching $1.25 in 1967. The law will apply to persons between the ages of 18 and 65 employed by employers of four or more persons. An employee must be on the job 13 weeks to qualify.

stipulates that the unemployed parent must be registered and actively seeking work. H.B. 203 describes, defines and adopts for Michigan a surveying system of coordinates for designating the position of points on the earth's surface. H.B. 412 increases from $90 to $140 per month the amount paid to aged and other dependent persons being cared for in hospitals or convalescent homes. H.B. 522 AMENDS the construction safety law to exempt, beginning in January, 1965, employers with fewer than three employees. H.B. 41 establishes a green driver's license for minors to deter them from altering ages to obtain alcoholic beverages. H.B. 400 puts paregoric on the telephone prescription list. Paregoric addicts, whose numbers are rising alarmingly, boil the morphine from paregoric and inject it into their veins. The latter two bills were authored by Representative John F. Toepf of Cadillac. Representative Gordon, former administrative assistant to Congressman Robert P. Griffin, is a member of five regular Committees of the House of Representatives, holding the chairmanship of one and vice-chairmanship of another. NOW REPRESENTING Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix and Leelanau Counties, he is an announced candidate for the State Senate in the September primary. This district includes Grand Traverse, Wexford, Manistee, Mason, Oshtemo, Benzie, Leelanau and Lake Counties.

ANOTHER GORDON bill, strongly supported by local officials and sportsmen in Benzie County, will open Crystal Lake to year-round fishing. This measure is expected to increase resort business without adverse effects on fish populations.

In cooperation with Antrim County trappers, he introduced a bill to reduce the license for out-of-state fur buyers to the same amount paid by local buyers. This is expected to bring greater competition, which will result in higher prices paid to trappers.

Charlevoix County will benefit from a Gordon-backed bill authorizing the Conservation Department and Historical Commission to acquire and designate a new historic site on Beaver Island. This will convert the former Dr. Protar property into a tourist attraction.

Seven other bills, cosponsored by Representative Gordon, also have been signed into law by Governor Romney.

H.B. 109, THE Uniform Securities Act, puts Michigan in line with other states in regulating sale and purchase of securities and preventing fraudulent practices. H.B. 193 provides for aid to dependent children of unemployed parents under a federal program, thereby taking some of the financial load off county welfare rolls. The Act, which expires in 1967,

In the fourth grade students begin learning about geography, maps, and the earth's structure. These students range from Asia to Maine.

The fifth grade is devoted to a study of U. S. history, culture and geography.

In the Sixth grade children turn their attention toward our cultural ties with the Old World.

If Someone Knocks On Your Door And Asks You To Change Your Heating System Ask Him These Questions

1. Will your heating fuel cost more than my present fuel oil heat?
2. Will they guarantee in writing that it won't cost more?
3. Will I have to install storm windows and insulation to meet your cost estimate?
4. Will my heating supply be cut off, if due to loss of job or sickness, I am unable to pay my heating bill when due; or, will it continue during the emergency period as is the present situation with my fuel oil supply.
5. Will you guarantee in writing the BTU content of the natural gas delivered?
6. By using modern oil heat, I am free to buy both fuel and service where I choose. If I am displeased with your heating fuel or service, can I change to another supplier?
7. My oil fuel gives me plenty of hot water fast? Can your system match this?
8. Will you give me a written guarantee that heating costs under your system will not exceed your estimate.

My "Pop"

... a grand guy in any language. A very special fellow at our house. Without him around night brings fright. But for him we couldn't eat as well, nor as much. He may be gruff at times; he may be firm when he disciplines. And we may answer "yessir" in agreement when he commands, but he is the very foundation of everything at our house.

It takes him to silence the doggie ... to persuade Jr. ... to laud sister's successes and to heap high praise on all the things mother does ... that's "My Pop". They possess rare qualities, these fathers. A good one is a source of joy to every child. Then on this Father's Day, let him have it right in the heart.

Atm all the good things at him. Give him the treatment he so justly deserves and make him wish for another Father's Day very soon. Play with him but also pray with him. Be a worshiper with him at your church this week.

Pete Timmer Retires From Post Office

36 Years Handling Mail to End
July 31 for Local Postmaster

He doesn't come right out and say so, but the nostalgia in his voice and eyes tells you Pete Timmer is beginning to wish it could go on forever.

Timmer has announced he will voluntarily retire as Charlevoix's postmaster on July 31, if the politicians let him. It will end 36 years of service in Charlevoix's post office.

PETE TIMMER

THIS WEEK'S Courier records what may be one of the last major chapters in the story of Charlevoix's most unique personality — Earl A. Young.

News that the Weathervane Terrace is going to be a reality will be doubted by some. This is as it should be. The Weathervane Terrace's history is drawn out and involves clashes between several strong personalities.

But all of this is common knowledge and best left off the printed page. Suffice it to say Earl Young is realizing his dream—in spite of serious problems — and Charlevoix is getting yet another major asset, thanks to his creativeness and energy.

Young insists the Weathervane Terrace "isn't Earl Young." He's only partially right. The dream was his. The design is his. His inspiration and determination infected others, who, with their money and skill, will now play a major role in making it a reality.

If Charlevoix did not already have Boulder Park, Park Ave., and the Weathervane Inn, someone studying plans for the Weathervane Terrace would consider it little short of fantastic. But because we have so much other evidence that the fantastic is routine for Earl and Irene Young, we don't get as excited as people would in another community.

The Weathervane Terrace will take its place as "one of the things to see" when you show a guest the sights of Charlevoix. It will be on our Chamber of Commerce brochures, along with so many other Earl A. Young creations.

Charlevoix is one of the nation's most beautiful, unique, wonderful towns because of many things and people. Earl

Camp Charlevoix Starts 39th Year

Camp Charlevoix opened its 39th season Saturday with a capacity enrollment of 147 boys. Mr. and Mrs. Ken Smith, owners and directors report.

According to Smith, the camps are from 11 states and Yugoslavia. The only personnel change this year is the addition of Mike Chenek of East Jordan as head waterfront supervisor.

AGAIN THIS YEAR, Smith is writing a weekly column on Camp Charlevoix events for the Courier. It is called "Camp Charlevoix Corollary Chatter" and is found on page 5 of this week's Courier.

Weathervane Terrace To Be Finished This Year

Architect's Sketch of Weathervane Terrace

Unique Stone Motif

Will Attract Conventions

Construction of the Weathervane Terrace, distinctive luxury and convention motel, will be completed by Christmas 1964, Earl A. Young and associates said this week.

The surprise announcement ended two years of delay in construction of the 36-unit motel on Pine River Lane.

YOUNG AND PAUL J. Olsen, Weathervane Terrace major stockholders in the One-One Corp. (the motel is located at 111 Pine River Lane), said financing and construction contracts for the $400,000 motel have been finalized. Contractors are expected on the job in two weeks.

Building started two years ago but halted after approximately $100,000 was invested in the property, engineering, material and work, Olsen said.

Last week re-financing was completed when an insurance company loan was secured, Olsen, corporation president, said.

Designed by Young, the motel will harmoniously complement other unique Charlevoix architecture he has pioneered over the last 50 years. It is directly across Pine River Lane from Young's Weathervane Inn, one of his best known stone creations.

THE MOTEL'S MAIN fireplace, Young said, will be one of the most unusual in the country. The lobby's windows were made in Poland in 1897 of wrought iron frames and beveled plate glass.

As originally conceived, the motel will offer convention facilities for 100 people. Dining and entertainment will be tied in with the Weathervane Inn.

The motel's location provides a view of Round Lake, Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix, as well as the busy Pine River, the world's shortest river and only one that runs in two directions.

Oral Polio Clinic Sunday

The 3,000 persons who received oral polio vaccine at the Health Dept's first spring clinic are being urged to get their second round vaccination.

The clinic will be held at the County Building Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. All persons can participate. There is no charge, but a donation is appreciated.

PERSONS WHO did not get their first round vaccination can get it at the clinic Sunday.

Mrs. Jeanne Miles, nurse reminded persons who will not be in town Sunday to call the health department before Friday so enough serum can be saved for a make-up clinic.

Other clinics will be held on the same day in Boyne City's elementary school from noon to 5 p.m., in East Jordan's school nurse's office from noon to 4:30 p.m., in Walloon Lake school from noon to 2 p.m. and in Boyne Falls school from 10 a.m. to noon.

Hawley Says No Threat of Deficit Spending for City

The City of Charlevoix will not venture into deficit spending during his administration, Mayor E. D. Hawley told the Courier last week.

Release of the 1963-64 city audit and a study of the 1964-65 city budget indicates the city is court-ing financial troubles.

HOWEVER, MAYOR Hawley declares this is a misleading picture and there is no threat of deficit spending.

Last year the audit revealed the city spent $32,000 more in the general fund than it took in during the year. This year's budget is made to balance by adding $12,530 in "contributions from other sources." What the other sources are is not explained.

Hawley said these "other sources" will be money from reserve funds, or an unexpected increase in revenue.

The mayor said the city will continue to rely on using $40,000 in electric utility profits for the general fund and other money from the reserve of $145,000. This, he points out, allows the city to offer more services and capital improvements without raising property taxes.

HE SAID THE city property tax rate of eight mills is one of the lowest in Michigan for a city that offers so many services and fine parks, streets, beaches, etc.

The electric fund reserve will be maintained at between $125,000 and $100,000 to be prepared for line repairs, new transformers, etc., the mayor declared.

The water fund has a reserve of $84,000. This, plus $11,000 more in profits during the next year, will be spent to improve water lines if a matching federal grant is received.

Will it Happen?

There's no telling what will blossom on Charlevoix's beaches this summer.

At least one topless bathing suit has already been sold in town, Robert Lieberman said it last week, but announced he will stock no more.

"I DIDN'T expect to sell it," Lieberman said. He explained the topless bathing suit was put in his store window on the urging of a salesman to attract attention. Lieberman appeared genuinely shocked that someone bought

If hard work and sacrifice will make you a U.S. Senator Charlevoix had a visitor Tuesday morning who is going to replace Sen. Philip A. Hart in Capitol Hill.

James F. O'Neil stopped at the Courier office briefly to "get acquainted." His automobile speedometer was turning past its 20,000th campaign mile as he pulled into Charlevoix.

O'NEIL, REPUBLICAN member of the State Board of Education, is campaigning for his party's nomination to oppose Hart. But he's doing it in the most unorthodox manner yet witnessed in the 1964 political wars.

Instead of getting a big organization whipped into shape and concentrating on soliciting campaign funds and sending out pamphlets and stickers, O'Neil is quietly roving the state shaking hands and talking to anyone who will listen.

He does his arduous campaigning in one and two day stints, when he can break away from his work as planning and programming manager in Ford Motor Co.'s styling office. Money for travel expenses comes from what's left after his wife and two sons get what's needed from the weekly pay check to run their Livonia home.

THIS IS RADICALLY opposed to accepted 1961 political strategy.

Other candidates have solid organizations working for them. The organization sets up speaking engagements and send out news release, so all the candidate has to do is roll into town at the appointed hour and say a few words to be assured of a built-in audience.

O'Neil's strenuous one-man campaign for the State's second biggest political job would appear doomed to failure.

"But I don't believe it," he says. O'Neil is convinced he can win by getting out and meeting the people on their own terms and telling them where he stands.

It must be confusing to the organization people, because O'Neil is out in front of his two GOP opponents, according to a recent Detroit News opinion poll.

JAMES F. O'NEIL

MRS. ELLY Peterson and Edward Menay are also seeking the Republican nomination to run for Senate. The three way race will be decided in the Sept. 1 primary election. Then the winner will face Democrat incumbent Philip A. Hart.

O'Neil wasn't in Charlevoix long. He arrived about 10 a.m. Tuesday. After stinking as many hands as he could on Bridge St., he came to the Courier. He was in Traverse City for breakfast Tuesday morning and expected to visit Petoskey, Boyne City, Cadillac and return to Grand Rapids by nightfall.

O'Neil was elected to the State Board of Education in 1962, carrying Wayne County by a bigger margin than Gov. Romney did. He points to this as his major Forty-nine local people attended the breakfast for Mrs. Elly Peterson in the Weathervane Inn Saturday morning. Mrs. George Lusk reports.

Mrs. Peterson answered questions and explained her reasons for seeking the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator. Mrs. Lusk coordinated arrangements for Mrs. Peterson's brief visit here.

★ Timmer Retires

arrived from overseas.

THOUGH, POSTAL regulations may be emphasized and lacking in human compassion and understanding, Timmer leaves you suspecting he has learned how to apply them in such a way that the post office serves the public with warmth and friendship.

He is also proud of the national acclaim given his personally cultivated flowers outside the post office building. The flower beds, where you often find him after the morning mail has been sorted, are just beginning to reach their seasonal beauty.

It seems rather ironic that Timmer's retirement after 36 tranquil years, may set off one of the hottest political debates in recent Charlevoix history.

BUT SUCH is the case. The controversy is over who will replace Timmer. The postmaster's job is a political patronage appointment, filled on the recommendation of the county committee of the party in power in Washington.

This means the Charlevoix County Democrat Committee, under chairman George LaBlanc, can have just about anyone appointed it wants to give the job to.

So far Assistant Postmaster Dan Genit and Mrs. Ted Timson have applied. LaBlanc reports a meeting of the Democrat Committee will be held July 11, 8:30 p.m. in City Hall to consider all applicants.

Timmer is staying out of the debate, but cannot disguise his obvious desire to see Genit get the appointment. In fact, he admits one of the factors influencing his decision to retire was a desire to see Genit get the postmaster's job.

GENIT WAS appointed to assistant postmaster when Timmer became postmaster in 1951, on the retirement of Joe Foster.

If the issue is not settled by July 31 Timmer will have to stay in the job until it is.

He came to the post office in 1927 as a substitute, after graduation from Ellsworth High School in 1923 and attendance at Davenport Institute. He became assistant postmaster when Foster became postmaster in 1936.

When Timmer first came to the post office George W. Weaver was postmaster. He was followed in 1932 by Clarence Meggison.

HAROLD WITHERS, who delivers rural mail three days to Bay and detail work of the post office in 1927, the same year Timmer did. He is the only employee who has been there as long as Timmer.

During his 36 years Timmer reports much of the record keeping and detail work of the post office has been eliminated. Modern electronic machines and new methods have made the operation more efficient.

In 1927 the post office was located in the present abstract office on Bridge St. In 1935 it moved to the northwest corner of Bridge and Antrim streets. The present building was constructed in 1956.

Timmer and his wife Winnie will continue to make their home at 200 E. Huron, where they have lived since buying it in 1932 from his first post office boss, George Weaver.

HE EXPECTS they will do some traveling and he will play plenty of golf and bowl. They will continue to concentrate a major portion of their interest in the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church, where he has been on the board since 1936, and a lifelong member.

Their two sons, Howard, a General Motors employee, and Phil, a teacher, are both married and live in Grand Rapids.

★ Deficit

Hawley also predicted the general fund budget will decrease in the next few years as more and more capital improvements are completed, making additional construction unnecessary.

HOWEVER, if the city is faced with rising costs and not enough money to meet them, Hawley said he will call for cutting services, or increasing taxes. Either move would prevent deficit spending.

Charlevoix's financial condition is better than that of almost every similar-sized town in Michigan, the mayor declared. And, he said he sees no reason to doubt it will remain healthy.

Early Deadline

Due to the July 4 Holiday next week's Courier will be printed on Tuesday and go in the mail Wednesday, a day earlier than usual.

News stories and advertising will have to be in a day early due to the early deadline. This means news must be in no later than 10 a.m. Monday and advertising no later than Noon Monday.

Rambling

with sheep

Young is, by no means, solely responsible for this. But without his contribution Charlevoix would not hold the stature it does.

I believe Mrs. Young told us one evening Earl is in his mid-70's. That means the Weather-vane Terrace and his A-frame on Round Lake will be among the last of his creations. I suspect, they, along with many of his other works, will be proudly preserved for many generations by Charlevoixians who have forgotten personality conflicts.

And, in case there is any doubt by those who may feel differently, this week's story that the Weather-vane Terrace will be constructed gives this editor more satisfaction than any he has reported in Charlevoix.

ONCE A WEEK (Wednesdays) this column journeys to Petoskey. I really should be thankful for the trip, for without it the Courier would be printed on 1910 equipment—and look like it.

But, for some never understood reason, I have a distaste for bigger, busier towns. Until a few months ago we lived within 30 miles of Detroit, yet I didn't get into the metropolis more than three times a year on the average.

So, though it's rather ridiculous, I always rue the drive to Petoskey.

However, last week it was worthwhile and shocking. I found out Willard Drost actually knows how to work.

It isn't this column's intention to blacken Willard's character. But last winter Tom and I have swapped insults across the street with Willard as he seemed to stand idly in the show window or on the sidewalk in front of Erber Auto Co.

Actually we knew he was busy selling cars. Yet it just didn't seem like work.

And then last week I find him laboring over a boiling hot fudge kettle at his Petoskey shop. It just didn't seem in character.

It was also a lesson for me. I'd never seen anyone make fudge the old fashioned way. There's no difficulty in seeing why most people have adopted modern techniques. Cooking that stuff and then shoveling it around on that marble slab is darned hard work.

Even more confusing than finding Willard knows how to work, it appears as though he enjoys making and selling fudge and peanut brittle.

★ Swimsuit

It. The buyer, he said, was a girl from Frankfurt, She, reportedly, bought it for a joke.

However, according to reports in the daily press, topless bathing suits are being sold, and used, elsewhere. So even though no more may be sold in Charlevoix, it is impossible to definitely state none will show up on our beaches.

City Attorney John Michael has already been asked he city's legal position will be if a Charlevoix bather decides to get in the swim with the latest style. He does not feel the city will be able to lock the other way.

Pete Timmer's retirement from the Post Office could set the Democratic party back five years in Charlevoix. And for no really legitimate reason.

★ On Senate Trail

political victory (and 1962 was his first successful entry into politics).

Winning a big vote in Democrat Wayne County, O'Neil contends, establishes the fact that voters want to see their candidates on a grass roots level . . . and not behind the smoke-screen set up by big organizations.

THOUGH HE HADN'T had time to become intimately familiar with Charlevoix, O'Neil did commend the community for its initiative in helping develop the Bell's Bay campground on Lake Michigan.

He pointed out his family has always considered Charlevoix one of the nation's beauty spots. The campground south of town is an example of the kind of action needed from local government, rather than always looking toward the state and federal government for help, he said.

If he is elected, O'Neil said one of his first efforts will be to see what he can do to improve highway connections to the Charlevoix area. He feels the new expressways cause many travelers to bypass Charlevoix.

★ To Build New Motel

Another advantage of the location, Young said, is that it is directly off the highway (US-31) but not near enough so guests will be disturbed by traffic noise.

CHARLEVOIX'S FIRST hotel, the Fountain City House, was built on the same site approximately 90 years ago.

Olsen said plans are to open the motel year-around. A package deal will be offered with the Weather-van Inn during the three month ski season. The spring and fall off season months will be geared to conventions.

The Weather-vane Terrace, Young predicted, will attract more year-around business to Charlevoix, that will help, rather than harm, other motels.

He and Olsen said they welcome proposed plans to build the $1.1 million Holiday Towers Resort Hotel on W. Dixon Ave., one block away from the Weather-vane Terrace. Promoters of the Holiday Towers are seeking a federal government loan, with the backing of the Charlevoix Industrial Development Corp.

YOUNG REPEATED his long-held contention that Charlevoix needs three times the luxury motel facilities it now has.

Other major stockholders in the One-One-One Corp. are William Burgess of Monticello, Ill., a Texas and Illinois cattleman; Bob Langford, of Ann Arbor, corporation vice president, who is developing an industrial research park in Ann Arbor, and Robert O. Nelson, corporation secretary - treasurer and president of a Laidington construction company.

Beitel, Seymour United in Double Ring Ceremony Here

Billie Jeanne Beitel became the bride of Edwin Brian Seymour in a late afternoon wedding solemnized at the First Congregational Church Saturday afternoon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne C. Beitel. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Vernal Seymour.

ARRANGEMENTS of white gladioli and pinks and candelabra formed a setting for the double ring service performed by Dr. Harold E. Kohn in the presence of 200 guests.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, chose a floor length gown of ivory satin for her wedding. Re-embroidered Alencon lace and seed pearls outlined the portrait neckline and medallions of the same lace were scattered over the skirt. The circular train was attached to the waist with a large bow.

Her veil of silk illusion was held by a matching satin bow-centered with white embroidered lace and seed pearl tucks. Her bridal bouquet was of white roses.

MRS. SEYMOUR, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of light blue embroidered silk organza over tulle and lace and white accessories. Her corsage was of blue tulle.

A reception followed at Houston's on Michigan Ave., where punch was served on the lawn before the guests gathered inside for the buffet supper.

After a wedding trip through northern Lake Michigan aboard a yacht, the couple will return to Park Ave.

The Rev. Joseph E. Kehler officiated at the double ring ceremony. Organist Mrs. B. Delaney accompanied Mrs. Wanda Enyi who sang "Mother at Your Feet I'm Kneeling" as the bride placed a bouquet at the altar of the Blessed Virgin. The pews were marked with white satin bows and accents of red and white gladioli.

THE BRIDE is the daughter of Mrs. Rhoda Evans of Ellsworth and Mr. Robert Evans of East Jordan. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Majszak of 224 Washington Street, Traverse City.

She carried red sweetheart roses and white feathered carnations on a white prayer book.

The maid of honor was Miss Connie Stader. Miss Geneva Richards was the bridesmaid. Miss Barbara Evans, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. The ringbearer was Larry Evans, nephew of the bride. Postmaster Position is Party Political Reward

Related Story Page 1

Unlike all other Post Office positions, the postmaster is not appointed on the basis of a competitive civil service examination. Charlevoix County Democratic Chairman George LaBlance pointed out.

With the pending retirement of Postmaster Peter Timmer, the appointment of his successor has become a matter of public interest, LaBlance said.

APPOINTMENT of a postmaster is a political decision. The job is deliberately designed to be a reward for service to a political party.

Because the Democratic party controls the White House and Congress, Charlevoix's new postmaster will be selected by the County Democratic Committee, which LaBlance heads.

Traditionally, then, local Democrats will select the person they feel has done the most for the party to be Charlevoix's next postmaster.

If no one who has donated heavily in money and time to the party is qualified for the job, wants to be postmaster, the appointment will, probably, be made on a non-political basis.

LaBlance released the following explanation of the appointment process:

"I have been informed by Senator Pat McNamara of Michigan that the Post Office Department has notified him of a Postmaster vacancy at Charlevoix as a result of Postmaster Peter H. Timmer's request for optional retirement, to be effective July 31, 1964.

"To minimize the problems and misunderstanding often encountered in the appointment of Acting Postmasters and Permanent Postmasters, the following is a brief description of the appointment process.

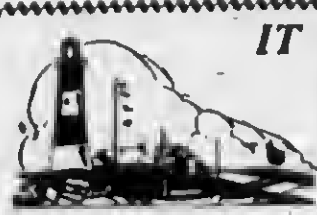

"First, the Post Office Department will notify Senator McNamara of any impending vacancies and he will forward whatever information he has to the Democratic Chairman of the County in which the vacancy occurs and asks for recommendation for Acting Postmaster.

Second, the appointment of an Acting Postmaster. Because some time will elapse before a Permanent Postmaster is appointed, the County Democratic Committee will meet and recommend to Senator McNamara their decision as to whom they recommend for appointment. This job is temporary, has no legal status, does not require eligibility through examination, and anyone may be appointed providing he or she meets the basic requirements of being under 63 years of age and an actual resident within the delivery zone of the post office involved for at least one year prior to appointment. Applicants for Acting Postmasters and Permanent Postmasters are rated on the basis of an evaluation of their business or professional experience and their general fitness for the position.

THIRD, THE appointment of a Permanent Postmaster: the County Democratic Committee will meet and recommend to Senator McNamara their decision as to whom they recommend for a Permanent Postmaster, whether by promotion of a postal employee through a non competitive exam or from the register of eligibles, resulting from an open competitive exam. The applicant must be nominated by the President to the State and be confirmed by the Senate. When a Postmaster is confirmed by the Senate, he is installed on a permanent basis. He is then in a classified position and cannot be removed except for serious charges brought against him through regular Civil Service procedure.

"In summarizing, let there be no misunderstanding, the position of Postmaster is not an automatic Civil Service promotion of a postal employee, but the recommendation and appointment of a qualified person who is worthy of the honor of being Postmaster and that all applicants wishing consideration for a recommendation of an appointment for a Temporary or a Permanent Postmaster position, must first meet the aforesaid qualifications, the favor of the County Committee and have the endorsement of at least three of the officers of the County Committee."

BOYNE CITY — Water, water everywhere — but not enough to meet demands. And farmers face the problem too — even in the Water Wonderland!

Wells on many Charlevoix County farms are not large enough to meet current demands. It may take as long as six hours of pumping to get a one-day supply.

WALT SHELDON, Michigan State University agricultural engineer, says the problem is not just a matter of size of well, but also adjustment of pump controls. Many farms using 1,000 gallons of water per day have wells which can produce only 175-200 gallons per hour.

With most jet pumps this problem can be helped by setting the pressure switch on the pump for 30-50 pounds per square inch and installing a pressure tank with a capacity of 315 to 500 gallons. This increases the water pressure during peak periods of water use. The air volume control, when working properly, helps get full benefit from the pressure tank.

Farmers can also install a shallow well booster pump between the discharge of the large pressure tank and the water lines. The pressure control on this booster pump should be set at 20-40 pounds. "This means that it will operate only when the pressure in the large tank has dropped to 20-30 pounds per square inch or lower," Sheldon says.

On farms where only 500-750 gallons of water are needed daily, a slow producing pump still must operate for three or four hours. The pressure switch setting should be raised so that the pump starts when the pressure is 30 pounds per square inch and stops when the pressure reaches 50 pounds. "There then will be more water to use from the tank after the pump starts," according to Sheldon.

WELL PITS — Which are subject to flooding—are a problem to many homeowners. They are usually located some distance from the house and cannot be drained by gravity.

Installation of a pitless adapter at the well site and a jet pump in the basement can eliminate the well pit. Another solution is to install a pitless jet pump at the well site and a pressure tank in the basement. Or, build an above-ground structure housing the pump at the well site.

The County Health Department is a good source of information on water supplies. One of their many jobs is to test samples to make sure that the water is safe for drinking. In Charlevoix County, samples can be brought to District Health Unit in Charlevoix for analysis.

BEAVER ISLAND — Charlevoix County Clerk F. R. Bulow reports 65 county supervisors and clerks met on Beaver Island on June 24 for the quarterly district meeting.

The supervisors and clerks left Charlevoix on the Beaver Islander at 9 a.m. and returned on the boat at 5 p.m.

OUTDOOR RAMBLING

With GLEN SHEPPARD

IF YOU'VE BEEN following the outdoor news in the big city papers you know some radical changes are in store for Michigan fishermen.

The Conservation Commission has literally discarded old fish management techniques to adopt bold new plans developed during more than 30 years of pioneering Michigan research. This is as it should be. Michigan set the pace in trout stream rehabilitation years ago, and has sort of been resting on its laurels and trusting to old methods.

HOWEVER, THE new fish management program proves Conservation Dept. fisheries biologists haven't been resting. They've put together a new program that will be copied around the nation and maybe world.

If this column may make a personal aside, it would like to note that it has been plugging since 1957 for many of the principles adopted two weeks ago in Petoskey.

Probably the reason the new management program wasn't adopted years ago is that department administrative people feared the public's reaction. Well they might. But this is no reason to falter in doing what they know is biologically sound.

So our hat is off to the present Conservation Commission for acting with courage.

THERE ARE going to be plenty of people mad at the Department because it will no longer be planting puny seven and eight inch trout in streams where they do not belong. Let them keep in mind this program was a financial loss, and if they want to catch spunkless trout they can go to a commercial trout pond.

Others will be upset because size and creel limits are removed on bass, pike and other warm water species. These people will contend that removing restrictions is responsible for there no longer being any fish in their lake. Keep your ears open and see if you don't find many of those who gripe the loudest on this score own boat liveries and tackle stores, or are known to have interpreted former restrictions very loosely when no Conservation Officers were around.

There will also be a few of us, including this column, who get a bit peeved because the $150,000 inventory and survey of lakes and streams brings attention to our favorite "out of the way" fishing holes. But this, too is as it should be. Thousands of acres of top fishing water that has been unknown to the general fishing public will be opened up.

Diverting more of the department's attention and money to warm water fish — bass, pike, muskie, panfish — will also set off a reaction from some trout fishermen. However, this move has long been overdue. Michigan's non-trout game fish have been ignored for years, and they unquestionably provide more hours of sport than trout do.

WITH REASONABLE stream habitat control and stream improvement our good trout rivers and creeks can maintain their own fish populations. Undoubtedly it would be wise, on some of these streams, to extend flies only regulations.

Trout fishermen, however, should be happy if for no other reason that the season opener was changed to mid-May and the closing to mid-October. Actually, stream trout fishing is

St. James Boasts Colorful Post Office

BEAVER ISLAND — The St. James post office here has a colorful and somewhat humble history. Humble, in that it was once decorated by humans and became the retreat of stray cattle and dogs.

COLORFUL IF YOU know it was an early 20th century saloon and gambling hall. St. James' present postmaster, Frank Nackerman, is reported to have obtained his first pair of long pants in the building he now presides over.

The story, in detail, was reported in the island's mimeographed newspaper, the "Beaver Beacon."

Johnny Green, so the Beacon's story goes, put up the building in 1904. He was a businessman who dealt in real estate, a little politics and farmed on the island.

THE TWO STORY building was started on a Saturday and finished the following week. William Boyne was hired to operate it as a saloon. Islanders started calling it the Silver Top Saloon after a brand of beer that was popular with the customers. The upper story was used for card games. A scuffle was out through the floor so refreshments could be passed up from the bar via a box with a rope attached.

Apparently islanders took the 8th amendment more seriously than some people did. When prohibition became the law of the land the Silver Top Saloon closed its doors and the beer tap was removed.

For the next few years the saloon became a tailor shop, where postmaster Nackerman recalls being fitted for his first pair of long pants.

Ready-made evidently took the money of islanders because the tailor shop didn't last long.

THE BUILDING WAS deserted.

P.O. on High Island?

Perhaps the strangest wrinkle in post office history concerning Charlevoix's neighboring islands is that they once supported four post offices.

During the first two decades of this century there were two post offices on Beaver Island, one on the Fox Islands and one on High Island.

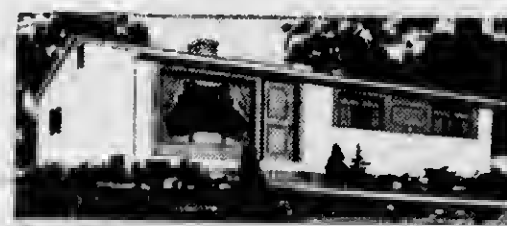

Fox Island's post office was established March 11, 1906 and discontinued Nov. 30, 1917.

A post office was established on High Island June 5, 1917 and lost it Oct. 31, 1933.

Nomad, Beaver Island, got its post office March 10, 1913 and discontinued June 15, 1914.

Feature numbers of this concert will be the "American Folk Rhapsody" by Grundman, the "Star Spangled Spectacular" by Cohen, "American Patrol" by Meacham and the "Stars and Stripes Forever" by Sousa.

Camp Charlevoix

Corrall Chatter

By KEN SMITH
Camp Director

"Once Again We Come Together" was the song that rang through the rafters at Camp Charlevoix on Saturday night as the 39th season opened on a bright, warm and sunny day. Boys arrived from all over the country to either start on a camping career or to renew the years. It was great to see all of the parents who accompanied their sons to camp and many camp looked, and several remarked on the fine staff this summer.

In the evening the annual Pillow Fights were held and from the shouts from the clubhouse, everyone had a terrific time. Those taking part were: Russell Long, New York City, beat Greg Mast, Birmingham, Mich.; Jim Hilboldt, Kalamazoo, won over Hugh Broder, Detroit; Robert Poplack, Birmingham, Mich., won over Mark Herschede, Cincinnati; Sandy Lange, Indianapolis, beat George Lackey, Grosse Pointe; Keith Smillie, Ann Arbor won over Doug Lindsey, Grosse Pointe; Ben Hudson, Farmington, Mich., beat Harry Siegel, Grosse Pointe; Bud Scholtenberger, of Grosse Pointe won over Scott Coleman, Springfield, Ohio; Ted Herrlinger, Dayton, won over Steve Gardner, Philadelphia; Mark Stephen, Decatur, Ill., won over Eric Jensen, Bloomfield Hills, Mich.; Roy Parry, Mt. Vernon, Ohio, won over Bob Smith, Toledo; Robin Holderman, Columbus, Ohio, beat Brad Corbin, Flint, Mich.; Richard Osborn, of Dearborn won over Steve Armstrong, Cleveland; Reeves Logan Decatur, Ill., won over Fred Pfenninger, New Castle, Ind.; Doug Lange, Kalamazoo beat George Steinhardt, Bad Axe, Mich.; and Tom Hoyt, Grand Rapids won over John Martin, East Lansing, Michigan. The evening closed with Ken teaching "Taps" to the boys and many a weary head went to bed that night.

On Sunday morning the first chapel service was held in the outdoor chapel with Ken as the speaker. He spoke on "Building a Reputation," reminding the boys how important it is to get off to a good start and to be very careful to start building a reputation that will go on throughout this summer and for years to come.

At the Sunday dinner two of the counselors, Dan Morganroth and Bob Hickman entertained the boys with some folk songs. In the afternoon, the boys were put through their swimming tests so that each boy was classified according to his ability. The nurse also gave the physical examinations.

In the evening, Vesper services were held in all sections.

The 39th season is off to a running start, and the boys are greatly excited with this adventure in camping.

Charlevoix's new Congressional District takes in all of the Upper Peninsula and eight northernmost counties in the Lower Peninsula.

In Our New District

Bid for Congress

The three announced aspirants to represent Charlevoix in the new 11th District will be plenty footloose before voters make their choice. The two Republican incumbents and one Democrat have 20,922 square miles to campaign in. This compares to a few blocks for a Detroit congressional candidate.

REDISTRICTING OF the district throws Charlevoix in with all of the Upper Peninsula and seven other northern Lower Peninsula counties. The 1960 census sets the total population at 413,880. Charlevoix's old 11th Congressional District had a population of 240,793.

Michigan Congressional district lines have been redrawn to give all the same number of people. The population of the state's 19 Congressional districts will range from 410,000 to 413,000. This makes the 11th District one of the largest.

New district boundaries give no consideration to land area.

CHARLEVOIX'S 11th District is the largest in the state with 20,922 square miles. Some Detroit-area districts will hardly be as large as a Charlevoix County Township.

The new 11th District takes in what was previously the 11th and 12th districts with the exception of Kalamazoo County which is now in the 10th District. The new district has 22 counties, including all of those in the UP and the top eight in the Lower—Charlevoix, Antrim, Otsego, Munie, Alpena, Presque Isle, Cheboygan and Emmet. It is nearly one-third of the state's total land area.

Combining the 11th and 12th Districts into one, has created a Republican primary battle between the two men who represented the old district.

REP. VICTOR A. KNOX (R-Sault Ste. Marie), who is Charlevoix's congressman from the old 11th, is in a head-on clash for the GOP nomination with Rep. John B. Bennett (R-Ontonagon), who represented the eight western-most UP counties that made up the old 12th District.

The winner of the Sept. 1 Republican primary will be challenged by Democrat Raymond F. Clevenger of Sault Ste. Marie. Clevenger has long been active in UP and State politics, but is making his first bid for a major office. No other Democrats have announced they will run.

Knox Runs for 7th Term

The following is a statement prepared by Rep. Victor A. Knox, Republican, announcing his candidacy for Congress from this district.

Congressman Victor A. Knox announced he will be a candidate for re-election and pledged to carry his campaign to all 22 counties of the new 11th Congressional District.

Knox, who is a senior member of the House Committee on Ways and Means, will be a candidate for his seventh consecutive term in Congress. Prior to his service in Congress he was Speaker of the Michigan Legislature for six years, and a member of the Michigan House for 16 years. All told, Knox has served in State and Federal elective office for the past 28 years.

CONCERNING HIS candidacy, Knox said, "My decision has been reached after consultation with a great many of my friends from all parts of the Upper Peninsula and Lower 11th Congressional District. Knox is from Sault Ste. Marie, centrally located in the new district. Like Knox's present district, it is the only Congressional District which fronts on all three of the largest Great Lakes, Superior, Michigan and Huron.

As a ranking member of the House Committee on Ways and Means, Knox is serving on what is generally considered to be the most powerful Committee in Congress. It has jurisdiction over all legislation dealing with taxation, tariffs, Social Security, unemployment compensation and national debt. In addition, Knox serves on key conference committees of the House and Senate.

During the 88th Congress, Knox has sponsored several bills vital to the economic future of Northern Michigan. Among them are measures designed to eliminate tolls at Mackinac Bridge, revitalize the commercial fisheries of the Great Lakes, assist Michigan's hard-pressed mining and wood-products industries and protect Michigan bakeries through tariffs on bread imported from Canada. Knox also has introduced legislation to liberalize pensions for veterans of World War I, World War II and Korea and their widows and to extend Social Security coverage to all persons over 70 years of age.

Knox has sponsored measures to encourage comprehensive health insurance for all senior citizens through a system of tax credits and rebates. Knox also has been extremely active in the current fight to preserve railroad carry-service at the Straits of Mackinac. Knox is married and has one son.

UP Dem Opposes Republicans

The following is a statement prepared by Raymond F. Clevenger, Democrat, announcing his candidacy for Congress from this district.

Raymond F. Clevenger, Sault Ste. Marie Attorney and former and Securities Commission has announced his candidacy for the new 11th district seat in Congress which covers the entire Upper Peninsula.

Clevenger, 38, a Democrat, opened his campaign with an attack on the "do-nothing record" of the incumbent Congressmen from the UP.

BORN IN CHICAGO, Clevenger came to Michigan following military service in the European Theater and studies at the University of London. He received his Law Degree from the University of Michigan in 1962 and established a law practice in Sault Ste. Marie in 1953 where he joined the partnership with Paul L. Adams, now a member of the Michigan Supreme Court.

Clevenger was elected Chippewa County Circuit Court Commissioner in 1958. He was appointed head of the Michigan Corporation and Securities Commission in 1961 by Governor Swainson. This agency has complete control of all corporations, securities, real estate, and residential builders' operations governed by the State of Michigan.

He has been active in many public service organizations in Sault Ste. Marie. His record includes being president of a P.T.A., a member of the Industrial Development Commission, the City Park Commission, the Grange, Cub Scout Committee, and the Isaac Walton League.

The candidate is married. He and Mrs. Clevenger have three boys and two girls.

Soak Your Soul In Greatness--Live Worthwhile Life

By REV. H. E. KOHN

In early colonial days in America, before metal candle molds were available, our forefathers made candles by dipping strings into a pot of wax. Several candle-wick strings were hung a few inches apart on a stick called a "candle rod." The wicks were laid on the rod at their middles. Then the two sections of the string were twisted together to form an extra thick wick. After the wax had been melted, the wicks were repeatedly dipped into the hot wax, and with each dipping another layer of wax was added to the wicks until at last candles were formed. Then the candles were burned, serving the world by freely spending themselves.

Living the worthwhile life is a little like candle-making: such living consists mainly of receiving and spending. We come to earth with certain wick-like native endowments. These are given to us at the start, our inherited physical equipment, appearances and capabilities. These are dipped into the world repeatedly and are covered with all sorts of influences—fellowships and associations, schooling, trainings and temptations, pains and pleasures, vexations and victories. All of this, the original wick and the accumulated spiritual and intellectual substance, we burn as we live. The quality of our light depends upon what kind of wick we have and upon the value of the life-substance into which we are plunged.

BUT THERE is this difference: between candle and character: unlike an inert candle which is dipped by forces wholly beyond its control, we make choices. We decide to be a friend of this person, but not of that one. We choose to read this book and to leave another unread. We prefer this profession, select this trade-school or college, date this girl, marry this woman, resist this temptation, and every choice conditions our future dimming or brightening the effect we will have upon our times.

Since this is the case, into what kinds of influences will we dip ourselves from now on so that we may attain the kind of manhood and womanhood that these times need?

For one thing, we can assure the world more light of wisdom if we will plunge our minds into an unending educational process that does not end with terms or semesters, with diplomas or degrees. Someone once said, "Every time you open your mouth your mind is on parade." Of course it is. Our everyday conversation is a revelation of the poverty or richness of our thought-life, whether it is drab or exciting, interested in the perverse and the evil or in the good, in the destructive or the redemptive, in gossip or sincere appreciation and praise, in the hurtful or the helpful. We will never have a better grade of conversation and communication until we have a higher grade of thought. To be engaged in an unending educative process means dipping one's intellectual wick into the great thoughts of all time. It means immersing one's mind again and again in the highest conceptions of man, of human possibilities under God, of the most worthwhile goals and the most abiding values—until all these become a part of oneself. Only then can one's communications and conversations illumine the world. . . . READING BIOGRAPHIES of the great people of all time is one way we can immerse our minds in greatness, immersing our thoughts in something bigger, better and worthier of circulation than we are. We learn what kinds of character have withstood temptation and testing and what kinds of persons have been most durable, resisting the erosion of time. We see the good, the better and the best not as vague abstractions, but vividly portrayed: clothed in flesh like our own, and pulsating with life. When dipped in the memory of such greatness, our lives take on some of the unselfishness, purposefulness and high aims of the most noble servants of mankind. Bible reading is a way of immersing the wick of our being in the revealed will and love of God. In the Book of Psalms we become immersed in the conscience of God's most sensitive prophets, priests, preachers and poets, and we sense God's will coming to us through good, wise and holy men. The New Testament Gospels are God's "love letters" to a lone-some world, revealing through Jesus Christ how much God cares for us. To read the Bible with reverence means speaking one's mind in the secrets of attaining peace and poise in a troubled world, absorbing the highest standards of conduct and a sense of direction and destiny, an assurance of help and guidance along our way. Bible reading means becoming drenched by the encouraging memory of the mighty acts of God throughout human history. When we have accumulated the wholesome consequences of such a dipping of our thought into the Bible, we are ready to illumine our corner of the world.

YOU SEE, THE will to be cool is not enough. While the desire is a fair start, it is still but a wick-like thing, that, by itself, makes a very feeble light. But when we are immersed in the inspiration of great books, great fellowships, great art, great moments of holy worship, and in "the beauty of the Lord" as revealed in nature, then our light surpasses in brightness any illumination our own poor wick can offer to our times.

Soak your soul in greatness.

World's Fair Display

Of interest to Charlevoix visitors to the New York World's Fair was the Pavilion of American Interiors where this prize winning design in the "Design for Better Living" display.

Here Mrs. Gregory Shrdko, admires the table her son, James P. Haggard designed to take prize in a contest sponsored in schools and colleges by the Pavilion and the Fine Hardwoods Association. The design which won a fourth place in the contest, was the next of tables pictured above. Mr. Haggard was a student at Woodbury College in Whittier, Calif., at the time his design was submitted in the contest. He and three friends are presently engaged in operating their own interior decorating business in the Los Angeles area.

THIS PICTURE was the result of a suggestion made by Frank Martin that Mrs. Haggard have her picture taken with her son's entry during her visit to the Fair while on a shopping trip for the Polly Kay Shop.

It is interesting to note the first place winner in the contest was Bruce Riley, a student at Michigan State University, whose prize-winning walnut cabinet could be used for high fidelity equipment or storage.

For the information of future visitors to the Fair, the "Design for Better Living" winners are displayed on the fifth floor of the Pavilion.

Career Outlook Bleak on Farms

By ED REBMAN
Extension Director

BOYNE CITY—The future looks bleak for graduating farm boys who want to start their own farm enterprise, according to Ed Rebman, Charlevoix County Extension Director.

Only one out of every 16 farm boys reaching employable age can expect to enter farming on a self-sufficient basis, says Rebman. But other youths can start farming on a partnership basis with a father or other established farmers.

"WHEN WE consider only farms with $10,000 or more gross income, we find room for only 200 youths to replace retiring farmers," adds Rebman. "Yet about 4,800 Michigan farm boys reach employable age each year."

C. R. Hoglund, Michigan State University agricultural economist recently pointed out that youths entering farming today need a goal of $4,000 to $5,000 to be comparable with some types of available off-the-farm work.

"Farm account studies in recent years show average labor incomes of $3,000 to $4,000 depending on the type of farm," claims Hoglund. "The better managers earned $5,000 or more but some farmers failed to receive a hired man's wages after deducting all costs."

He also cited three prime ingredients farm youths must have to be successful in turning today: —A real interest and liking for farm work.

—Adequate capital to develop a highly efficient farm business. —The background and skill to keep informed and apply the technologies and practices which contribute to high returns.

"THE OPPORTUNITIES for farming are fewer today than in the past, but the returns are greatly improved," concludes the agricultural economist. "The future belongs to the youth who is willing to prepare properly by becoming a skilled technician and a good business manager."

Leave Wildlife Children Alone

With Michigan's deer herd in the midst of their fawning season, the Conservation Dept. is again asking outdoor-goers not to pick up these "babies in the woods."

The department's plea is especially heeded at well-meaning people who get a strong urge to adopt fawns when they find these spotted little animals all alone in their forested nurseries.

IT DOESN'T MEAN the youngsters have been orphaned just because their mother isn't around, department game men explain. Chances are she will be watching nearby as recreationists admire her newborn, or not far off seeking food and water.

Besides going against nature's scheme of things, it is also illegal to molest fawns and other young wildlife. Persons breaking this law face a maximum fine of $100 and/or a 90-day jail sentence.

OUTDOOR RAMBLING

With GLEN SHEPPARD

JOTTINGS FROM a tackle box notebook . . .

There's always an off-chance a Garden or Hog Island small-mouth bass could win in this year's Field and Stream fishing contest. This is the biggest contest of its kind in the nation, and certainly would be a coveted prize for both a local fisherman and the area.

What's it take to tag a winner? First off you get your entry blank from the magazine. Then — and most important — fish even when you don't have time.

And, according to last year's records, it might help to have the right kind of tackle. Fifty-four of 1963's winners were using Garcia Corp. reels. Next in line were users of Shakespeare and Pflueger reels, catch with eight winners.

This certainly doesn't prove your chances of hooking and landing a keeper are better with Garcia products. But it may be an indication that anglers who do use them would rather fish than work.

AND HERE are a few tips that should pay off for local bass fishermen, from no less an authority than Dick Kotis of the Fred Arbogast bait company:

1. Dark colored lures are best for night or dark days, light colored lures for murky water or bright days.

2. When fishing sharp drop-offs, fish parallel to the shore, or toward the drop-off.
3. Try a stop and go retrieve. Drop the lure gently into the pockets of lily pads or around stumps or rocks where fish hang out. Let it rest until the ripples disappear. Twitch it with a jerk of the rod tip. Hang on! This is the moment of truth. Many fish will hit a resting lure.

IF YOU'RE not a pipe or cigar smoker odds are you have problems with mosquitoes and bugs. Actually there are some darn good repellents on the market.

But here's a new, and novel, twist. Serno, Inc. — the canned heat folks — are putting out a repellent called "Barrier" in an envelope about the size of a book of matches. The dope is on a moisturized towlette inside. You just wipe your skin with it.

FOR YEARS I'VE had visions of a monster pike or bass exploding out of the lily pads to grab a big surface plug. I'm sure many other fishermen figure big — really BIG — fish will think large floating plugs are living mice — and respond with a carnivorous lust for warm blood

But it has never happened to me. I always end up switching back to a smaller surface plug before any fish respond. Now the Hula Popper and Jitterbug are putting a fur-like finish on these champion plugs to imitate mice. Maybe it's worth starting all over.

IF YOU WANT some last action some morning put your boat in at the Susan Lake public fishing site.

You'll be darn lucky to come up with any of the lunkers Susan Lake used to produce. But there are lots of small pike that put up a swell battle on light tackle. You can either troll or look around until you find a weedbed that extends into deep water.

If you decide to plug cast for them try one of the new Finnish minnow-like lures. Either the genuine article from Finland or Heddon's Cobra (both available in town) produce better than anything else in my tackle box. Best results seem to come from getting the plug down near the bottom and then retrieving it as fast as possible.

You're in for some real fun when a small pike darts out of the weeds and grabs hold. Be sure to use light tackle and play them for all they're worth.

THE AMERICAN Products Industries Inc., is putting out newsletters blasting government purchase of land for recreation purposes. The organization suggests government ownership of this land is nationalization of our land resources and robbing the tax base.

As an alternative they suggest privately owned forests are usually open to public use and the land remains on the tax roll. They also point out 39 federal agencies have authority to buy land.

Cannot help but agree that more recreation development, such as plush campgrounds, lodges, marinas, etc., should be done by private industry. But the need to set aside more and more acres of land for public use — without extensive development — continues to be one of our greatest needs.

Some people just didn't realize how much Fords have changed. Then, they came in to see Mustang — and took their first good look around a Ford showroom. They saw the hottest line of cars in America... the "Car of the Year" Award winners... the best-built Fords ever. They saw cars so smartly styled, so easy to handle, so good to drive, that they made this the best sales year in Ford Division history even before the Mustang came out. They saw America's leading performance car — the Super Torque Ford (hardtop sales up 54%). They saw America's most famous personal luxury car — Thunderbird — with sales up 68% over last year's record. They found out why Falcon almost outsells Chevy II and Valiant combined. And why Fairlane is a pace-setter in its own field. One look can make you fall in love with any one of Ford's 46 models. A test drive can make you a Ford man forever.

Kelley Seeks Local Help To Save Area Railroads

With the "Save Michigan Railroads" hearings just two weeks ago, Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley has asked for "all the help the people of Michigan can give."

The Atty. Gen. reports he has moved legal preparations for the hearings into high gear, but the real victory will be the public's.

THE HEARING WILL be held by the Interstate Commerce Commission in Cheboygan beginning July 8. They will determine if 340 miles of Michigan railroad track should be abandoned. Charlevoix County is directly affected. If the railroads get permission to abandon the tracks, the majority of the county will be without rail service.

Boyer City and Boyne Falls will be cut off completely. This will leave only Charlevoix with a railroad.

The Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors, Boyne City Council, and East Jordan Council have voted funds to support the "Save Michigan's Railroads" campaign. The City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix County Planning Commission has gone on record as opposing the abandonment.

Atty. Gen. Kelley said: "WE HAVE NOW received hundreds of responses to the question-

Shamrock Flowers on Island

(Editor's Note:—This article is reprinted from the June 15 issue of Michigan News. Mrs. Wexstaff, who with her husband operates Art's Cleaners in Charlevoix, has written several children's books and other articles.)

By BERNICE WEXSTAFF

BEAVER ISLAND — The Shamrock Bar in the town of St. James on Beaver Island, some 18 miles out in Lake Michigan from the city of Charlevoix is an anomaly that could flower only in a tight-knit community like Beaver Island.

The Shamrock is owned and operated by an Irishman with a French name: Archie LaFreniere.

IT IS LOCATED in a town named for an Englishman, self-proclaimed "King" James Strang who was a Mormon and the only king who ever "reigned" in the U. S.

The Shamrock was built by Nels LaFreniere in the late 20's and was originally used as a dance hall.

But with repeal in 1933, it was licensed to serve beer and wine under the name of the Village Inn. In 1936 the building was moved to its present site, facing the Lake Michigan harbor.

IN 1937 NELS LaFreniere sold the business to his sons, Archie and Vernon who reopened it for business on St. Patrick's Day in 1938 under its present name.

In the 30's the life of a bartender was a rough one, as Archie now relates. There was no television to keep the customers entertained, but the Irish, as usual, were equal to the challenge.

Their Saturday night fights with no holds barred were something to behold!

A bar operator on Beaver Island trying to keep his business and even his building intact among celebrating Irish fishermen needed the silver-tongued oratory of a barnstorming politician plus the prowess of a professional wrestler.

BUSINESS WAS THEN (and still is) tops at the Shamrock and for a very good reason: the Shamrock is the hub of life on the island, having run the gamut of human experience through four decades.

In 1936 a trial was held by the State Rep. Don Gordon of Leland was a guest speaker at the Barnard Methodist Church Sunday. The speaker next Sunday will be Mr. Stao McRae of Mackinaw City.

Rev. and Mrs. Conklin, retired Methodist minister of Lansing are spending two weeks at the Lee Elapton cottage. Mr. Conklin was a minister in Barnard 36 years ago.

state for the murder of a high school (one of the Beaver group of islands) Indian.

Swafford, the white defendant, was an employee of a religious group known in southern Michigan and High Island as the House of David.

Swafford had found the Indian's squaw most attractive and had paid her more attention than the Indian thought necessary.

A SCUFFLE followed and Swafford hit the Indian over the head with a buggy spoke, killing him.

Nels LaFreniere, the presiding judge, was at that time Justice of the Peace at St. James.

With a beer bottle for a gavel, court was called to order and the defendant cross-examined by the Charlevoix County sheriff and prosecuting attorney.

The jury then retired to Nels LaFreniere's store where after some time and refreshments they returned to the Shamrock court room and presented a verdict of self defense for Swafford.

IN DECEMBER, 1946, with the tragic death of islander Charlie Anthony O'Donnell the Shamrock was pressed into service for a make-shift undertaking parlor for two days.

The Shamrock is also the center of social work on the island, serving as the island's unemployment office in conjunction with the Michigan Employment Security Commission's office in Petoskey since 1945.

On March 2 of this year, the Shamrock was the scene of a wedding. One Richard Capek of Whitehall, Mich., and his bride-to-be, Miss Patricia Schroeder arrived on the island with Judge Conley of Charlevoix in tow and the wedding vows were said in the presence of friends from southern Michigan.

Following the service a gala reception was held for the young couple who had fallen in love with the island on previous visits.

THE HAPPY honeymooners were not unique. The island way of life fascinates many visitors.

It has been proven over and over again by the hordes who made the pilgrimage to St. Patrick's Day hoopla in March.

All mainlanders sooner or later find their way to the social center, the Shamrock. But no matter how much island dev they soak up nobody has ever seen a pink elephant in the Shamrock.

Of course occasionally some slightly dazed celebrant has been startled by a jolly leprechaun staring through a window, eyes filled with merriment at the gaily with-in.

If there is doubt in the visitor's mind that the "little people" exist, he should be reassured that anything can and frequently does happen on Beaver Island.

PERHAPS SOME early immigrant carried a bit of the Auld Sod to keep his heart in touch with the land of his birth.

Or still it wouldn't be too surprising if some of the "little people" had been hiding all along in the lush island greenery.

But no matter by what miracle they settled on the Auld Sod of Lake Michigan's Emerald Isle where else would they go for birth to gladden their tiny hearts but to the Irish Shamrock of St. James.

die to live

The Book says this earthy body must die IF it is to live. How cheerfully the farmer plants his corn! He knows it must die, but he also knows that 'death' is part of the process of life. Immediately after the seed is buried in mother earth, all the ministries of God are set in motion to work a miracle. For it is said, that to make one little, yellow grain, requires the sunshine and the rain, the hoarded riches of the sod — and God. It is all the miracle of Life. The hull rots and falls away much like the sins of a man being reborn of God. It is the Lord's way of carrying on His creative process to multiply the sustenance of both man and beast. Then thank God for life that is born of death. The fruit of summer and of autumn waits upon this death-to-life miracle of a good God, as a reborn soul waits to be used of his Lord. Then, there is no death... what seems so is transition. Come with me to church this week.

Fred Dittmer Spans Printing's Complete History

The printing industry has grown up with Fred Dittmer of 101 E. Huribut. During Fred's 60 years in printing he has witnessed virtually every major advance made in the last several hundred years.

When Fred started as a 14 year old printer's devil in Akron, Ohio, in 1901, newspapers were set pretty much as they were when the first moveable type was invented hundreds of years ago.

LESS THAN A YEAR AFTER Fred started in the trade, the Akron Beacon Journal got its first Linotype machine. The machine cast type automatically, doing a job that previously took dozens of men.

Monday Fred previewed northern Michigan's most modern printing plant, the new Charlevoix Courier plant. The plant's equipment is a literal showcase of the most modern in the world. And, for Fred, it was the dawning of another era.

The new offset equipment the Courier will be printed on marks the third major breakthrough in printing history. It is the second of these three in Fred's lifetime as a printer.

The first came with the invention of the printing press and moveable type, prior to 1800. The second came in 1900 when the first linotypes were built. The third is offset printing.

WHEN FRED, WHO IS NOW 78 started work in a commercial printing shop all type was set by hand... just as it had been for centuries.

Each letter and punctuation mark in a newspaper had to be individually put in place. Then, when the newspaper was run off the press, printers, Fred included, returned each letter and mark to their proper place in the type case.

Fred was saying Monday, that his pay in those days was determined by how many inches of type he set a week. This was measured with a string he carried from payday to payday. If the knots in his string showed he had set 100 inches of type he received pay for that much.

It was a slow, clumsy technique. Newspapers in those days had to be extremely small as typesetters couldn't keep abreast of the pace of the news.

Then came the linotype.

"I CAN REMEMBER WHEN THE FIRST one was delivered to the Beacon Journal," Fred said Monday. "It was a crude thing."

But, crude or not, it revolutionized the newspaper business. Instead of the old two inches of type an hour a printer could now set 30 inches.

"The big papers we have today would not be possible without the Linotypes," Fred said.

However, Fred admitted he never learned to be a proficient Linotype operator. "The first time I tried 1910-Dittmer studies an early model Linotype in the old Courier printing shop. Though Fred didn't want to "spend my life sitting behind one of those things," he agrees they revolutionized the printing industry.

1964-Fred and Courier Business manager Tom Mc Daniels look at the new rotary web offset press on which this week's Courier was printed, making it the first newspaper in northern Michigan to be produced on such equipment.

Pioneers in New Process

Courier Leads North

The Courier you are reading is the first, and only, one of its kind in northern Michigan. It is the pioneer edition of what will someday be followed by all small newspapers.

The only thing that isn't changed with this week's Courier is the people who produce it and the people who read it.

THE PRINTING process is completely new and revolutionary. It is called rotary web offset.

It is new because it does away, completely, with the clumsy tons of metal, dirty ink and sweaty back shops newspapers have been tied to for years.

It is a pioneer because this Courier is the first ever produced in northern Michigan on a rotary web offset newspaper press.

To our readers it will mean an easier to read newspaper, with picture reproduction that can be equaled only in

Dean of Township Government to Quit

When William M. (Sandy) Sanderson 37 years ago said he would accept a draft as Eveline Township (Trouton) Supervisor his mother offered to give him $500 a year if he would refuse.

Now, nearly four decades too late, Sandy is going to turn the job down. He has been re-elected, "without once soliciting votes," for the past 37 years. This week he told the Courier he will refuse to run this year.

SANDERSON HAS BEEN a supervisor longer than any other man in Charlevoix County, and maybe the state.

His announcement that he will be out of the race makes him the only local supervisor who will not seek reelection in November. Others who have said they will run are Lee Sneathen, Jr., Hayes Township; Clyde Warner, Northwood Township; Clarence Rabach, Charlevoix Township, and Clyde Cunningham, Marlon Township.

Due to the new constitution, township officials, including supervisors, will be on the November ballot, along with governor, president, legislators and county officials. In the past, township elections have been held in the spring.

In Eveline Township and Charlevoix Township candidates will be nominated at a Sept. 1 primary election. Political parties will pick their candidates at caucuses August 29 in Northwood, Hayes and Marlon Townships.

THE INCUMBENT SUPERVISORS -- Rabach, Sneathen, Cunningham and Warner appear to be secure in their bid for re-election.

However, in Eveline Township, not even Sanderson is willing to speculate on who will step forward to seek the post he is retiring from.

Persons wanting to run for office in Eveline and Charlevoix townships must take out nominating petitions from the township clerk, Township clerk, treasurer, supervisor and trustees will be elected. The petitions must be returned by July 21.

In townships that remain on the caucus system, persons seeking nomination must attend the caucus.

SANDERSON SAID THERE is a possibility none of the present Eveline Township officers will seek re-election.

Due to state and federal restrictions on local government, "township government has lost the thrill of individuality," Sanderson said. "Most of us have also, been on there (the Township Board) for quite a while," he added.

Sanderson explained his mother offered him $500 a year not to take the supervisor's post because she compared it to a (then) graft-ridden political job in their home city of Milwaukee.

Flowers at 42 Businesses

Women of the Charlevoix Garden Club last week turned attention from their flower beds to the business district.

What they discovered pleased them to no end. Businessmen have wholeheartedly taken up the club's proposal that Bridge St. stores put out floral displays.

THE CLUB CITED 42 businesses for putting out flowers or shrubs. Club members described the enthusiasm of merchants for the project as "wonderful" and "gratifying."

Postmaster Pete Timmer's flower beds at the post office were selected to receive the first business district flower display award.

Garden Club judges, Mrs. Ralph S. Hamilton, Mrs. Ross Alexander and Mrs. Albert V. Edwards, said Timmer's flowers at the post office have long been an important contribution to Charlevoix's beauty. They said they hope his gardens will be continued after he retires July 31.

The judges gave honorable mentions to Ed Heise's Rock and Relic Shop, Erber Auto Co.'s white picket fence and flowers and Dr. Robert Martin for his office.

BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL offices cited by the club for putting out displays are:

Cleanup Starts On Slums

City Puts Old Law to Work

City Council Monday evening stood behind its order to use existing laws in an attempt to eliminate health hazards in the small cluster of slums in the southwest section of town.

City Attorney John Michael said he has ordered owner Harry Martin to eliminate debris on one of his rental properties along Carpenter St. The debris, piles of lumber, and improperly covered privy, Michael said, is harboring rats.

MARTIN WAS GIVEN until mid-July to clean-up the property so it satisfies city officials. If it is not done by then the city will do it and Bill Martin.

Michael said he visited the 15 worst homes of the 22 county officials contend are sub-standard. However, present city laws, Michael said, could only be applied to the one.

In other action the city awarded bids for paving on State St., Prospect and the road from Dixon Ave. into the Coast Guard Station.

Hodgkiss and Douma received the contract for their bid of $9,231 on bituminous asphalt. John Martin's bid of $10,027 was the highest received.

CURBING BIDS WERE also let. Ray Whitley was awarded to bid to put concrete curbs on Prospect for $990.

Councilmen also heard a tentative request to rezone Gordon's Port to commercial two so a gas station can be erected.

Rezoning Likely For Lake Cottages

Rezoning to allow 60 foot lots on Lake Twenty Six (Lake Marlon) in Marlon Township was recommended by the Zoning Board last week.

The Township Board is expected this week to make a final decision on the Zoning Board's recommendation.

A realtor requested the rezoning so he could build a summer cottage development on the property.

Provide 220 Units in Charlevoix

Resort Trade Relies on Cabins, Motels

By FRANK MARTIN

A motel with a swimming pool, a more modest facility catering to those wishing peace and quiet after a long day on the road, a cabin on the lake, efficiency units . . . these are only a few of the many tourist facilities offered in this northern Michigan community in the heart of the summer resort country.

One of the main features of them all is the fact that they are within minutes of any of Charlevoix's lakes, boating areas or bathing beaches, a "must" with vacationing city-dwellers.

THOUGH TWO NEW facilities, the Holiday Towers Hotel and the Weather-vane Terrace, promise to add another 100 rooms plus dining and convention rooms to existing accommodations, operators who are now in the tourist business will continue to be the backbone of the state's second largest industry, the tourist trade, in this community.

One operator, commenting on the two new "glitzy" facilities, said "We're all happy to see these new facilities preparing to open. They will bring even a different clientele to the community and we are sure to benefit from it." This comment was typical of those made during the survey of local facilities last week.

The majority were in agreement when it came to the type of season they were anticipating. "Last season was our best in years and this one promises to be even better . . . if, and this is the key to the whole outlook, if we have a good summer, weather-wise."

Most operators who were open in April said things were slow then but that May had been a head of last year. However, the below-normal temperatures early in June were reflected in the number of tourists on the highway.

THE GOLF TOURNAMENT last week compensated for that in many instances. All local resort operators profited from this event which brought more than 225 golfers alone. Some brought their families with them and others were joined by their families after winning the qualifying rounds. Add to this the number of people who follow such events and you can see what this means to the economy to the community during an otherwise slack period.

Mrs. E. C. Beesley of the Charlevoix motel which is off the regular circuit on the Boyne City road off US 31 North said they had golfers for the first time.

Oscar Stroud, dean of all resort operators, having been associated with the business since 1934, tells of Fred Turner, former state champion from Flint who returns to his cabins every year with the understanding that he can have his "lucky" cabin, the one he occupied when he won the state title.

Many of the golfers return later in the season with friends to enjoy the course at the Belvedere, site of the tourney for the past two years.

RESORT OPERATORS AS well as all other local business people agree that this event is, indeed, a boon to the trade, getting the resort season off to an early start. "Usually our first big weekend would come the first week in July but this gets us in to the swing of things a week earlier. In a business as seasonal as ours, this means a great deal!" one operator said.

July 1 will mark the opening of two facilities new to the community. They are the American, an addition to the Gibbons facility, and the Charlevoix Motel on May st.

The American is described by Mrs. Gerald Gibbons, veteran operator, as "a swank, yet quiet, place catering to couples." The seven-unit motel, scheduled to open this week, will feature spacious carpeted rooms approximately 13 x 25 feet in size with eight-foot windows that open on the back to keep out sounds. Each room will have its own thermostat. This, added to their North Star motel with eight family units which is beginning its fifth season, make the Gibbons operation one of the more versatile in the area.

The other motel new to the community is the Charlevoix Motel located at 1001 May st. and operated by a newcomer to the trade, Frank Smith. This facility includes four units plus an apartment and a house. They have all been newly decorated and furnished in a modern motif designed for comfort.

PROBABLY THE MOST versatile of all operations is Stroud's which has the Wayside motel with 12 units and a 30x50 lobby with a fireplace where coffee is served to guests; 12 cabins com-complete with cooking facilities and "Lots of ice" located in a wooded area overlooking a private beach on Lake Charlevoix, and seven other cabins in a quiet shaded area north of US 31 North and two cottages for larger groups.

Also located in the area north of the city limits are Wal-Mar Court and Foster's Motel.

At Wal-Mar Court, operated by the Watake Lodgers, who are operating for the third season, are eight units of log construction which will accommodate from two to six people. Each features a kitchenette as well as living and sleeping quarters. Most of them have fireplaces the Lodgers plan to stay open throughout the winter beginning this year.

Another feature is the Wal-Mar Cotifure shop operated by Mrs. Loder where millady may relax in formal garb having her hair done without leaving the premises.

AT FOSTER'S THERE are 15 units, including some efficiency units, located away from the noise of the highway in a grassy, shaded area. The Bradford Fosters who operate the business are beginning their 20th season at this site at the edge of the off the comfortable interior of one of his four new Charlevoix Motel units. The nearly completed addition to the Gibbons motel and cabin operation is seen on the lower left. Wally Loder's cabins, in their pleasant setting, are seen on the lower right. (Courier Photo)

a variety of accommodations, catering to couples as well as families. A sandbox and playground equipment are found under the birch trees for the entertainment of the young fry.

At the intersection of US 31 and State St. is the Capri, operated by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nowakowski who have paneled and carpeted the 10 units since taking over two years ago. There is also hi-fi music piped to the units as well as TV sets in all the rooms.

On the curve, a short distance past State st., is the Archway Motel owned by the Marlon Fays, one of two local motels that feature swimming pools. This attractive facility has added several units this season, making it one of the largest motels.

Across the highway and a little closer toward town is the Villa Moderne, operated by the Carl Bogarts who have been in the business for 18 years. This will be his fourth year in this motel which has eight double rooms, this is, two double beds to each unit. Mr. Bogart said they try to cater to the people who want a quiet place.

In discussing the outlook for the season he, like the others, anticipates a good season "if the weather is right." He went on to say he was happy to see such facilities as the Holiday Towers Hotel and the Weather-vane Terrace added to the local scene. Like several others, he said that such outstanding accommodations were bound to contribute to the overall economy of the community as well as add to the variety of facilities already available here.

On M-66 at May st. and Stover Road is the Ship-Shape Motel with its revolving beacon which is open for its twelfth season. "Last year was our best since we opened and I expect this one to be as good," Fred de Castro said. Open since March 15, he said the early part of the season was slow but June was better than usual. He also added that the golfers contribute to making June a better month than it once was.

Another type of facility is found off US 31 on Carpenter where the Robert McLeans have nine cabins, six single and three duplex units. Eight of them boast cooking facilities. All are located in a setting of cedars and thick green lawns dotted with inviting lawn furniture.

At Michigan and Dixon avenues at the top of the northside hill is The Lodge, the most luxurious of all local resort facilities. Operated by Pines, Inc., this motel boasts 40 units including three two-bedroom suites, an attractive lobby where continental breakfasts are served to guests and its own year-around pool plus a sundock for summer use. Brian Seymour, reservations manager, said he anticipated a good summer and added that some dates in July were booked solid. He said that business during May had been excellent but that June had been slow, compared to 1963.

Little more than a block off the business district on Antrim is the Charlevoix Hotel. Offering 14 rooms and a lobby, the hotel is open all year. It is operated by the John Connollys.

Camp Charlevoix

Corrall Chatter

The first week of this 39th season started off on Monday morning with the campers being taken to each activity to meet the instructor and to find out what was to be taught in that activity. This is always a most interesting day, as each group is given a fifteen-minute introduction to each activity, after which the boys decide which activity they wish to take while here at camp.

On Tuesday, our first trip left camp. Tom Sukany, our trip man, started the season off by taking his cabin group on a canoe trip down the Jordan River. The boys spent the night at Grave's Crossing, fishing and enjoying this beautiful spot, and then started down the river in canoes. These boys were: Richard Osborne, Bob Bushnell, Bill Gardner, and Steve Arrington. Marsh Moser, Assistant Counselor, accompanied the boys, too.

The big event of the day was the election of leaders for the GREEN-GREY COMPETITION. The SENIOR GREYS are headed by Doug Laing, Kalamazoo, with his two lieutenants being Ralph Miesel, Detroit, and Bruce Douglas, Oak Park, Illinois. The Senior Greens are captained by Mike Rittorf, Springfield, Ohio and the two lieutenants are Jim Todd, Kalamazoo, and Tom Hoy, Grand Rapids. Intermediate Grey Captain is Carter Sales, Grosse Pointe, with the lieutenants being Jeff Nyland, Grand Blanc, and Dave Washburn, Detroit. The Intermediate Greens are captained by Mark Stephan, Decatur, Ill., and his lieutenants are John Jelliffe, Columbus, Ohio, and Karl Bowman, Grand Rapids, Mich.

The choosing in the Junior Section was very spirited and exciting. The Junior Greys are captained by Chuck Gardella, Grosse Pointe, with Steve Ambler, Grand Rapids, and John Sklar, Detroit as his lieutenants. The Junior Greens elected Bob Poplack as their Captain, with his lieutenants being Jim Cote, Dayton, Ohio, and Mike Cooper, Columbus, Ohio. This was a very windy day with the waves just rolling over docks and shore. The new hoist for the new power boat arrived, and the boys watched it being installed at Ken's dock.

WEDNESDAY DAWNED cold and windy and dark and cloudy and just the kind of a day to stay in bed. We did sleep a half hour longer with breakfast at nine o'clock. The canoe trip from the Jordan River returned and reported a very fine time. The sun came out later in the day, the wind went down and by the evening all was very lovely. In the evening, we had a movie. It was a color feature of "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" and everyone in camp enjoyed it a great deal.

On Thursday, two more cabins took to the road by way of horses, and these boys were from Jon Howard's cabin 16 and Carl Brown's cabin 17. The boys on this trip were: Roy Feldman, Mark Holderman, Matt Dec, Roy Parry, Bob Smith, Tom Rotz, Mark Murfin, Art McKenny, Robin Holderman and Brad Corbin. The Green-Greys are meeting and getting organized and ready for the competition which will start on Sunday. There are many cabin challenges each evening when cabin groups are trying to establish a champion. This gives the Captains of the Greens and the Greys a chance to look over their men.

FRIDAY WAS A NORMAL camp day, with yesterday's trip arriving back in camp. It was a hot day, and ideal for good campplung. The waterfront was a most popular place.

On Saturday, we had another hot day, ideal for camping and the boys were busy in their activities. The evening was given over to the first Council Fire which is the initiation into the Tribe of Charlevoix. The new campers are blindfolded and led by the old campers into the Council Ring where the ceremony is held. The spirits of 1963 are dug up and Ken Read several passages which last year's campers had written. Four challenges were issued to the new campers. The first challenge was given by Greg Demarest, who spoke on "God In Nature." The second challenge was given by Jonathan Howard who spoke on "What I Should Get From My Summer at Camp." The third speaker was Jon Stephenson, and his topic was "Responsibility to Myself and to my Cabinmates." The last challenge was issued by Ace Hoyt, and his subject was "Responsibility to my Camp." Each camper had an Arrow "C", the camp emblem painted on his forehead. After the singing of "Taps," the boys left the Council Ring and silently walked along the shore of the Lake back to their cabins. It was a most impressive ceremony and the new campers were greatly impressed by the seriousness of the ceremony with its many meanings.

THE SUNDAY MORNING Chapel Service was held in our Chapel in the Woods with Tom Kennedy as the speaker. He chose the camp motto as his subject "I Would Be True, For There Are Those Who Trust Me." He gave a fine talk and made the campers think of the meaning of these words. In the afternoon, the Green-Grey Competition started with an activity afternoon during which each team had its very best man compete in each camp activity. It was a very exciting time, and after all the scores were counted, the GREYS had won in every section, getting a big three points to start off this year's competition. At dinner on Sunday noon, Dave Roberts, an Assistant Counselor from Akron, played three selections on the piano. In the evening, the Juniors were taken over to Green-sky Hill to have a Vesper Service in the Indian Church which was built 130 years ago. It was most inspiring and they took much interest in the history of both the church and the cemetery. The intermediates and the Seniors met along the shore of the lake, and as the sun was setting, the boys sang folk songs accompanied and led by Dan Morganrath and Bob Hieckham.

WE ASK PARENTS to please plan to attend our Carnival on Saturday, July 11th. This is a big day in the life of the camp, and boys enjoy having their parents here to enjoy all the fun. More Next week...

New Rules Ready for Wheat Sale

BY ED REBMAN
Extension Director

BOYNE CITY Area farmers will sell this year's wheat crop under a new set of standards.

The new grades should mean less foreign material and dock-age in wheat. One of the main changes in the standards that went into effect on June 1 is that maximum damage has been established for "total defects" for each numerical grade of wheat. These defects include damaged kernels, foreign material not readily removed and shrunken or broken kernels.

STILL ANOTHER CHANGE has eliminated moisture as a factor in determining the "sample" wheat grades. Moisture content for wheat grading "tough" has been reduced to 13.5 per cent for all classes.

Since numerical grades don't always completely describe a certain lot of wheat, special descriptive grades are often added to give the buyer and seller more information. These special descriptive grades include tough wheat, smutty wheat, garlic wheat, weedy wheat, treated wheat and heavy wheat. These will provide the buyer and seller with additional information about a particular lot of wheat.

Courier Goes Offset

high quality magazines. The blurred, smudgy pictures newspapers have been frustrated by for decades are now a thing of the past at the Courier.

"Advertisers probably get the biggest break. For them offset means versatility in ad layouts that cannot be approached by the old letterpress printing process. It also means color can be made a part of their ad very soon.

"To Charlevoix it means the community now has a newspaper that is being watched by hundreds of other Michigan publishers who are contemplating the switch to offset. It also means visitors will instantly recognize that our community newspaper looks 'a little better' than they are used to at home. All of which helps contribute to Charlevoix's reputation as a progressive, quality community.

"FOR US AT THE Courier the change-over has been hectic--in fact, maddening at times--but exciting. The technique is as new and different to us as it would be to suddenly switch from matches and cigarette lighters back to flint and steel. It is, undoubtedly, the biggest challenge in our newspaper careers.

"For, instance, the blue ink on this front page is the first in Charlevoix Courier history. Just the idea of using it, and then figuring out how, calls for a radical bolt from centuries of small town newspaper thinking.

"The Courier could not have made the switch on its own. The nearly half-million dollar cost of plant and equipment would have been impossible for one small newspaper. Fortunately, by joining forces with another newspaper, through the Northern Michigan Review Inc., this change was possible.

"It also means the Courier has taken two dramatic steps since September 1963. Until then it was printed on equipment that was unchanged in design since the early 1900's, and much of it since 1800.

"THEN, IN SEPTEMBER, by jobbing our printing out to the Petoskey plant we were able to take advantage of equipment that was new in the 1920's and 1930's.

"Now, ten months later, we are printing on equipment that is the most modern in the community newspaper industry.

"So, we have been able to travel 150 years in ten months. "Hilda, Sonny, Shep and I are proud to be able to bring Charlevoix northern Michigan's most modern newspaper," McDaniel said.

The Courier's general manager pointed out that arrangements will be made as soon as "things are more settled" for visitors to tour the new printing plant.

Dittmer

to run one I decided I didn't want to spend the rest of my life in front of one of those things," Fred said. "So I got up and walked away from it."

As a result, for 60 years Fred put the type set on Linotype machines into newspaper pages and ads. This was more interesting work.

Now the cycle is complete. Newspapers, with the Courier leading in northern Michigan, are turning to offset. Type for offset is set on machines that closely resemble a typewriter and are nearly as fast.

Fred retired last year, at 77 years of age. Not because he had to keep working. He was eligible for his union pension when he was 65. But after moving to Charlevoix 12 years ago he decided to keep his hand in printing and took a job with the Courier.

Though his age might suggest he would balk at progress, Fred takes just the opposite approach.

The Courier's switch to offset gets his full approval. "It's the smart thing to do," he says with a glint in his eyes that suggests he would like to try working with the new process.

"IT'S A BEAUTIFUL PLANT. Wonderful equipment. You certainly make the right move," Fred said after his tour of the new printing plant.

Ecorse Praises Principal

Clementine McCauley, principal of the John Fitzgerald Kennedy Elementary School in Ecorse and a former Beaver Islander, was honored recently for having served 40 years in Ecorse schools.

A testimonial dinner was held for Miss McCauley by the Community Council of Ecorse. She is retiring this year.

MISS MCCAULEY was praised for her "devotion given to thousands of Ecorse boys and girls."

Miss McCauley's school was lauded by former Beaver Islander Edward O'Donnell, president of Lincoln Products Co., Lincoln Park, Mich. "It was my good fortune to have been a schoolmate of hers on Beaver Island and of whom, we are all very proud. This is one of the finest schools in the industrial city of Ecorse."

With State Amateur Title

Youth in Belvedere Spotlight

By FRANK MARTIN

Doug Hankey, 19, who started playing golf as a freshman at St. Johns High School when his parents wouldn't let him play football, returned to southern Michigan Sunday night, the new Michigan State Amateur Champion after topping a field of 224 entries, many of them former champions.

Hankey, whose play was described as "cool" in the lingo of his generation, defeated Steve Uzelac of Detroit 5 and 4 in the finals at the Belvedere Golf course Sunday afternoon.

THE YOUNGSTER, a junior from Michigan State University where he was No. 6 man on the golf team last spring took an early lead over Uzelac in the finals only to blow it in the third hole. However, he made a quick comeback as the game went into the back nine, taking the next four after playing even on the 10th, 14th green.

He had advanced to the finals after upsetting the defending champion, Melvin "Bud" Stevens of Detroit 2 and 1 after Stevens seemed a "sure bet" to capture the title for the third time.

Uzelac advanced to the finals after defeating Dan Townsend of East Lansing 3 and 2 in the semi-finals Sunday morning and Don Curyla of Detroit 1 up in 19 in the quarter-finals Saturday. Hankey had eliminated Calvin Cooke of Grosse Ile by the same score on Saturday afternoon.

HANKEY'S UNANTICIPATED win Sunday brought a new name to the amateur ranks and called attention to the outstanding performance by many young players who pitted their youth and vigor against a large number of former champions including, besides Stevens, such players as Glen Johnson of Grosse Ile, five-time winner, Tom Draper of Birmingham, Lou Wendrow of Lansing, Lloyd Syron of Pontiac, Mike Anderson of Pontiac, Don Stevens, of Detroit, brother of the 1963 champion, and Fred Turner of Flint.

The former champions as well as a sizable field of "old-timers"

BUD STEVENS of Detroit, defending champion in the Michigan State Amateur Golf Championship, who seemed a sure-fire repeater for the title until he was upset by 19-year old Doug Hankey of St. Johns 2 and 1 in the semi-finals Sunday morning.

Navy Retire

John Bennett has retired from the U. S. Navy after 20 years, most of it in the Pacific.

The son of Mrs. William T. Bennett, he enlisted in the Navy during World War II and saw duty in the South and Far Pacific.

SINCE THEN HE HAS been stationed on the West Coast or served aboard ships operating from West Coast ports. He is staying with his mother in Charlevoix.

In the tournament circuit were depending on their experience and to them to the top.

Ray Palmer of Wyandotte, medalist for the tournament with a score of 143, fell victim to Uzelac 1-up in the second game of match play on Friday.

Sunday's game marked the conclusion of five days of play including two days of medal play when the early morning players teed off in 40 degree temperatures and gusty southwest winds up to 25 miles an hour on Wednesday and 45 degree weather on Thursday. After a brief rain squall Thursday morning, the weather cleared and clear skies and sunny weather prevailed. In fact, temperatures were well in the 80's Sunday with only a cool breeze off Lake Michigan keeping a large gallery on the course.

Circlin' the Bases with DEANO

We're one full week into our softball schedule and from all indications league races will be tighter than ever. Good weather and large crowds have combined to get things off to a smooth start. This week marks the opening of both the Blooper and the Women's league, and as in the past, should provide more fun and excitement for all concerned. The Blooper league is for fellows over 30 years of age and is played with the big 16 inch ball with the bases shortened by 15 feet. Five teams have entered and include Consumers, Hultin and Crain Autos, Buena City, The Dodgers and Novak's Insurance. There is hope that one more team can be organized, so those interested contact the softball officials.

Fastball League

Murwell Steed took a giant step in maintaining their strong hold over the city championship as they won three games during the week. They defeated the Air Force 19-0 and the Merchants 10-0 in easy fashion, then edged the Lake Construction gang 1-0. Against these service nine Bob Klooster and Jack Engles combined their pitching talents to post a five inning no-hitter. Everyone in the Ellsworth lineup enjoyed a fine night at the plate with each collecting at least one hit. Klooster posted the first home run of the year, a three run affair in the fifth.

Against the Merchants it was a little tougher, but not much. Merchants hurler, Ken Smith, held the sluggers at bay for three frames. However in the fourth, Klooster blasted a four home run with two mates on board and before the dust had cleared they had scored five times. With five more runs in the fifth, they wrapped up the game. Big Bob pitched a masterpiece, facing the minimum 15 batters in the two inning game, shortened by the 10 run lead rule. He allowed no hits and struck out eight.

AGAINST THE YOUTHFUL

Lake Construction club the league leaders needed a little luck to post a 1-0 win in a squeaker. Ted Potter pitched his heart out in a losing cause, allowing only five hits and holding Ellsworth scoreless until the bottom of the seventh inning. Up to the seventh both teams wasted scoring opportunities but neither pitcher was solved. In the construction fourth and seventh, they had runners on third. Ellsworth threatened in their sixth, but the runner was cut down at the plate. Then in the Ellsworth seventh an error on a ground ball plus a bad throw put a runner on second. The following batter tapped to short and in attempting to run down the runner on second the ball was thrown out of the field of play, allowing the winning run to score.

American Mold kept up their hot pace with Ellsworth as they posted an easy 21-3 win over the Air Force, with Harv Cole blasting a homer, and a 13-3 win over the Merchants, with Ken Baich hitting for the circuit.

VFW leads in Junior Loop

VFW, cleared a big hurdle in their drive for the title when they edged A&W in a slugfest 12-9. The margin of victory came in the sixth when the winners scored four times. Rich Heoris and Ron Putnam continued to pace the leaders with two hits each. Chip Terrill, after relieving in the first inning took the loss, but hurled well in his pitching debut. Warren Belding, Doug Winnell, and Ed Holms all collected two hits apiece in a losing cause.

The Scouts looked impressive in their opener, winning 16-6 over Jerry's Gulf. Pitcher Skip Young was backed by solid hitting, with Scouts spraying hits all over the field.

Lions lead in Peanut Loop

The Lions turned back the Cards 6-5, and in doing so, took over first place in the peanut league. The Cards suffered their second hard-luck defeat and had two runners on base when the game ended. Craig Lieberman had an extra base hit for the winners and picked up the win after coming in to pitch in the second inning. Norm Ostrum had double for the losers.

The Dodgers got their first win, defeating the Pirates 8-6. Tim Doan had a home run to go along with two singles while Dick Wor-

DOUG HANKEY, 19, of St. Johns displaying the driving skill that won him the Michigan State Amateur Golf Championship and making him the youngest player in 38 years to capture the title.

He paced the losers with two hits.

Pee Wee League

All boys who are not on a peanut league team, especially eight and nine year olds are to meet at the grade school playground on Monday, July 6, at 1:30 to organize into teams for the summer.

LINE DRIVES--Joe Armstrong's great running catch in the Ellsworth-Lake Construction game rates as the finest of the season. That same game produced the best softball seen in some time in Charlevoix. Merchants looked impressive for a while against Ellsworth, especially Dave Novotny's fielding in center field. The Air Force is waiting for a pitcher. VFW is enjoying their recent success, especially after poor seasons the past two years.

Faith's Challenge

There is something very special about a boy and his dog. The dog so obviously wants nothing more than to devote his life to his small master. He takes his boy on faith . . . and, inevitably, the boy lives up to it.

For faith creates a challenge. If someone believes something good of you, you find yourself eager to measure up to that standard.

God looks for the best in all of us. Regardless of what may have happened yesterday we are, today, welcome in His Church. He has faith in us. Should we have less than faith in Him?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the church. They are: (1) For his own sake; (2) For his children's sake; (3) For the sake of his community and nation; (4) For the sake of the church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Needed Today: Some Maladjusted Men

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

At his best, man is the maladjusted creature, chronically dissatisfied with things as they are. Because man had difficulty adjusting himself to cold air and cold food he invented the home fire for warmth and cooking. Because he was discontented with his legs as means of locomotion he invented the boat and the wheel and domesticated horses for riding purposes. Fretting over inadequate means of communication, man invented complex languages to express his thought and feelings and went on to create writing, printing, the telephone, telegraph, radio and television. No other animals have done these things. None have felt a need for better things; they have been adjusted to things as they are.

We humans are adjusted to maladjustment. When life is somewhat difficult for us and we are "out of kilter" with our environment, we often prosper from the strain. When life is too easy for us, we suffer from excess comfort. Have you ever been sentenced to several weeks of bed rest? One would guess that such prolonged repose would strengthen a patient. However, while quietness and inactivity may be curative as far as the affliction is concerned, extended physical idleness raises problems of its own. It weakens the muscles until any mild exercise is exhausting. Muscles require opposition and struggle to keep their tone.

ONE WOULD THINK that walking over smooth, hard pavement would be much easier than tramping over rough meadows, rolling hills or forest trails. City sidewalks and pavements were built especially for man's convenience, to make locomotion more comfortable. Nevertheless, few tasks are more tiring than a day's walk on concrete that has been laid for man's convenience. Concrete pavements are especially fitted to man, and supposedly man is adjusted to pavements. But his body responds better to rough ground, to the harsher environment of the natural world. Too much adjustment is hard on man.

We need more and better maladjustments in human society. In the realm of morals and spirit, adjustment to things as they are is crippling to character, and it stifles progress. The welfare of mankind depends upon the courage of some members of society to be different from the rest. They must go beyond the easy, comfortable morality of those around them. They are better than the law requires and better than man expects them to be, although being different will surely cause them trouble. In the fifth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles the leaders of the ecclesiastical trial of Peter and John. This occurred in the early days of the Christian era when Christianity had a youthful vitality and when it was dangerous to be a Christian. Then, as now, it was desirable to be in adjustment to one's social environment, to agree with the authorities, to merge one's own principles and practices with those of the secular world, to "blend in." When in Rome, do as the Romans do was safe advice, for in those times the kind have always been maladjusted to their times. They dared to be different, to think differently, to act differently. Christ did and His apostles did or there would be no Christianity. Copernicus and Galileo and others did, or we would still believe in a pygmy universe. Inventors did, or we would still be ploughing fields with a stick and lighting our houses with torches or candles. The Abolitionists and Abraham Lincoln did, or we would still have slavery. Robert E. Lee did, or the aftermath of the War Between the States would have ended with greater rancor and less forgiveness. Mankind's most noble servants have refused to become adjusted to man's cruelty to man, to predatory economic practices, to the idea that disease is inevitable and useless to oppose, to dictatorships to the persecution of minorities, to race prejudice, to narrow nationalism, to the war method of solving international differences. For conscience -- for man's sake and for God's sake they lived differently. They rejected the premium that others put on a safe conformity and they venture to become uncommon men. They did not parrot the opinions of others but spoke their own clean, sharp words. They did not blend in, but stood out even when it was perilous to be "outstanding."

HOW ABOUT YOU? Do you tend to become confirmed, blended with the masses, losing your God-given individuality?

Do you let advertisements dictate your tastes, adjusting your thinking and buying to what others are doing around you? Advertising pleads with us to become standardized, to "be in fashion," to wear what others are wearing, eat what others are eating, drink what others are drinking, drive what others are driving, read what others are reading. Do you give glad answers to these invitations to conformity, to mass-mindedness, to apathological escape from your own uniqueness?

Do you unthinkingly bow your knees to custom and tradition without examining their values?

Does "Everybody's doing it" seem an adequate justification for almost any behavior? For common vulgarities? For heavy drinking? For laxity in matters of sex?

DO YOU HAVE only impressions, opinions and theories that change with the shifting winds of public opinion and practice, or do you hold mighty conviction that give you steadfastness and strength when others waver?

Are you a voice or merely a echo?

Would you rather be wrong and approved by others, or right and ridiculed?

Some years ago a telephone operator in a small Cape Cod town received daily calls from a man who asked for the exact time. This went on for many weeks. Finally the operator asked the caller why he called every day requesting the correct time. The man replied, "I must get the exact time, because I am the man responsible for blowing the town whistle precisely at noon each day." "Well, that's mighty odd," the operator replied, "because every day, exactly at noon, set my clock by your whistle. A parable of life? We tend to set our time, our moral standards, our principles from one another. Being adjusted to each other we become maladjusted to God."

Like Peter and John, we need to get our time from the heaven.

Earl Young Adds to Charlevoix's Beauty

SOMEDAY A WRITER will find himself faced with the job of putting Earl A. Young's life story on paper. We're betting, right here and now, the story will not do the man justice.

Before undertaking the task we hope the writer realizes that if he does a commendable job he will end up with a controversial biography. For Young, like all men worth public discussion, has been the center of disagreement. This is to their credit.

OF IMMEDIATE interest is an attempt to analyze how important a chapter in Young's life story the Weathervane Terrace will play. Currently it is the chief topic of local discussion. Within a few months we are sure thousands of people will be talking about it.

People we meet downstate and in other parts of the north country regularly tell us they know where Charlevoix is. "That's where the stone restaurant beside the bridge is, isn't it?" they remark when told we are from Charlevoix. Many of our guests, upon arriving in Charlevoix, demand that we take them to see the stone houses.

Though there are some who will not appreciate our opinion, we have no doubts but what Young's contribution to making Charlevoix stay in memory of thousands of people and appeal to them is greater than any other one man's. For this we are all indebted to him. Agree or disagree with him, we do not see how this fact can be denied.

AND NOW, AS HE reaches for his 80th birthday, this puzzling little man with the eyes that always seem to be searching for something new and exciting has reached a new horizon. His creation, the Weathervane Terrace motel, will be completed by winter. It will give Charlevoix one of the most distinctive guest facilities in the country.

Now, in addition to wanting to see the stone houses and stone restaurant by the bridge, they will have to get a close look at the stone motel with the windows.

Almost everyone in Charlevoix who is in anyway allied to the resort trade will benefit from the Weathervane Terrace, including, we hope, Earl Young.

As Young points out, the Weathervane Terrace would not be under construction if it weren't for several other men. The Courier also commends these investors for their foresight in recognizing a unique and profitable idea. To our notion it would have been a grave injustice if Young's idea had not been able to become a reality. Because of these investors this near miscarriage of justice has been righted. We thank them, and feel all of Charlevoix will.

Charlevoix would not be Charlevoix without Earl and Irene Young. The Weathervane Terrace will be another monument to this remarkable couple and their love for Charlevoix.

James O'Neil Bucks Political System

WE HAD HEARD there was a man from Livonia quietly touring Michigan's back roads trying to talk citizens into electing him to the U. S. Senate. But in this age when we're used to carefully organized political campaigns we sort of suspected this was all just a publicity stunt.

After all, you can't expect us to so naive as to believe anyone in 1964 would try for the State's second most important political job without a wealthy campaign effort behind him. Things just aren't done that way in 1964. If you're a candidate for a major office you don't go touring the state appearing unannounced to talk with people.

BUT JAMES O'NEIL is doing just that in his bid for the Republican nomination to oppose Democrat Senator Philip A. Hart. He is campaigning on a shoestring and doing the leg work himself. Last week he brought his campaign to Charlevoix.

Before you get the notion O'Neil is a crackpot, listen to what he has to say. He makes good sense, as much or more than most candidates for the job. And he doesn't talk like a radical. In fact he sounds and looks like the father next door. No glamor candidate here.

He will fast convince you he is sincere and able. His grassroots approach to campaigning is something of a personal experiment. He believes politicians are still servants of the people, and as such should get down and meet the voters on their own level. He will know if he is right after the Sept. 1 primary election.

HOWEVER, WHETHER he's right or wrong, we cannot deny we enjoyed his brief, unexpected visit to Charlevoix and wish him the best of luck. It isn't our intention to urge you to agree with or vote for O'Neil, we only suggest that he is worth giving attention to.

MASSACRE AT MACKINAW—This painting by Robert A. Thom for the Michigan Bell Telephone Co.'s historical collection depicts the ruse used by Indians to gain entry to Fort Michilimackinac.

British Arrogance Cost Loss of Fort

The Great Indian Uprisings in 1763, instigated by Pontiac, an Ottawa war chieftain, led to the "Massacre at Michilimackinac."

A small detachment in late 1761 occupied Fort Michilimackinac, the most important fort north of Fort Pontchartrain in Detroit. The widely-dispersed British forces were little more than symbols of sovereignty.

General Jefferey Amherst, the British commander-in-chief, despised the Indians. He felt they should be punished for delinquencies rather than bribed to make them friendly.

Irritated by British arrogance and secretly encouraged by the French, the Indians were ready for revolt in 1763. In the Detroit area, Pontiac called a council of local chiefs. They planned the capture of Fort Pontchartrain and also agreed to ask distant tribes to launch attacks on other forts.

MAJOR HENRY GLADWIN, Fort Pontchartrain commander, received Pontiac, and allowed 70 chiefs, warriors and some women to enter the fort for a parley. Pontiac had intended to attack, but seeing the British had been warned, withdrew.

His attempt at subterfuge thwarted, Pontiac began a siege of the fort. It lasted 153 days, a record for Indian operations and a measure of Pontiac's ability.

After the siege started, Pontiac mounted attacks on other forts.

The British, protected by a high stockade at Fort Michilimackinac, felt secure from Indian attack. The fort had been built between 1715 and 1720 by the French to control fur trade.

In May, 1763, voyagers, Indians, and others began arriving daily from their winter camp. One of four English traders living in the fort was Alexander Henry, whose later writings provided much of the information concerning life in the fort.

ON JUNE 1, INDIANS swarmed into the fort, visiting merchants and asking to see ornaments and silver armbands. When they bought only tomahawks, Henry tried to warn Capt. George Etherington, but was shrugged off.

The morning of June 2, 1763, was warm and humid. There was great excitement among the Indians. The visiting Sauk had challenged the local Chippewa to a game of baggataway. The game, called la crosse by the French, was played with a crosse, a four-foot stick with a bag or racket of skin straps at one end. With the rackets, the ball was caught, thrown, or carried to a goal, a post at each end of the field.

The Indians, always inveterate gamblers, made heavy wagers. They invited the British to attend, and the captain promised to bet on the Chippewa. The officers joined spectators outside the stockade. The gates were open and blanket-clad squaws entered the fort at will.

Several hundred braves ran, shouted, brandished crosses, and tossed the ball about.

SUDDENLY, amid confusion, the ball was hurled high in the air. It fell near the entrance. Players dashed through the open gates in pursuit. Dropping their sticks, they snatched knives and tomahawks from the squaws who had concealed them beneath their blankets. The top officers were captured before they knew what was happening.

Inside the fort began a general massacre. Henry, in his house writing letters, saw the savages madly attacking every Englishman in sight. The startled trader saw Lt. Jamet struck down and scalped.

Henry noticed the Canadians stood apart, neither aiding the Indians nor being assailed. Henry tried to flee. An Indian slave took pity on him and hid him in an attic. Through a crevice, Henry watched. Besides Jamet, 15 soldiers and an English trader were killed.

Although threatened several times, Henry escaped. A half-Indian officer, Charles Langlade, persuaded the Chippewa to leave Henry with him. Three days later, Chief Wawatam returned and bought Henry's freedom.

Letters to the Editor Liked Reception

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to thank you for the fine article and editorial that you wrote about the members of our group and our project.

Goldwater Fan

TO THE EDITOR:

I have at hand a copy of the June 11 Courier sent me by my son Kreigh Collins from East Tawas where he received it.

I should very much like to give to five or six copies of the complete issue. It was a most interesting illustrated article, and a friendly, courteous thing for you to do. Charlevoix was not unknown to my late husband and me. It was always included in our vacation plans. We usually based our stay in the Lake Ann district to be close to Interlochen.

I SHOULD ALSO like to mention your evaluation of Senator Goldwater in the same issue. A conservation—not far right—Republican all my life; which includes voting in 1912 in Colorado for Theodore Roosevelt as a Bull Moose, I have no misgivings as to Goldwater's principles and actions, should he be nominated or elected to be President. I don't agree with all of his statements; I disagree with the roachback tactics and speeches of the golf appointed Republican king makers.

Thanking you for the Couriers and with best wishes for you and your excellent newspaper.

Nora Collins
(Mrs. Stephen Collins)

fect the Holiday Towers. We appreciated the wonderful coverage of your fine paper.

However, I would especially like to thank you and your fellow citizens of Charlevoix for the reception that we received at the lunch of June 2, 1964 at the Weathervane. I, quite frankly, was not prepared for the warm hearted atmosphere that we experienced. It is refreshing in this day and age to sit down and talk openly with real people. I find it difficult to express our genuine appreciation of the confidence in our project that we felt on that day.

I AM SURE YOU will be interested to know that the project is progressing quite rapidly. Provided the ARA approves this project for Charlevoix, I am confident in saying that we will open the doors of Charlevoix's newest resort hotel on July 1, 1965.

Let me thank you and Charlevoix again.

Sincerely,
Allen D. Tucker, President

By FRAN MARTIN

What with the beautiful weather at the time of the equinox last weekend I couldn't help but think that we were in for a real nice summer. . . . But that thought was gone on the blast of cold air that blew in out of the southwest early Wednesday. . . . Where did I get the idea that the weather on the first day of the new season had anything to do with the kind of summer we were going to have? . . . It's like this . . . once upon a time, long ago, my postman, Walker Miles, told me that if I'd watch the weather at the time of the equinox, I'd know what the weather for the next three months was going to be . . . I pooh-poohed the idea in the beginning, but I found that, as a rule, it holds true . . . Now, if you'll think back, Sunday was a real nice day, a wee bit on the cool side when you were out of the sun, but bright and pretty most of the time . . . The Monday was a real summer day . . . as June 20 so someplace in there, when summer really arrived, the weather was good . . . So, have faith, it may not always be at 40 degrees as it was at my house Wednesday morning . . .

EVERY JUNE, FOR countless Junes, I've gone into a certain store in town and there, right in line with the front door, have seen a counter stacked high with bathing suits . . . it seems I always say the same thing upon seeing said stack . . . "Good heavens, do you expect to sell those?" . . . And every year they do tho' it's been sort of touch and go during some of the cooler summers. . . . This same scene was repeated just recently . . . But, you know, now that I think about it, I neglected to ask if Orrm had any of those topsless bathing suits we've been reading about stashed away at the bottom of that stack . . . Must ask next time I'm in the store!

And I'm not going to ask what you think of said suits . . . 'cause you might all decide to answer my question . . .

Isn't it true that Americans have a tendency to take everything for granted . . . and never stop to take stock and appreciate what they have . . . A recent letter from one of our exchange students, Ulrich Kallmeyer, who was among those to spend the year with us during the 1962-63 school year, brings out this point . . . Tho' I received the letter some time ago, I thought it so appropriate at this time when we observe the anniversary of our own Independence . . . Though his English is, at times, a little confused, I'm sure you'll get the point: Looking at the wall of my room you find the picture you personally gave me the year I was an American boy. It draws back countless numbers of memories to just look at any of the football kids. Scenes come up that seem forgotten at times, feelings are aroused again which you could not possibly have over here in Europe . . . American style, American living, liking, acting . . . those are the things you miss on the old continent and those may be reasons for me to at least spend part of my life away from Europe . . . This does not mean that I am referring to Germany or any other European country as a mine land. It simply includes the fact that sometimes you get so sick of certain attitudes and repeated actions of people over here so that the other country you have lived in suddenly is rising in the brightest of light . . . I have no direct connection with Germany although I think I am European through and through. Most people, at least the young ones, don't have this personal relationship with their "fatherland" as American kids seem to have. The difference could probably be found in their education, history and personal outlook on life. You hardly find, for example, any German flag any where in Germany except for special days. They don't play the national anthem at any sports events or (which I thought was unusual) at the end of the TV program. I never felt any influence on my personal sphere to become proud of Germany and I am not.

IT TOOK ME A LONG time to catch my first breath when I returned from my one-year stay. Things were going around a little rough in my mind and the boy didn't quite know what the situation was. By now, though, I get the necessary distance to judge my experience. This time influenced and changed my life more than any other year as you can possibly imagine.

This continent of Europe with its many prejudices needs to cross the ocean sometimes and I am glad I did. The personal relationships might die away as time passes by, but the inspiration of thoughts and feelings can hardly ever vanish. America is not just a foreign country that you visit and that you leave. It becomes part of your own and perhaps you become a part of it yourself once you become attached to it. This is perhaps true because the U.S. in a certain way may be considered as a future of Europe lived nowadays, but it might also be led back to the way you get to know the facts of every-day U.S. life. Not at all do I think that the U.S. is the perfect state but I suppose she is "just a little bit" ahead of us in the strife for an ideal state.

With these feelings in mind, I shall always remember the town of Charlevoix, the people I knew there and especially the kids I spent my time with. I hope I can write to you more often in future times to come. In that sense, yours, Unne Kallmeyer.

PS I THINK YOU people are so lucky to walk down Bridge Street, see the wonderful sunsets over Lake Michigan and yet think nothing of it!

As we prepare to observe Independence Day 1964 I hope you will give some thought to what this youngster from another land thinks of what we, as Americans, take so much for granted . . .

And may I ask one special favor of all you fine people? . . . Don't become a statistic this holiday weekend . . .

Nothing in Picture Changed But Name

This aerial view, taken last winter, shows the Charlevoix lifeboat station prior to the name change which became effective Wednesday, July 1.

In the foreground is the new 44 ft. patrol boat, one of three assigned to the station. Above it, on the dock, is the 40 ft. patrol boat. The third is a 30 ft. craft. In the lower left of the picture is the summer boat basin.

THE DOCK IN THE foreground is used by the U.S. C.G. Sundew as a berthing area when it is not tied up at the municipal dock and for loading and unloading the buoys which can also be seen in the foreground. The long brick building is the garage and warehouse.

To the rear is the new structure which houses the group office as well as the offices and personnel of the Coast Guard station.

The dwelling in the picture was once used by the attendant at the former buoy depot and now houses the family of the commanding officer of the station, if his family is here. At the present time it is being used by a member of the crew since Chief Edvin Przyzinski's family lives in Cheboygan.

Lifeboating Outmoded

"Lifeboat Station," as a name, is going out of business this week after nearly 50 years of honored service due to a wholesale Coast Guard name-changing project, according to Lt. Charles A. Millard, commanding officer of U. S. C. G. Group, Charlevoix.

The units themselves, however, will stay right where they are and continue to do just what they are doing. Lt. Millard was quick to add. He went on to explain that, henceforth, "Lifeboat Stations," in official language will be simply "Coast Guard Stations" as well as manned moorings, a name that has been applied to a number of search and rescue units in recent years.

IN THE DAYS OF THE Life-saving Service, the units that launched surfboats across the beach were known as Lifesaving Stations, Lt. Millard explained. Upon merger of this service with the Revenue Cutter Service in 1915, the units became "Lifeboat Stations" and under that name they have been almost as much the trademark of the Coast Guard as the cutters themselves.

It has been a long time since any of the 125 lifeboat stations now in service had a "lifeboat" in the old sense of the word. Typically, they operate motorboats 30 feet long or bigger from protected moorings.

All Lifeboat Stations have law enforcement and aid-to-navigation duties in addition to their primary mission of search and rescue; thus they are "multi-purpose" stations.

The station with a single purpose will still carry in its title the word designating that one mission. For example, a light station will still be a light station and a light attendant station or a loran station will go by present names.

STATIONS EFFECTED IN this area and their new names are as follows: Charlevoix Coast Guard Station, Beaver Island Coast Guard Station and Mackinac Island facilities have been designated as lifeboat stations and the Beaver Island unit a manned mooring.

Sheriff Patrols Lakes

The marine patrol conducted by the Charlevoix county Sheriff's Department has been placed in operation for the summer season, Sheriff Glenn F. Rose announced.

In making the announcement, Sheriff Rose said he hoped boaters, bathers, fishermen and others utilizing the county's many lakes and beaches will be as careful as they were last season when there were no drownings in the county.

"IF PEOPLE USE JUST good common sense when they are around the water, observing the rules they've always known, there is no reason why Charlevoix county can't keep its record clean," Sheriff Rose said.

The patrol craft, which will be operated by Basil Crawford of East Jordan, serving as a sheriff's deputy, will be used primarily for law enforcement purposes. However, it will also give assistance to stranded boaters and any emergency that might arise where a boat is needed.

It will be in operation on the county's many inland lakes from now until after Labor Day, Sheriff Rose said. The 16 1/2 ft. craft, powered by a 90 hp outboard motor, is transported via trailer to any place where it might be needed. It patrols the waters of Lake Charlevoix and Round Lake seven days a week and is "on call" at all times during the summer season.

For the first time the craft is equipped with a two-way radio comparable to those used in the department's patrol cars and office, which will do much to facilitate the operation Sheriff Rose said. In the past a "walkie-talkie" type radio was used. Though it served the purpose it was not as satisfactory as the conventional two-way radio, he explained.

THE PATROL BOAT which is fully equipped for all emergencies, is made possible through the cooperation of Charlevoix county and the Michigan Boating Control Commission on a matching-fund basis. For every dollar appropriated by the county to the program, the commission contributes $2.00; thus, the county is able to provide a necessary service at a very small cost to its residents, Sheriff Rose commented. The county's share is appropriated to the program by the Charlevoix county board of supervisors.

In conclusion, Sheriff Rose asked the cooperation of the residents and the visitors to this water wonderland in an effort to keep its lakes and streams safe for the bather, swimmer, water skier, fisherman and all others who enjoy this cool, refreshing water, a trademark of this area.

Before you get the notion O'Neil is a crackpot, listen to what he has to say. He makes good sense, as much or more than most candidates for the job. And he doesn't talk like a radical. In fact he sounds and looks like the father next door. No glamor candidate here.

He will fast convince you he is sincere and able. His grassroots approach to campaigning is something of a personal experiment. He believes politicians are still servants of the people, and as such should get down and meet the voters on their own level. He will know if he is right after the Sept. 1 primary election.

HOWEVER, WHETHER he's right or wrong, we cannot deny we enjoyed his brief, unexpected visit to Charlevoix and wish him the best of luck. It isn't our intention to urge you to agree with or vote for O'Neil, we only suggest that he is worth giving attention to.

MASSACRE AT MACKINAW—This painting by Robert A. Thom for the Michigan Bell Telephone Co.'s historical collection depicts the ruse used by Indians to gain entry to Fort Michilimackinac.

British Arrogance Cost Loss of Fort

The Great Indian Uprisings in 1763, instigated by Pontiac, an Ottawa war chief, led to the "Massacre at Michilimackinac."

A small detachment in late 1761 occupied Fort Michilimackinac, the most important fort north of Fort Pontchartrain in Detroit. The widely-dispersed British forces were little more than symbols of sovereignty.

General Jeffrey Amherst, the British commander-in-chief, despised the Indians. He felt they should be punished for delinquencies rather than bribed to make them friendly.

Irritated by British arrogance and secretly encouraged by the French, the Indians were ready to revolt in 1763. In the Detroit area, Pontiac called a council of local chiefs. They planned the capture of Fort Pontchartrain and also agreed to ask distant tribes to launch attacks on other forts.

MAJOR HENRY GLADWIN, Fort Pontchartrain commander, received Pontiac, and allowed 70 chiefs, warriors and some women to enter the fort for a parley. Pontiac had intended to attack, but seeing the British had been warned, withdrew.

His attempt at subterfuge thwarted, Pontiac began a siege of the fort. It lasted 153 days, a record for Indian operations and a measure of Pontiac's ability.

After the siege started, Pontiac formulated attacks on other forts.

The British, protected by a high stockade at Fort Michilimackinac, felt secure from Indian attack. The fort had been built between 1715 and 1720 by the French to control fur trade.

In May, 1763, voyagers, Indians, and others began arriving daily from their winter camp. One of four English traders living in the fort was Alexander Henry, whose later writings provided much of the information concerning life in the fort.

ON JUNE 1, INDIANS swarmed into the fort, visiting merchants and asking to see ornaments and silver armbands. When they brought only tomahawks, Henry tried to warn Capt. George Etherington, but was shrugged off.

The morning of June 2, 1763, was warm and humid. There was great excitement among the Indians. The visiting Sauk had challenged the local Chippewa to a game of baggataway. The game, called la crosse by the French, was played with a crosse, a four-foot stick with a bag or racket of skin straps at one end. With the rackets, the ball was caught, thrown, or carried to a goal, a post at each end of the field.

The Indians, always inveterate gamblers, made heavy wagers. They invited the British to attend, and the captain promised to bet on the Chippewa. The officers joined spectators outside the stockade. The gates were open and blanket-clad squaws entered the fort at will.

Several hundred braves ran, shouted, brandished crosses, and tossed the ball about.

SUDDENLY, AMID confusion, the ball was hurled high in the air. It fell near the entrance. Players dashed through the open gates in pursuit. Dropping their sticks, they snatched knives and tomahawks from the squaws who had concealed them beneath their blankets. The top officers were captured before they knew what was happening.

Inside the fort began a general massacre. Henry, in his house writing letters, saw the savages madly attacking every Englishman in sight. The startled trader saw Lt. Jamet struck down and scalped.

Henry noticed the Canadians stood apart, neither adding the Indians nor being assailed. Henry tried to flee. An Indian slave took pity on him and hid him in an attic. Through a crevice, Henry watched. Besides Jamet, 15 soldiers and an English trader were killed.

Although threatened several times, Henry escaped. A half-Indian officer, Charles Langlade, persuaded the Chippewa to leave Henry with him. Three days later, Chief Wawatam returned and bought Henry's freedom.

Liked Reception

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to thank you for the fine article and editorial that you wrote about the members of our group and our project.

Goldwater Fan

TO THE EDITOR:

I have at hand a copy of the June 11 Courier sent me by my son Keith Collins from East Tawas where he received it.

I should very much like to have five or six copies of the complete issue. It was a most interesting illustrated article, and a friendly, courteous thing for you to do. Charlevoix was not unknown to my late husband and me. It was always included in our vacation plans. We usually based our stay in the Lake Ann district to be close to interlochen.

I SHOULD ALSO like to mention your evaluation of Senator Goldwater in the same issue. A conservationist—not far right—Republican all my life, which includes voting in 1912 in Colorado for Theodore Roosevelt as a Bull Moose, I have no misgivings as to Goldwater's principles and actions, should he be nominated or elected to be President. I don't agree with all of his statements. I disagree with the roachback tactics and speeches of the self appointed Republican king makers.

Thanking you for the Couriers and with best wishes for you and your excellent newspaper.

Nora Collins
(Mrs. Stephen Collins)

ject the Holiday Towers. We appreciated the wonderful coverage of your fine paper.

However, I would especially like to thank you and your fellow citizens of Charlevoix for the reception that we received at the lunch of June 2, 1964 at the Weathervane. I, quite frankly, was not prepared for the warm hearted atmosphere that we experienced. It is refreshing in this day and age to sit down and talk openly with real people. I find it difficult to express our genuine appreciation of the confidence in our project that we felt on that day.

I AM SURE YOU will be interested to know that the project is progressing quite rapidly. Provided the ARA approves this project for Charlevoix, I am confident in saying that we will open the doors of Charlevoix's newest resort hotel on July 1, 1965.

Let me thank you and Charlevoix again.

Sincerely,

What with the beautiful weather at the time of the equinox last weekend I couldn't help but think that we were in for a real nice summer... But that thought was gone on the blast of cold air that blew in out of the southwest early Wednesday... Where did I get the idea that the weather on the first day of the new season had anything to do with the kind of summer we were going to have? ... It's like this... once upon a time, long ago, my postman—Walker Miles, told me that if I'd watch the weather at the time of the equinox, I'd know what the weather for the next three months was going to be... I pooh-poohed the idea in the beginning, but I found that, as a rule, it holds true... Now, if you'll think back, Sunday was a real nice day, a wee bit on the cool side when you were out of the sun, but bright and pretty most of the time... The Monday was a real summer day... as June 20 so someplace in there, when summer really arrived, the weather was good... So, have faith, it may not always be at 40 degrees as it was at my house Wednesday morning...

EVERY JUNE, FOR countless Junes, I've gone into a certain store in town and there, right in line with the front door, have seen a counter stacked high with bathing suits... It seems I always say the same thing upon seeing said stack... "Good heavens, do you expect to sell all those?"... And every year they do the 'ol' it's been sort of touch and go during some of the cooler summers... This same scene was repeated just recently... But, you know, now that I think about it, I neglected to ask if O'm had any of those topsless bathing suits we've been reading about stashed away at the bottom of that stack... Must ask next time I'm in the store!!!

And I'm not going to ask what you think of said suits... 'cause you might all decide to answer my question...

Isn't it true that Americans have a tendency to take everything for granted... and never stop to take stock and appreciate what they have... A recent letter from one of our exchange students, Ulrich Kallmeyer, who was among three to spend the year with us during the 1962-63 school year, brings out this point... Tho' I received the letter some time ago, I thought it so appropriate at this time when we observe the anniversary of our own independence... Though his English is, at times, a little confused, I'm sure you'll get the point: Looking at the wall of my room you find the picture you personally gave me the year I was an American boy. It draws back countless numbers of memories to just look at any of the football kids. Scenes come up that seem forgotten at times, feelings are aroused again which you could not possibly have over here in Europe... American style, American living, thinking, acting... those are the things you miss on the old continent and those may be reasons for me to at least spend part of my life away from Europe... This does not mean that I am referring to Germany or any other European country as a minor land. It simply includes the fact that sometimes you get so sick of certain attitudes and repeated actions of people over here so that the other country you have lived in suddenly is rising in the brightest of light... I have no direct connection with Germany although I think I am European through and through. Most people, at least the young ones, don't have this personal relationship with their "fatherland" as American kids seem to have. The difference could probably be found in their education, history and personal outlook on life. You hardly find, for example, any German flag anywhere in Germany except for special days. They don't play the national anthem at any sports events or (which I thought was unusual) at the end of the TV program. I never felt any influence on my personal sphere to become proud of Germany and I am not.

IT TOOK ME A LONG time to catch my first breath when I returned from my one-year stay. Things were going around a little rough in my mind and the boy didn't quite know what the situation was. By now, though, I get the necessary distance to judge my experience. This time influenced and changed my life more than any other year as you can possibly imagine.

This continent of Europe with its my prejudices needs to cross the ocean sometimes and I am glad I did. The personal relationships might die away as time passes by, but the inspiration of thoughts and feelings can hardly ever vanish. America is not just a foreign country that you visit and that you leave. It becomes part of your own and perhaps you become a part of it yourself once you become attached to it. This is perhaps true because the U.S. in a certain way may be considered as a future of Europe lived nowadays, but it might also be led back to the way you get to know the facts of every-day U.S. life. Not at all do I think that the U.S. is the perfect state but I suppose she is 'just a little bit' ahead of us in the strife for an ideal state.

With these feelings in mind, I shall always remember the town of Charlevoix, the people I knew there and especially the kids I spent my time with. I hope I can write to you more often in future times to come. In that sense, yours, Unne Kallmeyer.

PS I THINK YOU people are so lucky to walk down Bridge Street, see the wonderful sunsets over Lake Michigan and just think nothing of it!

As we prepare to observe Independence Day 1964 I hope you will give some thought to what this youngster from another land thinks of what we, as Americans, take so much for granted...

And may I ask one special favor of all you fine people? ... Don't become a statistic this holiday weekend...

Rambling

with shop

We're enjoying our approximately 40 idle acres of orchard, raspberries, cedar swamp, trout stream, hilltop view and huge old trees so much we can't help but suspect the Drosts—Anna, Irv, Eric and young Irv are missing them something awful.

As you know, they've taken up residence on Dixon Ave. in town. Certainly a pleasant location with wonderful neighbors . . . but not quite as grand as our deer, birds, fox, rabbits and misty, faraway view of Lake Charlevoix.

As this is written the orchard outside the window of my home office is full of birds peacefully stuffing themselves on our not-quite-ripe cherries. Every once in a while a strange note joins the generally contented chorus, and I can't help but wonder if one of the feathered fellows hasn't overdone it and come down with a bellyache.

At least three of the cherry trees are loaded and should be ripe in a few days. The rows of raspberry bushes look as though they will come through . . . thanks to last week's rain. People keep asking if we'll be selling the berries and cherries as Irv did in the past. I don't think so. Chances are we'll keep the orchard cultivated, but feed its fruits over to the critters.

After all . . . a dreamer needs a place to dream.

GIL SCHAEFER, son of the Albert Schaefer of the Bay City Rd., edits one of Michigan's zaniest little newspapers. He calls it the "Squeak," and writes it once every two months . . . "just for the fun of it."

Only a little bigger than a piece of typewriter paper, the Squeak's eight pages concentrate on in-depth interviews with people who have a definite opinion or new ideas on contemporary issues.

Gil does a nice job of writing the pieces, but feels he could present them better on the printed page and that even the Squeak is aimed—would like a bit more punch. He hopes these improvements would make the Squeak a self-supporting hobby.

So he stopped at the Courier last week while visiting his dad's summer home. (The senior Schaefer is renowned for the steam engine collection at his Lake Charlevoix estate.) Gil was nice enough to tell us the Courier makes his local newspapers (Hillsdale area) look pretty shoddy. After these remarks we couldn't help but do everything we could for him when he asked for suggestions in putting a bit more life into the Squeak.

If you wonder how Gil comes out with the Squeak, send him a buck at Jonesville, Mich. and he'll send you the dandy little sheet for two years.

WHAT DO YOU think of your new-new Courier? Have you noticed how clear the type is and how sharp the pictures are?

Take a good critical look. And then compare the Courier's printing to that of any other newspaper anywhere. Even the big big dailies, with multi-million dollar printing plants, can't do a better job.

Tom, Sonny and I were on the job 25-hours around the clock last Tuesday and Wednesday just trying to get northern Michigan's first rotary web offset newspaper off the new press. After running off 3,600 papers, that weren't "good enough" the Goss Community Press finally started spewing out papers we told the printers we would accept at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday.

At the risk of becoming a bachelor again, I must confess that when the press started delivering the paper you read last week the feeling was comparable to seeing out son for the first time as the nurses wheeled him from the delivery room.

JAMES W. CROWLEY, editor of a weekly newspaper in Massachusetts finds himself caught in the middle of a ruckus over local school management. Both sides of the controversy figure Crowley has been slanting the news to give them a bad odor. In the newspaper trade journal "Editor and Publisher" Crowley explains his position, and that of all forthright newspapers.

In such a way that it is worth passing on.

"The accusation of slanting the news is a phenomenon which is inevitable whenever any two groups feel deeply about any news development," Crowley writes.

"In such situations the editor inevitably becomes the fall guy for whatever he does is going to infuriate one side or the other. At any time the facts in the case, whatever they may be, are of the kind which either side would rather not see in print, the editor can be sure he is going to be accused of slanting the news, and there isn't a single solitary thing he can do about it.

"This is one of the unhappy facts of life with which all editors have to live. It isn't easy, and it is one reason why some newspapers are so ineffectually dull; their editors can't take it any more and see comfort and safety in banality. This one would rather be stoned in the streets than yawned at in the living rooms."

Crowley might have added that there will always be small, but influential, groups which prefer a newspaper that inspires a yawn because such a paper doesn't interfere with their efforts to control the public.

Even if you are not ready to put down the $25 an hour the Ingrams get for their work, a visit to the shop is rewarding. Spectators are welcome. And they appear to be plentiful.

Watching a face, young or old, come alive on the board in front of either of the Ingrams draws oohs and ahhs from the audience. People sometimes stand for hours watching a portrait slowly become a finished product.

SEEING THE INGRAMS bring life to a board may be a wonder to onlookers, but Charlevoix is also a rare miracle to the Ingrams and their children Greg, 16, Lindsey, 14 and Allison, 10.

Mrs. Stolt, who is now 65 years old, said she and her husband, a retired farmer, will continue to maintain their home in Bay Shore on the corner of old US-31 and the Townline Rd.

The announcement that Mrs. Stolt will retire was preceded by two weeks by Timmer's announcement that he is resigning in Charlevoix.

There has also been speculation that Roy Meyers will retire as Ironton's postmaster.

THIS MEANS THAT LaBlance's committee may be in a position to appoint three new postmasters this summer. The Democratic Committee meets Saturday, July 11, to consider a replacement for Timmer.

However, no appointment will be made for Bay Shore until the government decides if it will continue the post office there, LaBlance said.

Wayne says they passed through Charlevoix, marveled at its beauty, kept going as far as the straits. At Mackinac City they held a family conference and turned around to see if it might be possible to spend the summer in Charlevoix.

They found Puff's building for rent and later the summer at 303 Mason (the Harry Bingham winter home) and were an instant success with their portraits. "It was fantastic luck," Wayne says.

HE ADDS THAT BOTH the older and younger members of the Ingram Clan have already decided they prefer Charlevoix to Sun Valley, New Orleans, Cape Cod and the Smokey Mountains, where they have spent other summers painting. In fact they're planning of buying a summer home in Charlevoix and setting up shop here every year.

Among the things they like best about Charlevoix, Wayne says, is that they don't need to worry about the children getting in trouble and there are plenty of wholesome things for them to do.

In the winter Wayne travels around the country doing large oil paintings by appointment. These each take approximately two weeks and sell for between $1,200 and $1,500.

Though they also paint seascape and other scenes, both Ingrams explain they prefer portrait painting. "We feel portrait painting offers the biggest challenge and is the most enjoyable because each one is different," Wayne says.

NO FIGURES WERE available from the County Health Dept., or other agencies concerned with assistance, guidance and control in the neighborhood.

Hutchinson emphasized that the three year figures released by the four agencies only reflect direct cash outlays.

At least 20% would have to be added to these, he and Mrs. Wood, agreed, to get a true accounting of what it costs Charlevoix to support the slums.

Much of this money, Hutchinson said, comes from the state. However, he pointed out, the state first gets it from local residents.

St. Mary's New Church and Fr. E. Francis Denay

Will Hold First Mass In New Church Sunday

Father E. Francis Denay is going to have to give quite a sermon Sunday, July 12, if he wants to get the undivided attention of his parishioners.

Sunday the 600 members of St. Mary's Catholic Parish and summer visitors will attend their first mass in the new $130,000 church on Bridge St.

FR. DENAY REPORTS that if all goes well with last minute finishing work, the new church will be used this Sunday.

Five masses will be held at 6 a. m., 8 a. m., 9 a. m., 10:30 a. m. and 11:30 a. m.

"The whole building is substantially and artistically done," Fr. Denay said to describe the new church. "It is elegant and proper in its decor and symbolism, and blends the traditional with the modern in design."

Stolt to Resign Bay P.O.

Mrs. John (Lydia) Stolt has announced she will retire in September as Bay Shore postmistress.

Mrs. Stolt will have been in charge of the small Bay Shore post office for 18 years when she retires Sept. 30.

GEORGE LABLANCE, Charlevoix County Democratic Committee Chairman, which would appoint Mrs. Stolt's successor, said the government is studying the possibility of closing the Bay Shore post office.

According to Lablance, Sen. Patrick McNamara reports the U. S. Post Office Dept. is considering the possibility of incorporating the Bay Shore office into a Charlevoix rural route.

The Bay Shore Post Office is a boxholder operation. No mail is delivered. Mrs. Stolt reports she has 65 boxholder patrons.

Unveil Welfare Figures

22 Families in Area Get Most

Charlevoix is paying the high dollar—at least $50,000 a year—to preserve its slum neighborhood.

Charlevoix county law enforcement, welfare and juvenile officials released figures showing that in the past three years some $150,000 has been spent by county and state agencies on the approximately 22 families considered by the health department to be living in "slum" conditions.

THE 22 FAMILIES generally live in an area south of Lincoln St. and west of State St. bordering the airport on Charlevoix's southwest side. Their homes are shacks, most of them without water or plumbing, and some with no toilet facilities.

George R. Hutchinson, supervisor of the Bureau of Social Aid, and Mrs. Nancy Wood, county juvenile officer, said a fair estimate would be more than 150 people are living under slum conditions in the area.

They added that many of the homes in the area, often directly bordering on the slums, are representative of the finest families in Charlevoix, and that the neighboring squalor is an injustice to these people.

Mrs. Wood alone said her department in the last three years has spent more than $49,000 on juvenile and child care problems among the approximately 22 families. This was for board and room, clothing, medical care, and school books.

THE JUVENILE officer said this figure is only cash outlay that can be directly attributed to specific cases. The $49,000 does not include court, administrative, travel and other expenses. These would raise it at least 20%.

Sheriff Glenn Rose reports $9,274 has been spent in jail expenses for room and board of adult prisoners from the neighborhood. This, once again, does not include the additional 20% or more for law enforcement, administration and court costs.

The County Welfare Dept. reported $17,459 spent in the last three years for surplus food, hospitalization and direct relief for the estimated 22 families.

FAMILY PATIENT—Mrs. Marilyn Ingram works on a group portrait while her subjects, Mark, 9, Karren, 10 and Jay, 4, patiently pose. The children were in Charlevoix with their parents, Dr. and Mrs. Walter B. Promock of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Artists Fascinated by Charlevoix Reception

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ingram or Marilyn meticulously transferred them, onto a portrait of their parents, Dr. and Mrs. Walter B. Promock of Grosse Pointe Woods.

At least once a day, and usually a good deal more often, they put on a live demonstration of how to keep a small boy or girl patiently seated for hours.

WITH THIS EXHIBIT comes another small miracle as the Ingrams recreate their subjects' features and character in real-life color.

Wayne and Marilyn Ingram have opened up an art studio on Bridge St. in the former Puffs Appliance building. They paint pastel portraits of live subjects.

Since opening the shop Wayne reports he and his wife have had all the business they can handle. Which suggests the reputation Charlevoix citizens and visitors have for appreciating beauty extends to more than nature and unique architecture.

The first two weeks the Ingrams were in business local people were their main customers. Most of them brought their children down to the Ingrams for sittings.

MANY CHILDREN SAT for up to two hours while Wayne and Marilyn meticulously transferred them, onto a portrait of Mrs. Mary Beitel, seated. (COURIER PHOTO)

Blanchard President of School Board

Burr Blanchard is the new president of the Charlevoix Board of Education. He replaces Darrell Dinwiddie in the position.

Blanchard was elected to the president's post at the board's routine organizational meeting Monday evening.

OTHER OFFICERS elected were Al Smith, vice president; Mrs. L. R. Hooper, secretary and Dale Boss, treasurer.

Last year's officers were Dinwiddie, president; Smith, vice president; Blanchard, secretary and Boss, treasurer.

New officers are selected by board members each year after the annual election. Voters returned Dinwiddie and Blanchard to the board for four year terms at the June election.

Boat Prizes

Venettan Festival boat parade prizes will be awarded in two categories—civil-commercial and individual—with first, second and third prizes in each class. Chamber of Commerce manager Dean Davenport reports.

Prizes will be $50, $35 and $25. All boats entered will receive a $10 award. Persons wishing to enter the parade should register at the chamber office as soon as possible.

Could Eliminate Dumps

There may be a way to dispose of trash and garbage without dumps, or "sanitary landfills" as they are more politely called.

Boys City city manager James Anthony has proposed Charlevoix County's three cities -- Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan-- consider pooling assets to build an incinerator.

Anthony says he isn't confident this is the answer, but it has worked elsewhere and is definitely worth investigating.

All three cities now use sanitary landfills to dispose of their citizens' garbage and other refuse. Charlevoix recently gained permission after a long and bitter court fight, to continue having its wastes hauled to a Marion Township landfill.

An incinerator, Anthony explained, would dispose of all wastes, by either burning it in smoke or a fine ash. The smoke, he said, would not be obnoxious.

Incinerators used by other communities melt cans and bottles into an ash pit. Combustibles are burned away. The incinerators work like a blast furnace.

"WE CAN'T DO THIS today, or even this year, but now is the time to start thinking about the future," Anthony told the Courier.

Farm Guests

Charlevoix County will be visited by four Pakistan farmers today (Thursday) through Monday, July 13.

The four Pakistanians will stay with local farm families. Families acting as hosts will be Mr. and Mrs. William Parsons of Rt. 1, Charlevoix; Mr. and Mrs. William Jolliffe of Rt. 1, Charlevoix; Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Hardy of East Jordan and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Murphy of East Jordan.

By City Order

Rat Den in Flames

The City of Charlevoix Tuesday morning put into action its decision to do what it can to cleanup unsanitary conditions in the southwest slum neighborhood.

Firemen set fire to debris and other city workmen battered down an outside toilet on a Carpenter St. lot.

THE FIRE BURNED off several years accumulation of lumber and garage that was said to be housing rats. The privy was torn down and filled in.

City Attorney John Michael had ordered lot owner Harry Martin to have the property cleaned up by Monday.

The city will charge Martin for the cleanup costs.

GOOD FOR YOU

Cabbage is an excellent source of Vitamin C. One cup of cabbage cooked in a small amount of water, only until tender, yields the recommended daily amount of the vitamin needed. In contrast, this same amount cooked in a large amount of water for a long time yields little more than half the necessary daily amount.

OUR NEW LAND

THE CHURCH FOR ALL...
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a warehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Forty-three acres! How long we labored, hoping someday to add it to our modest farm.

Good bottom land... with a grove for the children to play in, a stream with an ol' swimmin' hole, and rich soil just begging for the plow.

Now it's ours! A great moment... full of promise... fraught with challenge.

Sort of like that moment a few years ago when Peg and I became members of the congregation. Before that the church had been simply a familiar scene along the border of our lives. Suddenly it became our church.

And there was that deep sense of partnership with God... full of promise... fraught with challenge.

There is such an abundant harvest of blessing and happiness to be reaped in life... if a man yearns for the best, and claims it for his own, and is ready to put his hand to the plow.

Bigness is the Best Antidote for Littleness

By Rev. Harold E. Kohn

The night sky is hauntingly beautiful when midsummer moonlight and starlight lie thick on our roof and window sills. A night wind has herded flocks of woolly clouds to some distant celestial fold so that the blue-black heavens above are clear. A slender sliver of new moon drifts dreamily across the sky. Sparkling in cool splendor in the high, wide silences above the earth, the distant stars look down upon a sleepy world.

Such a night is meant for wading in thoughts until the wonderer is beyond his depth. Then he should lie back awhile, lazily leaning his weight upon deep mysteries, like stumbling in a windrow of freshly cut alfalfa, lying there, relishing it, not caring to rise too soon.

ESPECIALLY AFTER A day of dealing with small details it is good to take such a star bath. We are so prone to become like what we are attentive to that hours spent on minutiae make us small. Punching a time clock, putting parts together on an assembly line, typing reports, tapping keys on an adding machine, correcting computations, fulfilling assignments, preparing and serving meals — all the little features of daily living have a way of dragging our minds down to their size. To achieve and maintain the full stature of manhood and womenhood we need frequently to focus our minds on bigness.

In Florence Barclay's THE ROSARY a doctor says to his patients: "See a few big things. Go in for big things. You will like to remember when you are bothering about pouring water in and out of teacups that Niagara is still flowing." When we are tired of accounting for where our money went, or wearied of adding up duties still to be performed before the weekend arrives, or bored with planning how many and what guests we should invite to our next party — then it is restful to step outside and attempt to count the stars in the vastness of the sky. Bigness is the best antidote for littleness.

On a clear night, with the unaided eye, from 5,000 to 7,000 stars can be seen throughout the celestial world, only half of them, however, being visible in our half of the sky. But with the help of the 100-inch Mount Wilson telescope approximately 1,500 million can be seen. Look through the 200-inch mirror on the Palomar Mountain telescope and additional billions of stars come into view.

DISTANCE TO THE stars are measured in terms of light years rather than miles. A light year is the distance light will travel in a year's time while speeding at the rate of 186,000 miles per second. In other words, a light year represents a distance of approximately six trillion miles. The Milky Way, of which our sun and its planets are but a tiny part, is composed of some one hundred billion stars. From our earth to the center of the Milky Way on some heavenly steady galloping along at the rate of 186,000 miles per second, it would take you 100,000 years, which means that a person contemplating the journey should start rather young if he is to make it.

Still, beyond the Milky Way there are other galaxies, yet more vast.

Such a star bath for our thoughts cleanses the mind of the transitory, the little, the insignificant.

Plunging one's thoughts into the immensities of our universe does something else for us too. It can deepen our religious faith and enlarge our reverence for God. When Dr. Henry Norris Russell, famed Princeton University astronomer, once gave a lecture on the Milky Way, he talked of its millions of stars. He told how many of them were far larger than our sun and how the still more distant heavens swarmed with stars innumerable. When he finished his address a troubled woman came to him and asked, "Dr. Russell, if our world is so little, and the universe is so great, can we really believe that God pays any attention to us human beings?"

THE NOTED ASTRONOMER answered, "That all depends, Madam, on how big a God you believe in."

The immense magnitude of the universe demands a bigger God than most of us know. Stretch your mind and soul on the stars,

Dem Candidate Says Political Awareness Ripening in Northland

Raymond F. Clevenger, Sault Ste. Marie attorney, is counting on an "emergence of political awareness" to help him win the Democrat nomination as congressional candidate from this district.

Clevenger, during a visit at the Courier office last week, said the north country is coming alive as an arena for political activity and understanding.

POLITICS, CLEVELER feels, is on the brink of reaching maturity in northern Michigan.

He bases his opinions on observations during several months of campaigning throughout the Upper Peninsula and northern eight counties of the lower peninsula. This is the area of the Congressional district the young attorney hopes to represent after the November election.

He said the "political conscience of the north is just emerging."

Several factors are attributed by Clevenger as reasons for this new interest in politics:

Reapportionment of Michigan congressional and legislative districts so that the north country has fewer representatives has jarred many people and importance of government in their regions they realize politics hold at least one of the vital keys in any community's economic success.

The notorious performance of Michigan's legislature and increasing complexities of government has stimulated more awareness of politics.

Clevenger says as far as he is concerned the more people studying and working in politics the better. If people know and care about what is going on in Lansing and Washington and realize what can be done but isn't he is convinced northern Michigan will get more from its representatives.

Clevenger is counting on voters seeing in him the kind of intelligent, hard working, politically-savvy young man they want to fulfill their demands for better representation.

IF HE GETS ELECTED, Clevenger says he is also riding on this political awakening to help him do a better job. Due to the size of the new district, he feels our next Congress district, he feels our next Congress man will have to organize committees in county and city levels to keep him abreast of local needs and moods.

Clevenger, 38, is a former law partner of Supreme Court Justice Paul L. Adams. He is also a former head of the Michigan Corporation and Securities Commission.

If Hotel Loan Ok'd Predict $1 Million Boost

If the federal government approves a $750,000 Area Redevelopment (ARA) loan for the Holiday Towers Resort Hotel it could mean a million-dollar boost to Charlevoix's economy, architect Jack Begrow estimates.

Begrow said this does not mean money guests will spend at the hotel. The million-dollar prediction is money the hotel will pay in salaries, spend for supplies and services and the added business other merchants will do.

THE GREAT NORTHWESTERN Land Development Corp. is seeking an ARA loan to pay one-half the cost of building the hotel. If the loan is obtained the hotel will be located on Lake Michigan at the end of W. Dixon Ave., where the old Holiday Terrace hotel stands.

The proposed new $1.4 million hotel will have 12 sides and a revolving cocktail lounge on the ninth floor.

Begrow revealed the development company is counting on the federal loan, plus a mortgage, company and the Charlevoix Development Corp. to provide the money.

The Graham Mortgage Co. of Detroit will hold the first mortgage, for 35% of the total cost. The Charlevoix Development Corp. is committed to try to raise $140,000 (10%) for which it will get the second mortgage. The federal loan will be the third mortgage. The investors will hold the fourth mortgage for 5% of the total cost.

BEGROW SAID investors in the Northwestern Land Development Corp. are Tom Hopper, owner of a Detroit glass company; Allen Tucker, president, Birmingham attorney and Dr. Donald Schubert, Birmingham dentist.

According to Begrow the federal government has requested more letters endorsing the hotel plans from Charlevoix businessmen.

He said he will appreciate letters from businessmen, including motel and restaurant owners, showing they feel the hotel will be a good thing for Charlevoix.

Chamber of Commerce Manager Dean Davenport, who has been helping Begrow get these letters, reports nine have already been received and more are coming. Letters supporting the project are from Earl Young, Davenport, Robert Nowakowski of the Capri Motel, Walter Thorsen of the Ed Rebnan of the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, City Supt. James Taylor, Lorin Corwin of the Silver Birch Motel, Wally Loder of Wal-Mar Court and Mayor E. D. Hawley.

BEGROW SAID his million-dollar prediction is based on the hotel drawing conventions to the city during the six or seven month off-seasons. He pointed out nearly half of the conventions held today are in non-metropolitan areas, whereas a few years ago they were all held in big cities.

By tapping the convention potential, Begrow figures year-round employment will result for many people now employed in summer jobs. He feels some of the summer shops will start staying open during the off-season.

There are approximately 20 acres within walking distance of the hotel site that now close in the fall, he said.

The Holiday Towers, Begrow estimates, will employ 126 people on a year-round basis. The hotel's payroll will be $186,000 annually. Between 100 and 150 other year-round jobs will be indirectly created.

AS AN INDICATION of the amount of money, other than payroll, the hotel will put into the local economy, the architect said $175,000 will be spent a year on raw foods, $45,000 on liquor, $11,000 on laundry and linen for beds and $6,000 for kitchen laundry.

The hotel will pay $24,000 in taxes, he said.

Begrow said the hotel will create a motto for its revolving top floor cocktail lounge. People will be urged to "Go up and have a round."

He said the nine story structure will be visible from Petoskey.

Hopes Dashed for New Docks in 1964

Charlevoix's municipal docks may be nearing their busiest time of the year, but there's nothing doing on adding piers and other facilities for yachtsmen.

Last winter's hopes that new docks and a shower toilet-lounge building would be up by summer have been shelved, due to lack of support from the State Waterways Commission.

CITY COUNCILMEN were counting on the state putting up at least 75% of the $150,000 project. But the state has not budged on its decision to pay only 50%.

Councilmen have pointed out the Waterways Commission paid 75%, or more, on St. James and Boyne City municipal harbor improvements.

Mayor E. D. Hawley says city officials haven't completely given up hope, he points out Charlevoix cannot afford to do the job without increases state participation.

Plans were to build new piers that would run from the foot of Clinton St. to the commercial pier where the Sundew docks.

A SERVICE BUILDING, including toilets, showers and lounge, were included in the project. It would be located at the foot of Clinton, near the site of the laundry building purchased and torn down by the city this winter.

Other phases of the plan included additional paving in the waterfront parking lot and landscaping.

City Supt. James Taylor estimates the city already has a minimum of $47,000 invested in Round Lake waterfront property.

This, in addition to the thousands already spent on piers and the park, should, Mayor Hawley hopes, earn Charlevoix request consideration by the Waterways Commission.

IF THE STATE AGENCY refuses to realign its decision, the mayor feels the city may be able to do the job over a two or three year period starting this fall.

Dear Dick Affair

"SEND HIM BACK"

DEAR DICK: I fell for an older guy and we were married. Then 9 months later I discovered he had already been married 14 years, and had a wife and 4 children in a town 25 miles away. He is a salesman, and told me he was out of town on business... which averaged three or more days per week. I am expecting and don't know what to do.--MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: You aren't the only one expecting... your bigamist friend is expecting a lump on the head and a lawsuit, and I would give him both. I must say, though, that either he was extremely clever or you were unusually innocent and unsuspecting. You can always expect the best selections in fine appliances when you visit Puff's Appliance Center.--DICK.

Recognize Charlevoix's Importance to Big Lake

The June 21 Sunday Chicago Tribune Magazine was devoted to Lake Michigan, including brief mention of Charlevoix's contribution to the most majestic of the Great Lakes.

Approximately 30 pages of the magazine, with a circulation of nearly one million, were on Lake Michigan. Major subjects were the lake's moods as recorded on color film, recreation on Lake Michigan, the lake's future and history and the story of the freighters.

"CHARLEVOIX, WHICH possibly has given more of its sons to the lake boats than any other town, has only four fishing boats and a coast group headquarters to link it to the lake today," the magazine article stated. "Charlevoix's main industry is vacationers, and the town is full of luxury cottages built by millionaires from Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati."

"The vacation business is big in all the towns at the north end of the lake," the article continued. "Dean Davenport, ex-mayor of Charlevoix, estimates that his town's population jumps from 2,700 in the winter to 12,000 in summer."

"Glen Sheppard, editor of Charlevoix's weekly newspaper, says: 'Boating is our major industry. We have the best harbor for pleasure boats on Lake Michigan, tho we need more public slips and marinas.'"

The story also goes into some detail on Beaver Island's history, calling it "remarkable."

"Now the Island has a daily boat from Charlevoix during the summer," it says of contemporary Beaver Island. "Its wilderness frames two airplane runways for sportsmen from Chicago and Detroit. In winter, planes land on the harbor ice. There is a village of Irish farmers and fishermen, still called St. James, and along the island roads stand weathered old dwellings that the Mormons left behind them."

"Ninety percent of the fish tugs in Chicago," says Ashton, "are run by American Indians who are transplants from Peapack Island or Charlevoix. Indians are fine sailors and good fishermen. They don't say much, but they make fine shipmates."

AND AS HUNT DESCRIBES the dangers the big lake holds for "the stately ore carriers," he writes, "past the Beaver Island group, littered with wrecks and known as the 'graveyard of the Great Lakes,'"

TRIBUNE STAFF writer Ridgely Hunt wrote the article, which is reported to have taken six months to prepare. Hunt spent several hours in Charlevoix last winter, stopping at the Chamber of Commerce and Charlevoix Courier.

Reporter Hunt was accompanied by a photographer while in Charlevoix, but none of the many pictures in the magazine can be readily identified as having been taken here.

$96.4 MILLIONS! That's what your telephone company plans to spend on construction this year, to keep pace with the telephone needs of Michigan businesses and families. "Construction" includes such things as laying cable, installing equipment, and putting up new buildings or building additions.

This year, and in the future, we expect to keep on building to meet Michigan's increasing needs for communications. And we'll be putting millions of dollars directly into our state's economy at the same time.

HALF THE FUN of a vacation is shoring it with the folks back home—by telephone. (Can't you just see the gong, as you describe the fish you caught, or the putt you sank?) And of course a considerate person always lets the folks know at once, when he reaches his destination safely. Make a note now to phone back often while you're away. It's almost as essential to happy vacationing—as phoning for reservations before you go!

EASY TO HOLD plus easy to talk into plus easy to listen to... equals your modern telephone! A lot of scientific research and engineering know-how went into making it so. Research, for instance, on the average distance between mouth and ear, the range of loudness of people's voices—even the width of their fingertips. (Those dial openings have to be big enough, you know!) It all contributed toward making your phone a pleasure to use.

Big Demand for Vaccine

Volunteers Make Clinics Possible

More than 2,800 people came... babies in arms, older couples helping each other, young mothers who had hauled their youngsters from the beach and other young ones with tear-stained faces because they didn't want to leave their sand-boxes, women in their Sunday best as they stopped by, enroute home from church, families on their way to a picnic, other families traveling through or just arriving for the summer...

But they all came, without being told they had to, to receive oral polio vaccine at the clinic in the county building.

AND AT THE CLINIC other residents of the community, housewives, career girls, young mothers and grandmothers served as volunteer clerical workers and nurses. Some of whom work only occasionally, others who have more or less left the field of nursing for various reasons and others who took time from the days off to administer the vaccine and pharmacists who left their stores to supervise the project all turned up to make the clinic possible.

No event involving people is without its humorous incidents. Probably the most amusing happened shortly after the last clinic when the largest number of people came at one time. Two men, dressed in casual clothes, came in and were met by the volunteer greeter who asked if they had their cards or if they wanted to fill them out at the adjacent table.

One of them asked "Cards for what?" and was promptly informed this was an oral polio vaccine clinic. Upon hearing this they turned toward the door, informed her that they had theirs and added "We're from Cleveland and were just going through town when we noticed all the people coming this way. We just wondered what was going on and followed them in to find out. Thanks anyway." Both were gone before anyone could ask who they were.

MRS. JEANNE MILES, community nurse said the clinic was made possible through the cooperation of the Northern Michigan Medical Society, the Charlevoix-Emmet Pharmacists Association and District Health Department No. 3.

She added, however, that the clinics themselves would not be possible without the cooperation of a large corps of volunteers who serve in various capacities to make the clinic a success.

Among the clerical workers at both clinics, most of whom were members of the Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Hospital, were Mrs. Thomas Bassett, chairman of the telephone committee of the Guild who scheduled all the workers for both clinics, Miss Frances Miller, Mrs. Don DeMoor, Mrs. Eugene Dziedzic, Mrs. H.O. Messmore, Mrs. Arthur Skelton, Mrs. Paul Sante, Mrs. Darrell Dinwiddie, Mrs. John Lignell, Mrs. Floyd Brown who also assisted as a nurse, Mrs. Reed McVay, Mrs. Harry Gebeau, Mrs. Wayne Woods, Mrs. Richard Donaldson, Mrs. B.E. Coleman, Mrs. Wilson Baker, Mrs. Ralph McRae, Miss Lyle Roberts, Mrs. Robert Lieberman, Mrs. Robert Neff, Mrs. Arnold Loper and Mrs. R. E. Mieras.

Nurses who assisted were Mrs. John Bradley, Mrs. Robert L. Hooper, Mrs. Edwin Zeltner, Mrs. Robert Winchester, Mrs. Robert Gill, Mrs. Francis Left, Mrs. Ronald Geer, Mrs. Roger Pischner, Mrs. Thomas Carey, Mrs. Robert Beardsley, Mrs. Delbert Terrill, Mrs. Nathan Boss and Frances Martin.

PHARMACISTS WHO assisted were John Schroeder, Ray Whaley, Harley Ochs, David Fowler, Franklin Ochs, and two young pharmacy students who are serving their internships here this summer, Lynn Mayne and Carl Mitchell.

Mrs. Miles added that Versal Seymour, head of the custodial staff at the county building, had set up all necessary equipment for the clinic and was on hand at all times to assist where needed.

Mrs. Miles said, "It is this community spirit that makes the clinics a success... The residents of the area come voluntarily to get the vaccine and others offer to give of the time to make certain the clinics are properly manned. I know we will have the same response when we hold the third and last clinic in September."

LYNN MAYNE AND CARL MITCHELL, (seated) pharmacy interns, who prepared all the sugar cubes with oral polio vaccine, for the polio clinic. They carried out the operation under the supervision of Franklin Ochs, local pharmacist, (standing left) and A. J. Rumiez, professional service representative for the Pfizer Laboratories which supplied the vaccine, and other local pharmacists.
